Although far advanced in years the celebrants are in unusually good health and took active part in entertaining the large number of guests. They received many letters and cards of good wishes and congratulations from local, as well as distant friends and relatives.

Among the guests were Postmaster and Mrs. Henry S. Garretson, and their daughter, Miss Lillian Garretson, of New Market; Mr. and Mrs. Robert Craig, of Dunellen; Mr. and Mrs. Herbert I. Benward and family, of Brooklyn, and Mr. and Mrs. Amos E. Giddes, of Plainfield.

CELEBRATE WOODEN WEDDING ANNIVERSARY

Mr. and Mrs. Dwight VanDoren Entertain on the Occasion of Fifth Year.

Mr. and Mrs. Dwight Van Doren, of the Endress Apartments, celebrated their fifth wedding anniversary New Year's Eve, entertaining many friends from Cranford, Roselle Park, North Plainfield and this city. Their home was beautifully decorated with the bridal colors of pink and lavender and the full wedding party served.

The evening was enjoyably spent playing various games and talented musicians entertained with selections. The couple received many wooden articles in keeping with the tradition that the fifth marriage anniversary is a "wooden wedding."

Among those present were Select man and Mrs. C. N. Mundy and thei daughter, from Newton, Mass. Mrs Mundy and Mrs. Van Doren are sisters, being daughters of Mr. and Mrs. William Addis, of this city.

Mr. and Mrs. Van Doren were married at the home of the bride's parents on Orange street, and until recently lived at Roselle, the former home of Mr. Van Doren.

CLAY PRESIDENT OF CITY FATHERS

Common Council for 1914 Formally Effects Its Organization.

APPOINTMENTS MADE

Charles A. Reed Made Corporation Counsel for Full Term—Floral Horseshoes on Desks of New Democratic Members, Gifts of Mayor.

In the presence of a large number of spectators including several of last year's members, the Common Council for 1914 met promptly at 8 o'clock last night, and effected an organization. Large floral horseshoes, the gift of Mayor Percy Hamilton Stewart, adorned the desks of the two Democratic members, Theodore F. Martin and Richard A. Claybrook.

After City Clerk James T. MacMurray called the meeting to order, the first business was that of electing a president and George S. Clay was promptly re-elected. There were nine votes for him, one ballot was a blank and on the eleventh appeared the word "yes." All of the members were present, sitting in the circle in the following order: Charles C. Graves, Francis J. Blatz, John H. Cose, Theodore A. Martin, Leighton Calkins, Abiel D. Edgar, Thomas F. Hylan, Juan A. Babcock, Richard A. Claybrook, with President Clay in the chair. After taking his seat, Mr. Clay took occasion to thank the members for the honor conferred.

City Clerk MacMurray read the call of the meeting, after which Leighton Calkins offered a resolution, which was adopted, fixing salaries as follows: Corporation counsel, $3,500; assessors, $400 each; city typist and stenographer, $600; janitor, $540; clerk to the tax collector and board of assessors, $1,000; clerk in the office of the building inspector, $300. These are the same as last year. Several resolutions were then offered by Mr. Calkins and adopted, providing for the re-appointment of George B. Wean as city typist; William A. Kline as janitor; that the rules of order of 1913 be adopted as the rule for 1914 and giving notice that at the next regular meeting he would move to have them adopted as the by-laws of the Council for the coming.

Francis J. Blatz, A. D. Edgar, Cornelius van Herwerden, Thomas F. Hylan and Richard A. Claybrook were named a committee on sewers, the election being by ballot.

Petitions for lights on Netherwood avenue and East Front street, for the annual appropriation of $700 for the dental clinic at the hospital, and the notice from Plainfield Lodge, Loyal Order Moose, that it would apply to the county courts for a club license, were referred to the proper committees.

The bonds of Constable A. D. Ayers and George R. Rockafellow, and the applications of Robert Murray and H. F. Johnson for license for employment agencies and a communication from Ward, Carpenter & Co., offering to furnish the city with maps, were all referred.

Mayor Percy H. Stewart's annual message was read at this time, after which copies were ordered printed. The Mayor then re-appointed Charles A. Reed corporation counsel for the full term of three years. He also named the long list of special policemen. The appointments were confirmed.

A resolution by Mr. Calkins, which was adopted, made the usual provision that special policemen pay $5 for their badges and upon their surrender $2.50 be retained for the police pension fund.

City Clerk James T. MacMurray reported that he had received a request from the American-LaFrance Fire Engine Company for the return of its proposal and specifications to furnish the city with an auto fire engine but could not do so without orders from the Council. As they are a part of the city's records it was decided not to return the papers.

Petitions were received from Albert Rajotte and others requesting that the city's property in the West End of the city be properly drained. These were referred as were also communications from Charles S. Smincк and C. F. Murphy, of East Front street, who complained about sidtwalk conditions. Upon motion of Councilman Charles C. Graves the communication from the Loyal Order of Moose giving notice of an application for a club license, was referred to Corporation Counsel Charles A. Reed.

Another batch of resolutions offered by Mr. Calkins and adopted, provided for the appointment of The Daily Press and Courier-News as the official newspapers of the city, authorized the city clerk to secure a supply of committee cards and stationery; appointing Frank M. Dunham assistant to the tax collector and board of assessors and requiring a bond of $5,000; authorizing

MASQUERADE AT PARK CLUB

Younger Society Set Enjoys a Jolly Event on New Year's Eve.

WILL BE REPEATED

Similar Function to Be Held Before Lent—Lively Time At Midnight—About Two Hundred Were Present.

The masquerade dance given at the Park Club, New Year's Eve by the younger society set of the city and borough, was such a success that it has been decided to repeat the affair some time before Lent. There were about two hundred guests in all, and the costumes generally were very attractive, some of them being unusually so. The dancing began about 9 o'clock and continued, with the exception of an intermission, when supper was served by Henry Johnson, the club steward, until 5 o'clock yesterday morning. Music was furnished by Muller's orchestra of colored musicians, the program comprising all the latest dances.

The crowd was a jolly one and at 12 o'clock the New Year was ushered in by the blowing of countless horns and the throwing of confetti and streamers, all of which added to the merriment of the occasion. The dancing was then resumed and it was near day-break when the last of the guests departed. The dance was arranged by J. Hartley Mellick and he was assisted by W. L. Righter, A. W. Andrews, William Palmer Smith, Jr., C. Loomis Dana and Clifford W. McGee.

PARK CLUB FUNCTION ON NEW YEAR'S DAY

The Dansante Feature of Delightful Entertainment for Members.

The annual New Year's Day reception at the Park Club, held yesterday afternoon from 3 to 6 o'clock, proved to be one of the most delightful of the many social functions held throughout the city and borough. The affair was announced as "The Dansante," tea being served and dancing enjoyed throughout the afternoon. The music, banjos and piano, was furnished by colored musicians and this was a pleasing feature. The program was a popular one.

Mrs. Francis L. Sill, Mrs. William J. Roome, Mrs. Alison M. Abbott, Mrs. Frank Whitney French, Mrs. J. C. Peck and Mrs. Stuart H. Patterson comprised the receiving party, while Mrs. William Barlow, Sr., Mrs. G. M. Holstein and Mrs. Augustus VanDeventer poured.

There were in all about two hundred members and friends present during the afternoon and there was a happy exchange of New Year greetings, the reception being marked by sociability in which everyone seemed to have a part. The clubhouse was attractively decorated by Henry Johnson, the steward, there being a profusion of greens and red poinsetta about the stage, balcony and open fire-place, adding to the spirit of the holiday festivities.

There will be an informal dance at the club tomorrow night, and thereafter every two weeks for the present.

PLAINFIELD MOOSE OPEN THEIR NEW CLUB HOUSE

The new year was observed and the opening of their new clubhouse at East Second and Church streets was celebrated yesterday afternoon by members of Plainfield Lodge, No. 310, Royal Order of Moose, with the members, the wives of members and many friends enjoying the festivities. The event was in charge of the good and welfare committee, of which Charles Paglucci, James T. McCarey and Thomas M. Parson are members. John J. Carroll, chairman of the house committee, and J. T. Green received the guests and escorted them throughout the building. Yuletide decorations of red and green predominated.

MAYOR'S RECEPTION LARGELY ATTENDED

Several Hundred Citizens Call to Pay Their Respects on New Year's Day.

Mayor Percy Hamilton Stewart, following his usual custom, held a New Year's Day reception at his office yesterday afternoon, the hours being from 3 to 6 o'clock. During that time nearly four hundred citizens called to exchange greetings of the day and each other a happy and prosperous new year. The members of the police department in a body visited the mayor.

Among those who called were nearly all of the city officials, including the new members of the Common Council, who became city fathers at noon yesterday, and all were given a cordial reception by the city's executive. As they passed out cigars were distributed.

One thing that added much to the pleasure of the reception was the decorations arranged by Stanley, the florist. In the Mayor's office, as well as the Common Council's committee room, which adjoins, beautiful flowers smilax and palms were banked about the fire-places, the whole scheme being unusually attractive. The decorations were greatly admired by all who called to meet Mayor Stewart.

Among Mr. Stewart's first duties of the new year was that of issuing the customary licenses to the local amusement places, which he did early in the day. He was present at the first meeting of the new Common Council in the evening, when he presented his annual message, which will be found in another part of the Daily Press.

DANCE IN HONOR OF A DEBUTANTE

Mrs. Percy H. Stewart Entertains in Honor of Miss Catherine Ginna.

Among the delightful holiday social functions in the city was a dance given last night by Mrs. Percy Hamilton Stewart for Miss Catherine Ginna, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Daniel F. Ginna, of Watchung avenue, who is one of the season's debutantes. The affair was given at the Ginna homestead on Watchung avenue, which is temporarily occupied by Mayor and Mrs. Stewart.

The home was elaborately decorated for the affair with greens, palms, red poinsettas and other flowers appropriate to the holiday season. There were about eighty guests, all young people and intimate friends of Miss Ginna.

A decided feature of the dance was the music furnished by Frank McKee's orchestra. The program was an unusually attractive one of popular numbers and the young people enjoyed it to the fullest extent. During the evening refreshments were served.

IRA G. HULBERT DIED YESTERDAY

Well Known Resident Passed Away in His Eighty-Second Year.

Ira G. Hulbert, aged 81 years, a well-known resident of Plainfield for more than twenty-five years, died of complications yesterday at his home, 1136 West Front street, following a long illness. He was a native of Rahway, where for many years he was successful as a contractor and prominent in politics, being a Democrat of the old school.

After removing to Plainfield, Mr. Hulbert continued the business of contractor, and during his residence here erected many fine buildings throughout the city and borough. His wife died several years ago. Mr. Hulbert always took an active part in politics here, being a familiar figure at all gatherings of his party, but never held public office.

There survive two nieces, one, Miss Hulbert, of this city, and the other, Mrs. Arthur Gillman, of Newark. The funeral will be held at the late home Sunday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock. Rev. Ernest Brown, of Dunellen, will officiate and the burial will be in Hillside cemetery.

OPEN HOSPITAL PRIVATE PAVILION

Patients Removed to New Structure From Old Administration Building.

BUSY YEAR EXPECTED

Memorial Maternity Pavilion Constantly In Use—Improvements to Be Made In the Public Wards Soon.

Yesterday inaugurated regular hospital service in the new private room pavilion at Muhlenberg. With the opening of the new year the private patients were moved from their quarters on the second floor of the old administration building to the new structure which faces Park avenue. Patients, doctors and nurses alike were well pleased with the change.

For the next week or two only the second floor of the new building will be occupied by patients, but everything is in readiness throughout the building for the reception of others. Already there are a number of reservations by Plainfield and nearby physicians on behalf of their patients, and there is every present indication that Muhlenberg will have the busiest year in its existence as a hospital.

While a number of minor details have yet to be completed, it can be stated that the greater Muhlenberg is now ready for a steadily increasing patronage. The new Edgerton Memorial Maternity Pavilion, the best equipped obstetrical building of any in the State, has not lacked patients since it was opened last fall. The completeness of its appointments and fittings has occasioned most favorable comment from several New York and Philadelphia specialists who have inspected it, and a number of rooms have been engaged for occupancy in January.

Changes in the hospital grounds will not be completed until next spring. These include grading and some alterations in the driveways which will add to the convenience of physicians and visitors. Still further improvements will be made in the public wards for men and women. In the present administration building the capacity of the physicians' and nurses' dining room will be doubled. Plans for the new children's ward, which will occupy the floor formerly given over to private patient rooms, are well underway.

The Craig A. Marsh Memorial Pathological Pavilion is about ready for occupancy, and the fittings and fixtures will be complete before the end of the present month. The work which will now be possible in the new pathological pavilion is of very great importance to physicians and their patients, not only in Plainfield, but throughout this section of the State.

Visitors to the new private room pavilion yesterday commented on the unusually complete stock of hospital linen with which the linen rooms were filled. This was made possible, without expense to the hospital, by the activities of the ladies' committee, of which Mrs. John P. Stevens was chairman, and the members of the Woman's Auxiliary, during the linen shower and sale at Schwed Brothers' store in November, just prior to the public inspection of the new building. In grateful recognition of the splendid work of the women, and of the courtesy of Schwed Brothers in offering them the use of their store during the sale, the hospital Board of Governors, at its recent meeting, passed unanimous votes of thanks. The success of the sale was greatly increased by the fact that one of the most prominent show windows in town was given over to the display of the various articles.

TWELVE BELLS HOLD THEIR ANNUAL DANCE

The committee consisted of John Farro, president; Jas. Martin, secretar; Frank Martin, treasurer; Benjamin Ammerman, Raymond Scott, John English, George Giddes, Clarence Smalley, Victor Biasucci and Louis Marrow.

REJECT NOMINEE FOR BORO OFFICE

Council Refuses to Confirm Judge I. P. Runyon for Corporation Counsel.

STAHL COUNCIL HEAD

Fred Hand Named Recorder—Mayor Fails to Select Fire Chief and McCullough Holds Over—Other Appointments.

Although District Court Judge Isaac P. Runyon, of Somerset county, was named as corporation counsel for North Plainfield by Mayor Clark at the organization meeting of the Council held at noon yesterday, the appointment was rejected by that body by a vote of four to two. No other candidates was mentioned for the office.

The action caused a mild sensation among the spectators. The other appointments were confirmed by the borough fathers as arranged by the borough executive. It was noticeable, however, that no appointment as chief of the fire department was made and the present incumbent, William McCullough, will continue to serve.

When Judge Runyon's name was read as the appointee for counsellor, Councilman Alexander Milne protested in a brief but direct address. He said that at a recent conference Judge Runyon's name was mentioned for the place, and that it was decided then that the salary he requested was exorbitant. It was further decided that it would be wiser to leave the appointment until an indefinite date, Milne added. Mayor Clark said it was his purpose to have Judge Runyon appointed counsellor so that the Council could get such legal advice as it may need from time to time but that the incumbent was to be paid just for services rendered at such times. When the roll was called by Clerk Charles L. Dolliver, Councilmen Boyer, Cowperthwait, Tingley and Milne voted "no" and Councilmen Stahl and Rushmore voted "yes."

Judge I. P. Runyon issued the following statement today:

"In your news item today respecting the borough corporation counsel nomination of yesterday, will you kindly make my position clear in said article?

"I have not at any time directly or indirectly sought such appointment. In fact I had no desire for the office.

"Two years ago Mayor Clark very kindly tendered the appointment to me and I declined. In the present tax case, about the first of December the Mayor and Council unanimously retained me in the case and also respecting the various matters incident thereto.

"During the conferences in the tax cause, Mayor Clark stated his desire to appoint me counsel, which I took under consideration. Subsequently I asked the Mayor if it was the desire of all the members of the Council and he replied it was all right.

"I regret that it is necessary to make a public statement; but I desire it clearly understood that the office sought me and that I am not even interested in how it is decided, except to have my position clearly defined."

Julius Stahl, who has served the borough for many years in public offices, was chosen president of the Council by a unanimous vote. He will preside at the meeting in the absence of Mayor Clark. Mr. Milne, who served the past two years in that capacity, was nominated for the honor, but declined, nominating Stahl.

Mayor Clark made a short address. The appointments as confirmed follow:

Borough clerk, C. M. Dolliver; borough recorder, Fred W. Hand; borough physician, Dr. J. H. Buchanan; overseer of the poor, Fred Becker, member of the Board of Health for term of four years, Dr. A. H. Dundon; borough engineer, H. C. Van Emburgh; street commissioner, William Uhrhahn.

Fire Department—Captain, William Daly; lieutenant and driver, Albert Fritz; tillerman, William Hogan; engineer, James Walker. Call Men, Clinton Conover, Albert DeCamp, Claude Hann, Raymond Smith, Charles F. Stahl, Frank Haulenback, Fred Krausse, Winfield Conover, Walter Chandler, Harry Schuck, L. B. ANNUAL MESSAGE OF CITY'S MAYOR

More Men for the Police and Fire Departments Among Recommendations.

DISCUSSES TAXATION

Compliments Corporation Counsel For His Services—Sewer System and Street Lighting Among Topics Dwelt Upon.

More men for both the police and fire departments are recommended, among other things, in Mayor Percy H. Stewart's annual message to the Common Council delivered and read when that body formally effected organization last night. The message follows:

"Pursuant to the established custom I take this opportunity of extending to you my best wishes for the new year and of pledging my co-operation in the consideration of such public questions as may come before us. It is eminently fitting and proper at this time, when members of your Honorable Body, who have served with unselfish devotion and with distinction, are retiring from office, that I should express my regret that the city is to lose the benefit of their long experience in public affairs and that I shall not have the pleasure of advising with them on matters of public importance. It is also fitting that I should publicly express my profound appreciation of the co-operation and assistance which have been extended to me at all times by members of the Common Council.

"The record of the past year is one of things accomplished, of which the retiring Council may well feel proud.

"The work of the Corporation Counsel during the past year has been largely increased. He has, in addition to duties usually performed in recent years, represented the city in all police court cases of any moment and in all tax appeals. His regular attendance upon meetings of the Common Council, besides many meetings of committees, has greatly expedited the work in every department and he has been in constant touch with all department officials. He has attended to all of the legal business of the city, with the single exception of the joint sewer matter, in regard to which the three municipalities interested jointly employed two or three years ago, special counsel whose responsibilities, now nearly ended, it was deemed unwise to divide.

Sewer System.

"A contract has been entered into with the cities of North Plainfield and Dunellen providing for the joint disposal of sewage. The question is of more than local interest, as it is governed by geographical and topographical conditions rather than by the lines of municipal jurisdiction. In our rapidly growing community, if we are to preserve the high reputation which we have heretofore enjoyed for sanitary conditions and healthful surroundings, there must be no question whatever about the adequacy and absolute efficiency of our sewage system.

"This question has been beset with difficulties from its inception. Much time, labor and attention have been expended in working out the plans and obtaining the necessary authority for the construction of the system. Rapid progress is now being made in carrying out the details and, barring legal difficulties, the plan should be in operation within a reasonable time.

Street Lighting.

"The matter of improved street lighting which was agitated for years without definite results, has been successfully concluded. The Public Service Corporation having conceded the city's contention, agreed to install promptly an improved and greatly increased street lighting system at a comparatively small increase in cost to the city. The disputed question of whether or not the city, in view of recent legislation, is still entitled to have its public buildings and offices lighted free of charge will in the near future be submitted to the courts in such manner as to obtain a speedy decision, and that controversy finally disposed of.

Streets.

"The condition of some of our road-beds, pavements, curbs, crossings and gutters is not what it should be. Heretofore a comparatively light road-bed of waterbound macadam has been found sufficient, if kept in proper repair. But the increasing use of the automobile and automobile truck has placed a burden upon our road-beds which they are not capable of supporting. The brick pavement which was laid in the business section of our city is proving very satisfactory. This pavement, however, is too expensive to use on all our streets and in fact, would be unnecessary. In the outlying districts and in cross streets not subject to heavy traffic, a lighter and less expensive construction may be used to

THE FORUM.

Editors, Plainfield Daily Press:

This is the time when we talk about the resolutions that we will make for the new year. However, this new resolution business most people do not take seriously. There are reasons though why everyone of us should consider this question very thoughtfully. I have before me an article which is based on this question sent to a number of representative people in Europe and America, "Is the World Growing Better?"

Some answer the question optimistically but the reasons given by those who answer in the negative are worthy of our most thoughtful consideration.

Cardinal Gibbons believes that from a material standpoint there is no doubt that the world is growing better, but he doubts whether Christianity is keeping pace with the material betterment.

Ida Tarbell states: "I think that the world is growing better but sometimes I have my doubts."

A. C. Dixon, Spurgeon's successor in the London Tabernacle, speaks of "depths of sin in Chicago and London, that would astonish even the Pompeians if they were to come here and see it."

Robert Giffen shows that while the population in Great Britain increases only 1 and 3-10 per cent, wealth increases 3 per cent. This increase of wealth though has not made contented and happy the 800,000 people who go habitually hungry.

It is further stated there is a popular discontent in Europe which has not been equalled since the revolution of 1848.

Dr. J. H. Kellogg, of Battle Creek, Michigan, says: "I think that on the whole the world is not growing better. The good are growing better and the bad are getting worse, but the bad are multiplying faster than the good." There is an increase in insanity and idiocy. In 1867 the proportion of the insane in New York and New England was about one to 1,600 of the population. At the present time the proportion of the insane in New York is 1 to 273.

Crime is increasing at a rapid rate. The proportion of murders to the whole population is reported to be twice as great in this country as in India, a country which we are trying to civilize and Christianize.

In Great Britain and the United States the number of suicides has doubled in twenty-five years.

The Chicago Vice Commission speaks not only of the awfulness of vice condition but of the appalling increase of amateur prostitution: girls in department stores with their names listed in grill rooms.

Medical authorities have estimated as high as 50 per cent of men have venereal diseases. On account of this the birth rate is decreasing.

Bradstreet shows that 85 per cent of business failures are due to moral laxity.

Dr. Frank Crane, in an editorial a few days ago, made this striking statement: "Each day two persons in New York walk out of their front doors, perhaps turn to wave a good bye to some one in the window and are never heard of nor seen again. There is no doubt that a certain proportion of these are girls who are the prey of the so-called white slavers. Making due allowance for the element of exaggeration in these reports and the general temptation of people to make things in the telling as lurid as possible the fact remains that a certain number of girls daily fall into the atrocious maw of this monstrous organization."

The church is doing its best to fight these conditions but there are so many whose names are on the books of the church that have practically gone over to the enemy or are indifferent. Sabbath observance is gradually on the decline especially among those whose fathers and grandfathers were its strongest defenders.

Dr. Josiah Strong in "Our World," discusses some of these great moral facts that concern each one of us.

"It is a call to 'Awake thou that sleepest' to every man. Preservation of the church and also the nation is jeopardized by conditions that are gathering like clouds before the storm."

(Rev.) CHARLES E. HERRING.

PLAYS AND PLAYERS

Katherine Grey is soon to be seen in a new play called "The Rule of Three."

Eva Tanguay is to take her entire company to London early next spring.

Neil Kenyon is to begin an American tour soon under the Keith management.

Bernard Shaw is said to be writing a play based on the life of Cromwell.

The coming American tour of the Irish Players is to be confined to the Middle West.

The Shuberts are preparing to produce a new comedy under the title of "The Chaperon."

Bayard Veiller, author of "The Fight," will have two more plays running before the end of the season. One is "Back Home," a comedy based upon stories of the same title by Irvin S. Cobb, and the other a melodrama, as yet unnamed, which is expected to be as big scenically and numerically as "The Whip."

Belle Story, a vaudeville singer, is to have the leading role in a new musical comedy to be produced by Charles Dillingham.

Tom Terriss, the English actor, is to make a tour of the United States and Canada in tabloid versions of Dickens' stories.

... known as a writer of American light comedy, has now written a play, "The Lady of Long Ago," which William A. Brady has accepted for early production.

George C. Tyler, managing director of the Liebler Company, is soon to visit India to gather material for a new and magnificent spectacle along the same lines as "The Garden of Allah."

William A. Brady has accepted a comedy from Frank Craven called "Too Many Crooks," and will produce it, with the author in the leading role.

The company engaged by Augustus Thomas for the all-star reproduction of "Paid In Full," includes Tully Marshall, Hattie Russell, Riley Hatch and George Riley.

Thomas Buchanan, formerly well ... Charles Frohman has secured the American rights to "The World Without End," a new play by Sydney Grundy, the English dramatist.

A comedy called "Marrying Money," which was produced recently in Syracuse, was written by A. Washington Pezet, an attache of the Peruvian legation in Washington and son of the Peruvian minister.

Oliver Morosco has acquired from the Adolph Philip Company the English-speaking rights of "Auction Pinochle," a musical comedy which in the German had a long run at the Philip playhouse in New York.

GAVE A FAREWELL PARTY.

Miss Helen Newell, of West Seventh street, gave a New Year's eve party at her home, Wednesday night, the affair being arranged as a farewell for her brother, Franklin Newell, who on Monday will leave for California. There were about twenty-five young people present who enjoyed dancing and games. Refreshments were served during the evening.

COUNCIL COMMITTEES.

Excellent judgment has been shown by President Clay, of the Common Council, in the make-up of his committees for the coming year. Leighton Calkins, who was chairman of the police committee last year and was a most efficient one, is given the most responsible chairmanship, that of finance, taking the place of Frederick E. Mygatt, who retired from the Council after six years' service. The streets committee chairmanship goes to Francis J. Blatz, which is wise for his place of business is in the heart of the city and one to fill that place properly should always be on hand when wanted. It is a difficult job to fill.

A. D. Edgar succeeds Fred Endress, who retired from the Council after one term, as head of the fire and buildings committee. A new member, Richard A. Claybrook, takes the helm for the public affairs committee, which will have a lot of work to do during the coming year. He is a new Democratic member and much is expected of him. Another new member, Juan A. Bacock, is named chairman of the police committee and that should prove satisfactory to everyone. Still another new member, Thomas F. Hylan, is given the chairmanship of the street lighting committee, which by the course of recent events, will find much to do.

Especially good is the selection of the license committee inasmuch as efforts will be made to induce the Common Council to depart from its annual custom of some years and add not only to the number of retail but to the list of wholesale licenses as well. Charles C. Graves is the new chairman and Thomas F. Hylan and Richard A. Claybrook are the other two members. With such a committee it would seem that there is very slim chance for the new applications.

A GOOD IDEA.

Among the recommendations made by Police Chief Kiely is one suggesting that the men on the force have some regular supervised exercise. That arrangement is in effect in other cities. As nearby a city as Montclair not only provides for exercise for the policemen but for the firemen and postmen too. The physical work is done at the Y. M. C. A. gymnasium and the expense is borne by the municipality. We see no reason why the firemen and policemen here should not be allowed the same advantage.

It is certainly good news to learn that Richard A. Claybrook has been placed as chairman of the Councilmanic public affairs committee. We may expect something done towards the solution of the garbage and ashes problem.

As he is an expressman, Fred Hand, the newly appointed recorder of North Plainfield, so the West End Avenue sage says should handle the business with dispatch.

Lost strayed or stolen—United States Senator ames E. Martine. Finder please return to Plainfield while Congress is adjourned. Washington papers please copy.

What's going to happen next? John Wanamaker, that dyed-in-the-wool Republican, praises the Democratic tariff and currency laws.

Oh, yes, of course you expressed to the retiring members of the Common Council how much you appreciated their services.

Why should we have neglected to wish Woodrow Wilson a happy new year.

BACHELOR GIRLS HOSTS AT A DANCE

Ten Couples Attended New Year's Reception in Fanwood Fire House.

The Bachelor Girls' Club, of North Plainfield, held an informal dance in the Fanwood Fire House on New Year's eve. There were about ten couples present and guests from Westfield, Fanwood, Beverly and this city.

Miss Marguerite Woolston, president of the club, had charge of the refreshments and decorations and was ably assisted by other members of the club. The hall was trimmed in red and green crepe paper with large banners on the walls. A roaring fire was kept going in the huge fire-place. Punch was served throughout the evening and shortly before the old year closed ice cream and cake were served.

Excellent music was furnished by Guttman's orchestra, of Perth Amboy, and the dance broke up in the early hours of 1914. The following persons acted as chaperones. Mrs. W. O. Taylor, Mr. and Mrs. M. E. McGrath and Mrs. Harry DeMeza. Among those present were the following: Miss Mae Woolston, of Beverly; Miss Clara Lightfoot and George Souder, George Young, Fred McDonald and Dudley Green, of Westfield; Arthur Jasparson, of Fanwood, and the Misses Aleta Spencer, Roberta Spencer, Lillian Spencer, Amelia Brizzle, Jubilee Rowley, Marquerite Woolston, Grace Woolston, Kathryn Day, Elizabeth Stephenson, and Malcolm Krewson, Percy Bailey, Russell Conroy, Harold Woolston, Allan Snyder and Frank Dunning, of this city.

DURLING SOMERVILLE COUNCIL PRESIDENT

Mayor Steele Makes Appointments When New Council Organizes.

The Somerville Council met at noon yesterday for reorganization. The only new member was Joseph Barras, who succeeds Councilman W. P. Snyder. Councilman A. B. Cline succeeded himself. Mayor Steele was sworn in office by the Borough Clerk, and Councilman Barras and Cline by the Mayor. Upon assuming the chair Mayor Steele called the Council to order. Councilman Durling was unanimously elected as president of the Council, a position which he has held since the organization of the borough. Mayor Steele named Dr. A. L. Stillwell and William R. Sutphen to succeed themselves as members of the Board of Health, and the Rev. F. J. Soule as a trustee of the Public Library to succeed himself. Assemblyman A. M. Beekman was also reappointed as Borough Attorney, Dr. C. F. Halsted as Borough Physician, and J. B. Varley as Borough Clerk, all of whom were unanimously confirmed. Mayor Steele also named Fred. Powelson as chief, Clark Alvord, first assistant; J. E. Griggs, second assistant, and Henry Weill, as third assistant of the Board of Engineers of the Borough Fire Department. These were confirmed.

It was decided to change the monthly meeting night of the Council from the second Monday night in the month to the first Monday. This was done in order that the borough marshals and other officers of the borough may receive their monthly salaries earlier in the month. The clerk was directed to notify the members of the engine company of this action, because the company usually held its meetings on that night. The Council will next meet on Monday evening, January 5.

Mrs. Patrick Campbell is to appear before a London audience soon as Pymalion in the play of that name written by Bernard Shaw.

CLAY APPOINTED HIS COMMITTEES

Calkins Finance Chairman, Babcock Police; Edgar Fire; Graves License.

BLATZ FOR STREETS

Claybrook, Public Affairs; vanHerwerden, Laws and Ordinances; Cose, Alms, and Hylan, Street Lighting—The List Complete.

The Councilmanic committees, which were announced by President George S. Clay at the first meeting of the 1914 Common Council, last night, appear to have met with the approval of all concerned, it being the opinion that Mr. Clay made wise selections, placing the members on such committees where they are likely to have an opportunity to do good work.

The important changes are in placing Mr. Calkins head of the finance committee to succeed F. E. Mygatt, who retired, giving Juan A. Babcock, a new member, first place on the police committee; making A. D. Edgar chairman of the fire and buildings committee to succeed Fred Endress, retired, and Francis J. Blatz head of the street committee in place of Mr. Mygatt and giving Thomas F. Hylan the chairmanship of the street lighting committee, which Mr. Blatz had last year. John H. Cose and C. C. Graves, old firemen, are placed on the fire and buildings committee.

The license committee is entirely new, being composed of Charles C. Graves, Thomas F. Hylan and Richard A. Claybrook. Theodore F. Martin received the Council "plum" as chairman of the auditing committee and Mr. vanHerwerden takes Mr. Blatz's place as head of the committee on laws and ordinances. Mr. Cose is made head of the alms committee and Mr. Claybrook the head of the public affairs committee. Otherwise the new men are well taken care of by the president. The committees follow:

Finance, Leighton Calkins, chairman; Richard A. Claybrook, Francis J. Blatz, Juan A. Babcock, John H. Cose; streets, Francis J. Blatz, chairman; A. D. Edgar, Cornelius vanHerwerden, Thomas F. Hylan, Richard A. Claybrook; fire and buildings, A. D. Edgar, chairman; Charles C. Graves, John H. Cose, Leigh Calkins, Theodore Martin; public affairs, Richard A. Claybrook, chairman; Juan A. Babcock, Charles C. Graves, Theodore F. Martin, Cornelius vanHerwerden; police, Juan A. Babcock, chairman; Leighton Calkins, A. D. Edgar; street light, Thomas F. Hylan, chairman; John H. Cose, Francis J. Blatz; alms, John H. Cose, chairman; Theodore F. Martin, Charles C. Graves; license, Charles C. Graves, chairman; Thomas F. Hylan, Richard A. Claybrook; laws and ordinances, Cornelius vanHerwerden, chairman; Francis J. Blatz, Juan A. Babcock; auditing, Theodore F. Martin, chairman; Thomas F. Hylan and A. D. Edgar.

DISINHERITED FOUR OF HER OFFSPRING

Somerset Court Sustains Mrs. Richman's Will Drawn by George W. V. Moy.

Somerville, Jan. 2.—Judge Beekman has handed down a decision sustaining the will and dismissing the appeal in the litigation instituted by four disherit children to prevent the probate of the will of the late Mrs. Sophia Richman. She bequeathed her entire estate to two other children, Caroline and John Richman, of North Plainfield township. The document was drawn by former Mayor G. W. V. Moy, of Plainfield, and he appeared to have its validity sustained.

The grounds upon which the disinherited children relied to have the will declared void were that the instrument had been improperly executed and that undue influence had been brought to bear on the testatrix. Mr. Moy produced witnesses to prove that before he would consent to draw the will he insisted that Mrs. Richman be examined by a physician to test her mental capacity and that this had been done by Dr. Grimberg, the house physician at Muhlenberg Hospital, where the will was made. He also showed that Mrs. Richman had explained in the presence of witnesses as a reason for making the bequests to only two of her six children was "I want the property to go to them who have been good to me."

Mrs. Richman died at the hospital on May 18 last and the will was made the day before her death. It was offered for probate the following month and an appeal was taken from the probate to the Somerset Orphans' court. The case was tried before Judge Beekman on Dec. 26.

Instant Relief When Nose and Head Are Clogged from a Cold—Stops Nasty Catarrhal Discharges—Dull Headache Vanishes.

Try "Ely's Cream Balm."

Get a small bottle anyway, just to try it. Apply a little in the nostrils and instantly your clogged nose and stopped-up air passages of the head will open; you will breathe freely; dullness and headache disappear. By ...ing the catarrh, cold-in-head or catarrhal sore throat will be gone.

End such misery now! Get the small bottle of "Ely's Cream Balm" at any drug store. ANNUAL MESSAGE OF MAYOR advantage. I most respectfully refer to your consideration the very careful report of the Street Commissioner, which deals at length with this question in all of its phases.

Fire Department.

"During the past year, the city has purchased a new up-to-date, automatic, automobile fire engine of large capacity and, we believe, efficiency. The fire department in every well regulated city should be maintained at a high state of efficiency. It is unfair, as well as unwise, to expect our fire department to meet dangerous conditions which may arise at any time, if it is not supplied with proper apparatus to successfully combat them. I believe that we should add to our paid force of regular firemen. Incidents which have come under my observation lead me to believe that we have not a sufficient force of trained men, and I think that this condition should be properly corrected.

Police Department.

"The members of the police force during the past year have received military training and drill and are, I believe, in a high state of efficiency. The police department is the most important department in the city. We are dependent upon it for the protection of our lives and property, as well as for the maintenance of the good order and the good name of our city. The city covers a large area, the beats are long, and it is difficult for the patrolmen to properly cover such large areas. I believe that there should be additional men added to this department.

Taxation.

"The rising tax rate should counsel caution. The pamphlet mailed to each tax-payer contained an analysis of the sources of this increase and the purposes for which the money had been spent and I shall not, at this time, further elaborate upon the subject except to call to our attention the necessity of strict economy in the management of our public affairs.

"It has been felt for some time that the burden of taxation has not been equally distributed among the owners of real property in this city. During the past year a commission, composed of men who are experts in land values, have been appointed, who are now at work upon a plan for the equalization of assessments, which gives great promise of relief in this direction. These men have devoted themselves most unselfishly to this great labor, which in effect amounts to an appraisal of all the separate land parcels in the city of Plainfield, without any expense to the city. I understand that the commission will soon present a report embodying their recommendations to the Council.

"The efficient work done during the past year by the Board of Health, the Playground Commission and the various organizations of this city interested in civic betterment and uplift has been universally commended. The acquiescence of the Board of Education in the suggestions contained in my last annual message in reference to a more liberal policy in the use of the school buildings is particularly satisfactory. The work which has been accomplished in giving instruction and pleasure to many whose opportunities are limited, has been a definite factor for good and tended to uplift our community. I sincerely hope that the coming year may see a continuance of the splendid work initiated during the past year.

"The reports of the heads of the respective departments of the city government have been so admirably prepared and contain such careful discussions of the questions affecting those departments that I refrain from further comment at this time and commend them to your serious consideration. I shall, with your permission, reserve to myself the privilege of sending additional communications to you in the course of the year in regard to these matters and others of public importance.

"PERCY H. STEWART, Mayor."

SWEARS ARTIFICIAL TEETH MAKE HER APPEAR OLDER

Hoboken, Jan. 2.—That her dentist had increased her apparent age twenty years was the allegation made on the witness stand in the Hoboken District Court by Miss Anna Rose, of 93 Clinton street, Hoboken.

Miss Rose is suing Dr. Henry Rosemann, a dentist of this city, for $500. She admitted on the stand she was forty years old, but asserted she looked sixty. She says that to make room for artificial teeth the dentist pulled six perfectly good ones.

PRAYERS AND SONGS USHER IN NEW YEAR

Watch-night Services Held by Local Methodist Congregations.

First Baptist Church.

The watch night service held at the First Baptist church was largely attended and full of interest. Between the hours of 8 and 9 o'clock there was a prayer meeting in charge of Rev. Dr. Philip B. Strong. The service consisted of singing, prayers and testimonies. A half-hour social time followed and at 9:30 o'clock the Normal Class, of which Mrs. Lucie E. Rising is the teacher, held its meeting and enjoyed refreshments. There were present several invited guests. The watch night service proper began at 11:30 o'clock, being under the auspices of the Christian Endeavor Society. Dr. Strong presided. There wrere prayers, testimonies and singing until midnight, when the ringing of the church bell by Robert Sherwin announced the birth of the New Year and there was a happy exchange of New Year greetings.

First and Grace M. E. Churches.

The members of the First and Grace M. E. churches held a union watch night service in Vincent chapel there being a large attendance of worshippers. The meeting began at 10 o'clock, being preceded by a short social. Rev. Dr. C. M. Anderson, the pastor of the First church, presided, and conducted the praise service, after which Rev. C. C. Cain, of Grace church, preached a sermon appropriate to the occasion. This was followed with a short address by Dr. Anderson in which there was offered some helpful New Year's suggestions. The ringing of the church bell by Isaac W. Kennedy heralded the New Year and the worshippers then spent a short time in an exchange of greetings.

PROCTOR'S FINE BILL.

The program at Proctor's for the last half of the week is unusually good. The Shanghai Troupe from Canton, China, have a marvelous act. They excell as top spinners, hand balancers, acrobats. Terry and Elliott, in "The Dope Fiend and the Cabaret Singer," have a novel character singing and talking act. Mr. and Mrs. Pasquale Mario, Italian opera singers from Milan, Italy, give a high-class program. Boyer and Marx, comedy musicians on the piano, the saxaphone and the xylophone are well received. Minerva Courtney & Co., present a western comedy sketch, "Bob's Boy Girl," a bright novel character act, and Mlle. Emma, the clever trapeze performer, with novel stunts, complete the fine bill.

He urged more enthusiasm among the residents in civic affairs and said he also hoped that many improvements needed in the town would be realized during his administration. Walter J. Hetfield, Jr., was again appointed counsellor.

Following the transaction of all business matters, an informal social time was held. The appointments follow:

Township Treasurer—Wm. Ward.
Township Counsellor—Walter L. Hetfield, Jr.
Township Engineer—Harry Van Emburgh.

FRECH LOSES PLACE AFTER LONG SERVICE

Had Been Somerset Freeholders' Counsel 27 Years—Clarence Case Successor.

Somerville, Jan. 2.—The Somerset County Board of Freeholders at Somerville yesterday concluded the business for the year, and at noon the new board met for organization. Two names were placed in nomination for director, that of Thomas Douglass, who had been director for the past year, and J. B. Opie, from Montgomery township. The first ballot resulted in a tie, 6 to 6, but Opie won out on the second ballot 7 to 5.

John A. Frech, who has been the counsel of the board for twenty-seven years, was defeated for reelection by former Judge Clarence E. Case by the vote of 8 to 4. There is a question as to whether the term of Thomas P. Gallagher, superintendent of weights and measures, expires at this time, and this matter was referred to Mr. Case for report at the meeting in February or January 13. M. H. Cleaves, of North Plainfield township is mentioned for appointment as superintendent of weights and measures.

LITTLE TALKS BY THE WANT AD MAN

Copyright, 1913, The Int. Syndicate, Baltimore.

No. 45.

ADVERTISING is a salesman that is always at work, but never wearies a customer; that call on the same man until he is convinced, but never annoys him with its insistence; that wastes no time, wastes no words, and that can always gain an audience and a hearing. Alone among salesmen, advertising has free access to the libraries of the great; it marches unchecked past the secretary of the big merchant and enters without hindrance the store of the retailer. When it cannot tell its story to a man in his office, it can always gain his attention in his home. The door of the housewife is never slammed in its face. No country is so remote, no village is so dead, that it does not go there for orders and get them—Saturday Evening Post.

Tell me, suppose you want a job, or want to sell your house, or want to rent an apartment, or want domestic help, or want—anything—can you think of a quicker, less expensive, more direct way of getting that want before the people than through a little Want Ad?

Classified advertising is always at work. It does not weary a customer, because that customer turns to it of his own free will. It does not annoy him with his insistence; rather, it pleases him with its concise information. It wastes no words, It gets its message across, and instantly. It has access to the hearts of the people because it reflects the needs of the people.

Want Ad. advertising in the columns of this newspaper gains attention in offices, in homes, in city, in country—wherever people have that which they do not want and want that which they do not have. No door is ever slammed in its face.

And say—isn't that a pretty good way to get YOUR want over the line?

ART TREASURES OF WORLD GATHERED FOR PANAMA-PACIFIC INTERNATIONAL EXPOSITION; SUPERB SCULPTURE AND MURAL PAINTINGS TO ADORN GREAT COURTS

©PANAMA-PACIFIC INTERNATIONAL EXPO. CO

Specimens of Wonderful Sculpture and A. Stirling Calder, Director.

Manifestations of the artistic phases of man's progress will be extraordinarily diverse at the Panama-Pacific Exposition. Sculpture has come into greater use at each exposition and at San Francisco in 1915 will be employed to far greater extent than heretofore. In the Palace of Fine Arts there will be displayed from Europe many of the famous paintings of the old masters. Many national and private galleries will contribute loans and many works never permitted to leave Europe will be shown. Already 350 world famous paintings have been promised. The masterpieces of the greatest artists of today also will be shown. Several hundred thousand dollars have been appropriated for mural paintings, the preliminary working sketches for most of which are completed. Included in the list of mural painters are such celebrated names as Frank Brangwyn, Childe Hassam, William de L. Dodge, Frank Du Mond, Edward Simmons, Robert Reid, Arthur F. Matthews and Charles Halloway. Many of the panels will be 100 feet in length, some even larger. Some of the most marvelous works of art to be shown will be those presented from the Orient. All the paintings will carry out one grand exposition color scheme.

MISS M'CANN NOW IS MRS. MATTHEWS

Wedding Ceremony at St. Mary's Church, Two Priests Officiating.

Miss Katharine McCann, daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Charles McCann, of West Third street, and Albert E. J. Matthews, also of this city, were married at 6 o'clock last night, at St. Mary's church, in the presence of a large gathering of relatives and friends. Father Vincent Sciolla performed the ceremony, assisted by Father Bernard M. Bogan. The wedding march was played by Miss Mary Smith, and the vested choir sang.

The bride wore a gown of white satin, with shadow lace and pearl trimmings and she carried a prayer-book. The bridesmaid, Miss Anna Daley, wore an embroidered gown with pink underdress and carried pinks. The best man was Charles S. McCann, brother of the bride, and the ushers were Edward J. McCann, a brother, and Allen J. Squier, brother-in-law of the bride.

A reception followed at the home of the bride on West Third street, there being about one hundred guests.

Mr. and Mrs. Matthews are enjoying a wedding trip. They will reside here. Mr. Matthews is employed as a foreman at the plant of the Potter Printing Press Works, and both he and his wife are prominent in local Catholic circles. He has been a member of the choir of St. Mary's church for several years. The bride received a large number of gifts.

LABOR MEN TRYING TO END LONG STRIKE

Will Submit to Arbitration, They Say.

Lansing, Mich., Jan. 2.—After a conference of labor leaders here Clarence S. Darrow, counsel for the Western Federation of Miners, asked Governor Ferris to send a telegram to Mr. Shaw, president of the Calumet and Hecla Mining company, requesting him to come to Lansing for a conference relative to settlement of the strike controversy in the Michigan copper mining district.

If Mr. Shaw refuses to accept the invitation Darrow asked the governor to send him a letter urging him to agree to arbitration. Mr. Darrow's suggestion for arbitration was for the miners to name two men, the operators to select two, and the appointment of a fifth arbitrator be left to President Wilson or Governor Ferris. If this is not satisfactory, Darrow said, the strikers would be willing to submit their case to an arbitration board selected entirely by the president or the governor.

The labor leaders submitted their propositions to the governor. He did not decide immediately upon what course he would pursue, but said he would send some kind of a communication to the head of the Calumet and Hecla Mining company.

Washington, Jan. 2.—The secretary of labor, Mr. Wilson, sent a telegram to E. C. Bright, president of the Globe Miners' union, Globe, Ariz., replying to a charge that the labor department was "inactive in the face of the Calumet crisis.

"The department of labor has neither been inactive nor academic," says Secretary Wilson, "in dealing with the Calumet strike situation. Representatives of the department have been for months and are now actively engaged in gathering information relative to the strike and in efforts to bring about a satisfactory settlement of the difficulty."

MAYOR ADDRESSES DUNELLEN COUNCIL

Latham, New Executive, Tells of Program and Announces Appointments.

Mayor E. B. Latham at the organization meeting of the Dunellen Council, yesterday noon, in a short address said that his aim during his administration would be to make the borough greater and bigger in every way possible. The new executive, who was the candidate of two parties at the November election, was greeted with cheers when he spoke to the councilmen and a large number of citizens. The general spirit of the holiday was noticed in the handshaking which followed the transaction of business matters.

In addressing the Council, Mayor Latham said:

"As I made no promises before election, I feel if I do not promise much at this time, the things which I want to do will not have to be answered for later if I had it impossible to carry them through. In fact I do not believe in making promises far into the future, as conditions many times change even the best intentions.

"The Council as constituted, and myself as Mayor, are thoroughly in accord for good government of the borough, and with the hearty support of the citizens, will see that each and every one will have an equal standing, one with the other. We want every citizen to keep a watchful eye at all times for anything that will tend to be of benefit to the borough. Suggestions can be made to the respective committees or myself. Great care, however, should be exercised not to make suggestions or demands which might impose hardships on some, and upon the taxpayers as a whole, therefore you should analyze carefully each proposed project, never losing sight of the borough's resources and ability to carry it through to a successful completion, and to the mutual good of all citizens.

"Two very important improvements confront your incoming administration, viz: sewers and schools. I shall endeavor to keep the public informed as to their progress from time to time either through the local press or otherwise. What your officials need most is the hearty support and co-operation of the citizens of the whole borough, working with but one object in view, and that for the welfare and upbuilding of our whole structure. If we all do our duty as citizens, I can see no reason why Dunellen within a few short years should not be one of the most promising boroughs along the line of the Jersey Central."

The Mayor's appointments were popular ones. Prominent among the changes are the appointment of Patrick J. Tarpey as chief marshal to take the place of William J. Davenport, and I. G. Smalley as street commissioner in place of Goldson Smalley.

The appointments follow: Borough clerk, William P. Deering (reappointed); counsellor, Rene F. vonMinden; recorder, David T. Campbell; chief marshal, Patrick J. Tarpey; marshal, Owen Mohan; first assistant marshal, David P. McCauley; second assistant marshal, William Snyder; overseer of the poor, Louis F. Snyder; borough engineer, Lewis T. Churchill; street commissioner, I. G. Smalley.

The councilmen are John Bolard, William Shrively, F. G. Neighbor, William Castner, Richard M. Ryan and E. M. Jones.

COURT ORDERS SALE TO RECOVER CLAIM

Lattimer Estate Heirs Lose Suit Against Executors—To Advertise Hotel.

Heirs of the late Sarah M. Lattimer, who died twenty-eight years ago, leaving a fortune estimated at over $1,000,000, have lost their suit against the executors, William Shotwell, J. Fred McDonald and Nelson Runyon, to recover $21,500 alleged to be due as the amount of a mortgage placed for investment on the Netherwood Hotel, and on which they have been unable to secure a return of their moneys through foreclosure proceedings. This decision was made this morning in the Orphans' Court, Elizabeth, by Judge Connelly, whose opinion stated that the heirs could not hold the executors responsible for losses on money invested in good property in their interests.

Former Senator Charles A. Reed, of the law firm of Reed & Hetfield, and John Powers represented the executors, and William A. Coddington and George Anderson were counsel for the plaintiffs.

When the mortgage was placed as an investment on the Netherwood Hotel, that hostelry was doing a thriving business, which has since declined and the place is closed.

The Judge ordered that the building be advertised for sale so that the money could be realized.

MONROE AVENUE CHURCH.

Beginning at 8:30 o'clock, the watch-night service was held at the Monroe Avenue M. E. church, Wednesday night, a general social time, including the playing of games being the first feature, this part of the program being in charge of the Epworth League Society. At 10 o'clock a song service began. Walter McGee, superintendent of the Sunday-school, spoke on "Memories of the Past;" Edward Beekman on "Our Personal Assets," and the pastor, Rev. Frederick J. Hubach, on "The Future." A consecration service followed. As the old year was waning and the new year close at hand, those present formed a circle singing, "Come Let Us Anew Our Journey Pursue," and "Blessed Be the Tie That Binds." Several of the older members of the church told of the early history of the church, and the meeting culminated with the serving of refreshments. Calendars were distributed.

DANCE AT WATCHUNG.

The membership of the National Brotherhood of Operative Potters is taking a referendum vote on a proposal to divide the $530,000 defense fund, exclusive of $25,000, equally among the locals of the organzation

The Massachusetts State branch of the International Union of Stationery Engineers voted at its recent annual convention in favor of the establishment of a State-wide uniform wage scale for engineers.

The biennial convention of the Bricklayers, Plasterers and Masons' International Union will meet in Houston, Texas, January 12. A proposal to affiliate with the American Federation of Labor will be one of the principal matters of discussion.

The International Typographical Union has more than $600,000 invested in first class securities in the United States and Canada, the money being the reserve funds credited to the mortuary, benefit and general account of the organization.

Labor unions in London have under consideration a project to build a $1,000,000 structure to serve as the general headquarters of their organizations. It is proposed to include in the building a club, office accommodations for fifty unions, a large hall and storerooms.

Under the arbitration contract between the Boot and Shoe Workers' Union and the Massachusetts State Board of Conciliation and Arbitration the latter has awarded an increase of 15 to 25 cents per day for sole leather cutters in Brockton shoe factories.

In his annual report the head of the New York State Department of Labor says: "The progress of the movement for shorter hours is strikingly shown by the fact that 20 per cent. of the State's factory operatives are working less than fifty-two hours per week, and 46 per cent. between fifty-two and fifty-eight hours."

EAT LESS MEAT IF BACK HURTS

Take a Glass of Salts to Flush Kidneys if Bladder Bothers You.

Eating meat regularly eventually produces kidney trouble in some form or other, says a well-known authority, because the uric acid in meat excites the kidneys, they become overworked; get sluggish; clog up and cause all sorts of distress, particularly backache and misery in the kidney region, rheumatic twinges, severe headaches, acid stomach, constipation, torpid liver, sleeplessness, bladder and urinary irritation.

The moment your back hurts or kidneys aren't acting right, or if bladder bothers you, get about four ounces of Jad Salts from any good pharmacy; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys will then act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for generations, to flush clogged kidneys and stimulate them to normal activity; also to neutralize the acids in the urine so it no longer irritates, thus ending bladder disorders.

Jad Salts cannot injure anyone; makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink which millions of men and women take now and then to keep the kidneys and urinary organs clean, thus avoiding serious kidney disease

COLLEGIANS FELL HEAVY THIS TIME

New York University Defeated by Local Y. M. C. A. Boys in Fast Game.

LED IN FIRST PERIOD

Previous Victory of 21 to 20 Duplicated in Speedy, Clean-cut Battle on the Local Floor—Opponents Were Evenly Matched.

Stacking up against the New York University forces for the second time this season, the Plainfield Y. M. C. A. basketball team duplicated its previous performance last night and trimmed the collegians to the tune of 22 to 14. Although behind by four points at the conclusion of the first half, which was played with college rules, the local boys gradually rang up a winning margin and at the end were far out in front.

Superior all-around basketball won for the locals who put up one of their best games of the season. The New Yorkers considerably outweighed the Queen City crew but the pace proved too fast toward the end and a fast spurt in the final minutes of play hung up a hard earned verdict. Moulton led the local point winners while Captain Helfant and Lipman did some good all around work for the visitors.

The score:

MAJOR LEAGUES START SEASON ON APRIL 14

Chicago, Jan. 2.—President B. B. Johnson and Secretary Harridge, of the American League, left for French Lick, Ind., yesterday, where they will meet Barney Dreyfuss, of the Pittsburgh National League team, and Secretary Heydler, of the National League, and prepare the playing schedule for 1914 of the National and American Leagues.

President Johnson said the American League season would open April 14 and probably would close October 7. The National League season will open April 14 and probably close aboua October 5.

PELKY PUT TO REST BY "GUNBOAT" SMITH

Winner Crowned King of the White Hopes Following Great Ring Battle.

San Francisco, Jan. 2.—There were no knockdowns in the Gunboat Smith-Arthur Pelkey fight yesterday afternoon until the fifteenth round, and then two in succession brought victory to Smith. The round was still young when Smith, after breaking from a clinch, let fly a full-sweep right for Pelkey's jaw. It was a blow that Pelkey had avoided probably half a hundred times by ducking or allowing his head to roll in the preceding rounds. But this time the Gunner reached the mark squarely and the Canadian sprawled under the ropes at the ring edge.

He tried to gather himself together and directly he arose, he lurched toward Smith, intent on clinching. Smith dealt him a downward chop with the right on the back of the head and Pelkey measured his length on the floor a second time. Game to the last, Arthur tried to run a race with the time keeper, but was not properly on his legs before the fatal word "out" sounded. For his own sake it was just as well, for he was thoroughly defenseless and he would have received another stiffening smash from the hard-hitting Gunner.

LEACH CROSS FLOORED ANDERSON IN SEVENTH

Los Angeles, Jan. 2.—Leach Cross made a triphammer start of his professional work for 1914, scoring a clean-cut knockout victory over Bud Anderson in the seventh round of a scheduled twenty-round battle in the Vernon arena of the Pacific A. C., yesterday afternoon.

Flopped into a sitting posture on the east side of the ring, his arms hanging limp at his side and his neck bent far back over the lower rope, looking for all the world like a headless billiken, game little "Bud" met his finish. Three times in this round the pride of Medford went tumbling to the canvas. The first knockdown and "Bud" calmly sat in the middle of the ring and gazed up into the fog while Referee George Blake made the count. While one of Anderson's seconds was squeezing out a sponge with the intention of sailing it into the ring Cross lashed out with his right, which landed squarely against Anderson's chin.

CHURCHBOYS COULD SCORE BUT FOUR POINTS IN GAME

In a game of basketball on the Holy Cross Parish House court yesterday afternoon, the Watchung A. C. quintet hung up a 40 to 4 verdict at the expense of the Holy Cross boys' team.

The game was a farce from start to finish, the heavy mountaineers outplaying their rivals at all times. Lunger and Day were the only scorers for the churchboys, the former getting a field goal and the latter two foul goals.

BRYNAIRSKI HAS QUIT BASKETBALL

Y. M. C. A. Captain Sacrifices Pastime to Attend to Business in the Future.

GLOVER ACTING-HEAD

Leader For Two Years and One of the Three Veterans of the Team, Brynairski's Retirement Is a Sad Blow to the Team.

Few who witnessed the basketball game in the Y. M. C. A. last night, knew that Captain Albert Brynairski, of the Association quintet, was playing his last basketball game, and even his fellow players were surprised by the announcement he made public following the contest with the New York University five last night. Brynairski, who has captained the Y. M. C. A. five for two years and played on it for six, has recognized the old adage, "Business Before Pleasure," and in the future he will stick to business and sacrifice this favorite pastime.

During the time he has been a member of the team Brynairski has been a star guard and one of the best all-around performers on the aggregation. Last year, besides captaining the Y. M. C. A. outfit, he played guard for the Plainfield High School team, and was the most valuable man on the team during that season. While he will still be interested in the Association five, Brynairski's interest will be confined to that of a spectator alone and his place at guard will be filled by Bill Peacock and Jack Farmer.

Following the announcement made last night the team elected Myrton Glover as temporary captain and it is probable that his election will be made a permanent one at the next meeting as he is the next oldest player in the point of service. Three members of the present team have played with the aggregation since it was first formed six years ago, Brynairski, Glover and McNamee being the veteran trio, and as Glover has acted as temporary captain in other season's in the absence of the captain, he is entitled to the honor as successor to Brynairski.

"INSIDE" EFFORTS TO CHEAT FITZ OUT OF ANOTHER CHANCE

Still convinced that his ring career is unfinished and defying any living man to stack up against him in a ring encounter, Bob Fitzsimmons who hides in a Dunellen wilderness during off hours, dropped into this office Wednesday afternoon and berated every individual having anything to do with the boxing game in New York State. "They are a bunch of robbers, conspirators and liars," said the big fellow, "and the whole job was 'fixed' long before the meeting last Tuesday afternoon."

When we suggested that he leave the New York State Commission flat on its back and trek it to the wilds of Pennsylvania or fight an exhibition in this State the old man scoffed at the idea and averred that the rulings of the Empire State Board would affect his fighting in any part of the country. Despite Bob's invitation to the "Public Safety Commission" to come to Plainfield with any living scrapper and view him in true life, the "high court" refused to grant him a hearing and turned him down flat, using the telephone as a means of notifying him of their decision rather than meet him face to face. He angrily insists that he will seek justice in the civic courts and his manager, Johnny Meek, is now making arrangements to get out a writ.

Summing up the conditions surrounding the meeting in Park row Tuesday afternoon it looks as though the commission fails to appreciate the ability of the greatest fighter who ever donned a pair of gloves and their action appears to be taken in behalf of the white hopes whom they are fostering and do not want to become extinct. It is safe to say that a couple of those who had a vote in the decision that places the "Lanky Robert" on the shelf, could not distinguish between a pair of boxing gloves and a pair of mittens, and this in itself is a disgrace to the game as it is being promoted in the Empire State.

While we fail to see how Bob or his manager can accomplish anything by applying to the courts as the State Commission is vested with the sole direction, management, control of and jurisdiction over all boxing and sparring matches in the State of New York by the Frawley Law, we would like nothing better than to see the greatest scrapper of them all don another pair of punching tools and lambast one of the present day white hopes.

Few of those who are criticizing the ex-heavyweight champion for his efforts to "come-back" and start a house-cleaning campaign in the white hope camp have seen the giant in action on the roped and rosined platform for a number of years and a trip to his training quarters in this city might prove a valuable afternoon's diversion to the Naughtons, St. Dennis, Lyons and Harveys. "Fitz" has the same old punch with an added amount of cunning and his training bouts are far from tame. Among the "exempts" of the prize ring there is not one with the physical fitness which the local man cherishes and his efforts to undervalue a bunch of incapables in the white hope tent have been ridiculed by those who base their assertions on what other men have done when they pass the half century mark and fail to recognize the fact that there are exceptions to every rule.

TOWNSEND HARRIS FIVE VS. N. P. H. S.

New York Schoolboys Booked to Appear in Borough Tomorrow Afternoon.

North Plainfield High School will open athletic relations with the Townsend Harris High School, of New York city, in Saengerbund Hall tomorrow afternoon, when the Boroughites' basketball five will lineup against the Metropolitan school boys. The Townsend Harris crew is recognized as one of the strongest in New York schoolboy circles and the Canadians will have their hands full in preserving their unblemished string of victories.

The N. P. H. S. five, despite rumors to the contrary, will lineup the same as it has in the past and frequent practices under the direction of Coach Paul R. Collier has put the team on edge for the big battle of the year.

ATHLETES IN COMPETITION.

New York, Jan. 2.—Judging from the list of entries, the junior national indoor track and field championships of the A. A. U., which are to take place tomorrow night at the Thirteenth Regiment Armory, in Brooklyn, will be one of the most successful meets of its kind ever held. Star performers from many of the leading colleges of the East are to be included among the contestants, together with club athletes from Buffalo, Boston, Cleveland, Pittsburgh, Philadelphia and a number of other cities. The program of the evening will be made up of ten events, as follows: Sixty-yard dash, 220-yard dash, 600-yard run, 1000-yard run, two-mile run, twelve-pound shot put, running high jump, standing broad jump and sixty-yard high hurdle.

HUNT CLUB CLOSES SEASON WITH FINE RUN

The regular schedule of the fall season of the Watchung Hunt Club closed yesterday with the New Year's run, after four continuous months of the best hunting in the history of this well-known organization. From now on until the spring season opens there will be an occasional run as weather conditions permit.

The hounds were met at 10 o'clock yesterday morning at the Oak Tree schoolhouse. They were cast in nearby, leading the field by the way of the outskirts of Metuchen to Iselin, where the first check was made. The country in this line was rough, there being much ice, which made the "take offs" and landings at the fences treacherous, but all fortunately negotiated them without an accident.

At Iselin the hounds were lifted and after a short distance on the road were cast in near the Pennsylvania Railroad tracks on the Kountze farm, covering a distance of about eight miles and checking at Potter's Crossing. Those in the field who finished were: Rufus C. Finch, M. F. H., Lawrence B. Smith, Henry L. Finch, Rufus H. Towner, William Palmer Smith, Jr., Samuel D. French and Huntsman Harrison.

LOCAL MAN CHOSEN TO GIVE DECISIONS

E. L. Mackenzie Will Act as Judge in New York Bench Show Next Month.

E. L. Mackenzie, of Belvidere avenue, a member of the Plainfield Kennel Club, has been selected to act in the capacity of judge of Scottish deerhounds at the thirty-eighth annual bench show of the Westminister Kennel Club, which will be held at Grand Central Palace, New York February 22 to 26 inclusive. There will be twenty-five of the best known canine experts in the country giving decisions in the various classes, twenty being American experts, while five will come from Europe and Canada.

Each of the judges will pass upon breeds characteristic of the country they represent. Mr. Mackenzie is a tancier of Scottish deerhounds and has acted as judge at a number of previous shows both in this State and in New York.

TWO GAMES FOR HOPE CHAPEL FOLLOWERS

Mt. Pleasant and Newark Will Furnish the Rival Forces on Hope Court.

Two games of basketball have been arranged by Manager George Leighs to be played on the Hope Chapel court tomorrow night, the first team meeting the Roseville Presbyterian Church five, of Newark, and the second team lining up against the Mt. Pleasant representatives in the preliminary attraction. The Hope team has been subjected to a lay-off since the double victory of Christmas afternoon, but Coach Jack Martin has been keeping his men in condition with frequent drills and expects to resume the win habit tomorrow night.

The Mt. Pleasant boys have a strong outfit and their appearances on the Scotch Plains court seem to indicate that they will prove a worthy foe for the fast traveling Hope seconds.

The lineups:

HOPE CHAPEL		ROSEVILLE
T. Heron	Forward	B. Lindsay
J. Heron	Forward	Van Crane
Doig	Center	Van Valen
Leighs	Guard	H. Moffat
Snyder	Guard	Walker

A new popular-priced vaudeville theatre is being erected in Chicago at a cost of $200,000. It will have a seating capacity of 1,600 and will be equipped with all modern improvements. The house will bear the name of the American Theater and will be opened about the first of next August.

Fifty-fourth SALE of WHITE--Original

Surely the Most Original of All

506 styles of Nightgowns
282 styles of Combinations
91 styles of Chemises
371 styles of Corset Covers
417 styles of Drawers
71 styles of Princess Slips
158 styles of Petticoats

55,080 garments all told. Each one snowily fresh. Each one selected. Each one of specified materials of Wanamaker quality. Each one made in sanitary workshops.

Thirty-six years ago we inaugurated in America the White Sale.

In 1878 the Sale was full of muslin underclothes. The things that most interested women in it then were that buttons were pearl; garments were plenty wide, materials were good and durable; trimmings were heavy embroideries that would wear well.

Ever since the Wanamaker White Sale has been steadily improving. Materials have softened and become sheer. Styles have grown slim and straight like the outer garments. Women prefer becoming underclothes to those that are merely durable—and the Wanamaker White Sale mirrors this change.

Two years ago we decided to make the White Sale more like Paris

Today the Wanamaker White Sale contains hundreds of Paris-like garments with exquisite copies of real lace and plenty of the beautiful hand-made Valenciennes.

You will see them everywhere.

Pretty things at $1, $1.50, $2, $2.50 and on up to $22.50.

Many times cheaper than the Paris garments would be and yet exactly duplicating the Paris garments.

These First Days of the Sale

This White Sale is planned to last a full month. Yet women who like to have the best choice will choose now.

Now every pretty style is here. Now any size can be had in every garment. Now everything is fresh and unhandled.

Every garment is better than can be usually secured at the sale prices.

Every garment is made over our own measurements, so that it will fit as well as any from our regular stocks.

It has taken six months to prepare this sale. Carefully cut, well made garments are not to be had in a minute.

COPS MAY HAVE GYM PRIVILEGE

Mail Carriers May Also Be Included in Movement Suggested by Chief Kiely.

In his annual reports presented to the Common Council this week Chief of Police Patrick S. Kiely suggests physical exercise for the policemen at least twice a week and as a result Physical Director E. C. Ostlin of the Y. M. C. A. is contemplating the establishing of a class composed of policemen and postmen to meet twice or three times each week. This department of Y. M. C. A. work has proven a great success in other towns of this size, notably in Montclair where George L. Listman, formerly of the local Association, is now physical director and its success here is almost a foregone conclusion.

In Montclair every member of the police force and all of the postoffice corps are provided by the city with memberships to the Association and the physical department has a systematic schedule of events particularly adaptable to men of this class. Recreative games and calisthenics of a nature which are helpful to the city employe in his daily routine of work are provided and the class has aroused a large amount of interest from the public in general.

Several years ago in this city a similar movement was started and for one season it was enthusiastically received by the policemen principally. The bluecoats took advantage of the opportunities offered them for muscular development and sought the recreation which the Association planned for them. As the result of the establishment of this class a number of exceptional athletes were developed on the force and several took part in various Metropolitan meets with marked success. It is a recognized fact in every city of this size that the police force is composed of some of the municipalities' best all around athletes and recreation thus provided brings out the hidden talent in the towns.

A revival of the Y. M. C. A. privileges would be welcomed by the bluecoats and a canvas among the mail carriers indicates that enthusiasm would be forthcoming from this corps also.

ALTHOUGH OUTWEIGHED LEVINSKY SCORES K. O.

Battling Levinsky, the clever young light heavyweight from Philadelphia, added another knockout to his list yesterday afternoon at the Atlantic Garden, in Manhattan, when he put away Tom Daly, of Omaha, in the second round. Daly weighed in at 216 pounds, while Levinsky's weight was announced as 168 pounds. The bout was a mere walk-over for Levinsky, who outclassed his heavier opponent.

JACK MARTIN AFFIXES HIS NAME TO CONTRACT

The Federal League offers no inducement to Jack Martin, the local ball player, according to his own statements, and he is one of the few players big league managers are not losing sleep over. Jack has very considerately sent his signed contract to the Boston National League manager and he has assured the Braves' leader that he will be right on the job when the spring training trip starts.

Martin has had quite a variety of a southern scenery during his career as a ball-player began, having been South with the Yankees, and Rochester and now goes to the warmer clime in a Hub uniform.

TOO COLD FOR GIRLS TO PLAY BASKETBALL

Because of the cold weather the manager of the Roselle Park High School girls' basketball team has cancelled the game with the borough girls that was to be played tomorrow afternoon at that place. The hall that the Roselle girls play in is unheated and the manager stated that in such weather as this it is unfit to play in.

Manager Lillian Spencer has been trying to arrange another game with Bernardsville and as yet has no other contest booked for tomorrow.

CARLSTROM GOES TO MONTREAL.

Official announcement that Albin Carlstrom, shortstop for the Plainfield baseball team during the Central New Jersey League championship race of last season, is to play with the Montreal International League Club next season was sent out by the Boston Red Sox yesterday.

Carlstrom was purchased from Lawrence by Boston and later farmed out to Montreal. He played first base for the Lawrence New England Leaguers last season and was one of the best hitters and most consistent fielders on the team.

NEW YORK AMUSEMENTS

The fifth week of "The Things That Count" begins at William A. Brady's Playhouse, which is full at every performance. This is an encouraging condition as showing that there is a reawakening of desire for drama without sex problems or vice illustrations—which has seemed to be in doubt for the greater part of the current season until now.

Brady foresaw this change in public sentiment early in what appeared to be the insatiable rush for extreme sensationalism upon the stage and with characteristic energy prepared to meet it. "The Things That Count" has turned out to fulfill all the requirements of those who do not approve of stage exhibitions of things that shock, or have had enough of them. It is a strong, interesting drama in which laughter and tears alternate so closely as to be almost coincident, and yet there is no villainy or scheming to anyone's injury, no evil of any kind. The play has received the formal endorsement of division heads of the New York Department of Education, of some thirty prominent clergymen of the Drama Society, and of many well known private citizens, not alone by reason of its freedom from guile but also on account of its high value as a drama.

Take Care of Your Pipes.

The condition of the drains and pipes in a house is of the greatest importance to every household. When the pipes freeze, the family realizes the importance of pipes; at other times it too often forgets it.

To begin with frozen pipes: If they are very hard frozen, send for the plumber. Don't risk bursted pipes for the sake of saving a few cents, for the water escaping from the bursted pipes will probably do more damage than the money you have saved will pay for.

But if the freezing is not very hard, thaw it out yourself. Dip flannel cloths in boiling water, and lay these cloths along the pipes. Keep the tap open so that the water, the minute it begins to run, will have an outlet.

If the freezing has taken place in the exposed part of the pipes in the kitchen, bind this part of the pipes with hot cloths. Fill a dipper or a basin with hot water and hold this under the elbows in the pipe under the sink, so that the pipe is in the water. Pour hot water over the faucets, as the freezing may simply be there.

The best thing to do about frozen pipes is to prevent them. Leave a tiny running stream on very cold nights, for running water will not freeze unless the cold is intense. This wastes a little water, but it saves a good deal of trouble and possibly a plumber's bill.

For Clean Drain Pipes.

The cleanliness of the drain pipes in a house is of great importance, and a matter to which ignorant servants pay little attention.

To begin with, the sink pipe should be protected by some sort of strainer, through which every bit of waste water should be poured. Grease can safely be poured down this pipe, but it should be accompanied and followed by a thorough flushing of boiling hot water, for it is grease that begins most of the clogging of pipes. A little grease hardens in the pipe and this attracts every bit of lint or any other solid that goes through the pipe, and in the course of time more grease piles upon the original bit—and in the end the pipe is stopped.

So always flush the pipe with boiling water. Besides this, pour down the pipe a strongly alkaline wash at least once a week, and oftener if there is any indication of clogging. Washing soda dissolved in hot water makes a good wash for this purpose.

If the pipe is actually clogged, and the sink has filled with water, the first thing to do is to bail out the water. Then heat plenty of water to the boiling point. Remove the little grating over the pipe, if possible, and run a long wire as far down the pipe as possible. Then pour down the boiling hot soda water. If there are no results, tie a strip of cloth about the end of a broom handle and use the handle for a pump. Push it down the pipe and work it up and down rapidly. The suction works as a pump does, and dislodges the obstruction, generally. Then clean the pipe out with boiling water and soda.

If you have any doubt about your drain pipes and think there is a leak in them, through which gases escape into the house, this is a way to find out. Pour a bit os essence of peppermint into the entrance of the pipe. If you smell the peppermint at a distance from the entrance of the pipe, you may be sure there is a leak.

Practical Fashion Hints

By Alice Gibson

It is comparatively easy to make a smart little coat for the small girl this winter, materials lend themselves so well and so few trimmings are required. If one of the double faced materials is used for the coat no lining is needed, another thing that simplifies matters. When the face of the material is plaid or a contrasting color, attractive revers and collar are accomplished without any extra material. The edges may be bound with a silk braid and the buttonholes also bound with braid. No. 7048 is a design that is suitable for reversible materials. It closes at the side front and may be buttoned close up to the throat or be turned back in revers effect. A feature of the one piece sleeve is the extension, which may be turned back to form a cuff.

This coat may be made in size 10 with 2½ yards of 42 inch material.

The pattern is cut in five sizes, 6 to 14.

This Is a Perfect Pattern.

Be sure to state correct size, passing the tape around the fullest part of the chest well up under the arms.

It may be obtained by filling out the coupon and enclosing 15 cents in stamps or coin to the Pattern Department of this paper.

Some Cookery Suggestions

SOME DESSERT JELLIES.

DAINTY jellies which make nice desserts may be prepared with the fruits now at hand. Fruits are so wholesome that they should be served in some form at every meal.

Grapefruit Jelly.—Soak some grapefruit rind overnight in limewater. In the morning put in fresh water, changing the water until all bitterness is removed. Slice the fruit pulp after cutting off with sharp knife the white tissue and place with the rind in jelly kettle. In proportion to one grapefruit use one quart of cold water and cook down to one-third pint of juice. Strain and add sugar in proportion of a little more than measure for measure.

A Simple Dessert.

Apple Jelly.—Take a pound of apples, an ounce of gelatin, one lemon, four ounces of sugar and half a pint of water. Peel, core and cut the apples into small pieces. Grate the lemon rind, squeeze and strain the lemon juice. Put the apples, lemon rind, lemon juice, sugar and water into a saucepan and simmer till the apples are reduced to a pulp. Rub them through a fine sieve. Dissolve the gelatin in two tablespoonfuls of water, strain and add to the apples. Rinse a mold with cold water, pour in the apple mixture and put it aside to cool. When firm turn it out and serve.

Must Be Served Quickly.

Pineapple Jelly.—Soak two-thirds of a box of gelatin for an hour in enough cold water to cover it. Shred or chop fine two small pineapples. Strain over the fruit the juice of one lemon and stir through it one pint of granulated sugar. Add a pint of boiling water to the soaked gelatin, and when it is dissolved pour it over the fruit. Put into a mold which has been wet with cold water and place on the ice until it hardens. Serve with whipped cream or boiled custard.

A Wholesome Sweet.

Fig Jelly.—Take a half pound of figs, a pint and a quarter of water, a half ounce of gelatin, two ounces of powdered sugar, the grated rind and juice of a lemon and a few drops of cochineal. Put the figs, sugar, grated lemon rind and water in a saucepan and let them simmer very gently till the figs are tender. Take out the figs, cut them into small pieces and remove any hard stalks. Dissolve the gelatin in a little of the sirup, strain and add it to rest of the sirup. Put in the chopped figs and the lemon juice and put the mixture away in a cool place till it begins to thicken, stirring it occasionally. Pour it into a wetted mold and leave it till firm. Dip the mold in and out of hot water and turn the jelly into a glass dish. Serve alone or with custard.

Daddy's Bedtime Story—

The Finding of The Perfect White Pearl.

"TELL us a story about a little girl," said Evelyn.

"Well," said daddy, "shall we let Evelyn have the choice this evening because she is a little girl herself?"

"Yes, indeed!" replied Jack, and daddy began:

"Once upon a time there was a little girl named Mary Carey, who worked all day in a great big store in the city. Mary Carey was only ten years old, but she served as a little messenger girl. Whenever any of the grand ladies gave large paper bills for something they had bought Mary Carey would run and get the change. In fact, Mary Carey seemed to be running about all the time from half past 8 in the morning until 6 at night.

"But Mary Carey's mother was not strong. She was growing weaker every day, and her cough was getting worse. She kept up a long time because she knew she must, but one day she was so ill she could not get up. Poor Mary Carey could not stay home with her mother, as she was now the only one to earn anything.

"The next day was Sunday, and Mary Carey's mother insisted that Mary Carey should take a walk and get a little air, for she was getting to look pale and tired. So after much urging Mary Carey set out. She had walked quite a distance when she came to a vacant lot. She saw the remains of a vine growing along some of the rocks where the house had been, and one or two autumn daisies had grown up among the old cans and ashes that had been thrown there.

"Mary Carey walked over to the lot, as she thought she would pick the daisies and vine and have a surprise for her mother when she went back, as they both loved a flower of any kind. As she stooped to pick the flowers she saw before her a huge white something. What could it be? thought Mary Carey. She had no idea it was of any value, but as it was very pretty she put it in her pocket and then went home to take her mother the few flowers.

"When her mother saw the pure milk white stone she said: 'It's a pearl! Oh, my child, we will not be poor any more!' And she clasped her daughter and cried for joy. She told Mary Carey it was a pearl which probably had been lost there long before the house had been built and torn down.

"The next day Mary Carey took it to a jeweler, who was so delighted to have such a perfect pearl that he gave Mary Carey enough money so that she and her mother could be comfortable for the rest of their lives. And Mary Carey was the happiest little girl in the world, for she felt she had saved her precious mother's life by the finding of the pearl."

Woman's World

Cordelia Lee the Latest Violin Virtuoso.

MISS CORDELIA LEE.

Miss Cordelia Lee is the latest woman violinist of note to appear on the American musical horizon. Not only is this charming western girl a musician, but she is exceptionally beautiful and unaffected. Eight years away from the prairies of Dakota and from the city of Minneapolis have in no way changed Miss Lee. She has acquired no affectations from Paris, Berlin or St. Petersburg, but still clings to the same natural, broad tone which one expects to find in the folks of the middle west.

Since going abroad Miss Lee has learned to love the Russians. It matters not what may be said about the people of the czar, Miss Lee evidently found all that was good in the big empire. In fact, she appeared in St. Petersburg and Moscow four times in one season and each time was a tremendous success. So it is no wonder she loves Russia and its people.

When asked about Russian audiences Miss Lee replied: "The Russians are the greatest music lovers in the world. Even the peasants know good music and how to appreciate it. To hear them applaud and see them wave their handkerchiefs and hats—well, I think they often spoil young artists."

Miss Lee has studied with the greatest teachers in France and Germany and has played to audiences in all the large cities of the continent. One of her favorite cities in Europe is Helsingfors, Finland. That is a wonderful musical center in the eyes of this young violinist. It is a city of only 25,000, but it supports two magnificent orchestras. Everybody there goes to hear good music, and it is a not uncommon sight, says Miss Lee, to see a dozen fishermen and their wives standing in line at the box office. The members of the peasant class in Finland enjoy the best musical scores just the same as conservatory graduates.

Simple Life In Official Washington.

Back to the old fashioned pink tea.

Back to the simple festivities of long ago.

Back to the old fashioned country cooking, the good old southern cooking, to be exact.

All these will be in Washington this winter.

Late advices from the capital hint at a revolution in social functions. An era of true democratic simplicity will be the vogue, and a return to the simple life is at hand.

Pink teas will be followed by dancing. Formal functions will be confined to a few affairs, and these will be as informal as courtesy will allow.

Menus at the affairs will also be simple. French chefs and English butlers will go their way with the social secretaries.

Sugar cured ham, fried chicken, corn bread, poundcake, homemade creams and confections, hot biscuits and all the other delectables that were served by good old southern Dinahs will grace the company boards this winter.

Society women are already hunting through the attic for their cookbooks from every state south of Mason and Dixon's line, and there won't be a suspicion of the French chef's art on the fashionable menus from now on.

Lady Scott Refuses King's Offer.

Lady Scott, the widow of the antarctic explorer, was offered recently a suit of rooms in the Hampton Court palace by King George.

These suits are given for life to the widows of eminent men who are unable to maintain their position with their private means.

To the surprise of the king, Lady Scott declined the offer on the ground that she could not pursue her art as a sculptress at Hampton court. Her refusal is understood to be really a protest against the scale on which the fund raised in memory of her husband and his fellow heroes has been distributed as between them and the permanent memorial. She thinks the fund should have been so divided as to place her above the necessity of being an object of royal benevolence.

Blames the Wives.

Mrs. Joseph T. Bowen, president of the Juvenile Protective association of Chicago and an earnest worker for child welfare, says that bad cooking has much to do with drunkenness of men and that general shiftlessness in the house is also responsible. This makes unwise management and a home that is unattractive, and the man goes to the saloon to get away from it.

—Some store may be placing on "special sale" just now the article you have not felt like paying "regular" prices for.

Sad Awakening.

"I shall never marry," said the young man with a pointed beard.

"Because you are an artist?"

"Yes. I painted a picture of the girl to whom I was engaged. She said that if that was the way I thought she looked it was better for us to part."—Washington Star.

When $5 Is $7.50.

Five dollar gold pieces of 1834, with E Pluribus Unum on reverse side, are quoted at $7.50 in the lists of coin collectors, provided they are in good condition.

Woodpeckers.

Each woodpecker in the United States is worth $20 in cash when the value is estimated on the value of the good that this bird does to trees.

Mental Training.

An educated man is a man who can do what he ought to do when he ought to do it whether he wants to do it or not.—Nicholas Murray Butler.

It is not by attending to our friends in our way, but in theirs, that we can really avail them.—Margaret Fuller.

Took It Good Naturedly.

Four-year-old Tom was expressing his sorrow and anger at the act of a neighbor who had drowned four "beautiful little kittens." "She might have given them to me," said the boy. "Never mind, Tom," said grandfather, "we have lovely kittens of our own. We have a nice little boy kitten"—

"That's me," said Tom proudly.

"And a lovely little girl kitten"—

"That's sister Ella," said Tom, pointing his spoon at his sister.

"And the dearest old cat in California"—

"That's grandma," said the youth exultantly.

Grandma glowered for a second of time, and then she burst out laughing—Los Angeles Times.

An Attractive Design for Embroidering Plate Doilies.

Nothing can make a table look more attractive than a dainty hand-embroidered or breakfast set. Plate doilies and a centerpiece to match make an acceptable gift for a housekeeper or bride. It would also be a very practical gift for a linen shower.

Here is an attractive design for plate doilies, which may be used with centerpiece number 14302 to form a set. It should be stamped on fine, white, round-thread linen and embroidered in white, using mercerized cotton. The wreaths and garlands may be developed in heavily padded solid work, eyelets, or the two stitches may be combined, while the edge should be slightly padded lengthwise of the scallops, and covered with close firm buttonhole-stitch.

The sprays may be cut apart and adapted to waists, dresses, underwear and children's clothes as well as bags, bureau scarfs, baby pillows and fancy articles.

Four transfers of this design, each ten inches in diameter, are included in pattern number 14295 which will be supplied to readers of the Daily Press for fifteen cents.

John Lind, personal representative of President Wilson in Mexico, will confer with the president at Pass Christian, Miss. It is reported that the conference may be followed by an announcement of a new Mexican policy or, rather, by an amplification of previous statements regarding Mexico by the president. Mr. Lind, it is said, will report to the president that the Huerta regime is rapidly nearing its end. Mr. Lind, it is said, will take advantage of the meeting to get instructions as to what course to follow when the end of the Huerta regime comes. It is understood that the administration's unfriendliness to Huerta does not extend to all his adherents and that in the establishment of a new administration some of the capable men now associated with General Huerta will not be frowned upon.

BRONX COUNTY NOW ON THE STATE MAP

It Was Sixteen Years Junior of Borough.

New York, Jan. 2.—County Judge Louis D. Gibbs, sitting on the platform in the supreme court chamber of the new courthouse at Third avenue and One Hundred and Sixty-first street yesterday morning, affixed his official signature approving the bond of District Attorney Francis Martin.

This was the first official act by any of the men who have been selected to take up the governmental reins of New York's Sixty-second county, which came into being with the new year. It was the birth of Bronx county more than the coming of 1914 that the people of that section celebrated.

The official ceremonies were held in the supreme court chamber of the courthouse. Few of them knew while they listened to commemoration speeches that the first paper of Bronx county officialdom had been executed during the ceremonies.

Dr. Henry M. MacCracken, chancellor emeritus of New York university, was chairman of the exercises. Judge Gibbs had requested Dr. MacCracken to suggest a design for a county seal. The design was there, and Dr. MacCracken described it.

"The Bronx is shown as the northernmost division of a star of five points," he said, "each point standing for a county. The motto is taken from the Vulgate, or Latin edition of the Bible. It may be translated, 'The world is waiting for the law of God'—the law expressed in seven words, 'Thou shalt love thy neighbor as thyself.' The phrase 'its law' or 'his law' signifies the law of the Bronx.

"Today the Bronx as a borough has just reached sweet sixteen. She is of lawful age, if not to be courted, at least to have a courthouse. May we never have any judge sitting in the courthouse of the Bronx whom good citizens will want either to impeach or to recall."

THE JOBLESS ROAM CHICAGO.

500 Hungry Men March, Breaking Windows, Demanding Food.

Chicago, Jan. 2.—Five hundred unemployed men marched in State street, and at Monroe street they broke windows. They entered several restaurants, demanding food. The sight contrasted sharply with scenes of revelry in the loop district. Many of the men had been recruited from the bread line.

After a short speech by a leader, Leo Lippa, the men at Van Buren street formed four abreast and marched north in the street. They carried a banner.

At Monroe and State streets a man cried out, "Hey, you bums, what's up?" Lippa answered, "You are drunk, and we are hungry."

The men halted street cars, crying as they did so that they wanted work.

BRYAN TO LECTURE.

Secretary of State Leaves Washington For Ten Day Tour.

Washington, Jan. 2.—Secretary of State Bryan left Washington for a ten day lecture tour in the middle west. He will speak at Kansas City, Topeka, Lincoln, Chicago and Toledo, returning about Jan. 10. He returned to Washington after a ten days' vacation at Miami, Fla. He and Mrs. Bryan received members of the diplomatic corps and entertained them with a buffet luncheon.

INAUGURATED AT BRIEF CEREMONY

Mitchel Urges Team Work Among Aids.

WORK, NOT TALK, IS SLOGAN

In His Speech of Acceptance Pledges Cabinet to Silence and Simplicity—Is Ninety-sixth Mayor of New York. Praises Kline For His Work.

New York, Jan. 2.—Four years ago when William J. Gaynor took office as mayor of New York he shook hands with a tall young man in a cutaway coat and said:

"I am very glad indeed to meet you. I like to see young men getting along in public life, and I have always liked to have young men around me. I am sure that we shall get along very well."

The tall young man who seemed to be getting along very well was John Purroy Mitchel, who was beginning his term as president of the board of aldermen. Yesterday he stood in Judge Gaynor's place and took office as mayor of New York.

The induction of the youngest mayor was the briefest ever known for an occasion of its kind.

Following this brief sojourn in the city hall, the ninety-sixth mayor of New York since Thomas Willett was appointed in 1665 by the governor of the province and the youngest mayor the city has ever had, left the building where he is to preside over the greatest city in the land for the next four years and returned with his wife and mother to his home in Riverside drive, where a private reception was held.

Mr. Mitchel and Mr. Kline, each dressed in black cutaway coat and striped trousers, took their places, standing at a table at one end of the room, and Mr. Kline made his brief talk, ending with a welcome to Mr. Mitchel as the mayor of New York city. In reply Mr. Mitchel said:

The Mayor's Address.

"I assure you it is a great satisfaction to take over this great office of mayor of the city from the hands of a man such as Mr. Kline. Mr. Kline assumed the duties of that office under conditions that could scarcely have been more trying. He has conducted that office for the last few months with dignity, with self respect and with a poise that has reflected credit upon himself and upon the city.

"And in more than one crisis Mr. Kline's action and administration of the duties of this office have meant much for the welfare of this city.

"He gave us an honest election in the face of conditions that pointed to the contrary, and only yesterday he protected the city against a conspiracy to denude it for a time of adequate police protection by handling a condition that had been created with vigor and with judgment. And I believe that I express the gratitude of the city to Mr. Kline when I tell him that New York appreciates his administration of this office.

"I trust that each head of a department in this new administration will realize that the thing necessary to bring the administration to a successful issue is team work, that each man must not feel that he or she can regard his or her particular department as apart from the others and self sufficient, and to be conducted upon its own basis without relation to them, but will feel that it is an integral part of a great machine, the city government, in which all must co-operate sympathetically if that machine is to be operated in the genuine service of the people, whose property it is."

GIRL KILLED BY AUTO.

Eight-year-old Anna Walter Victim In Yonkers.

Yonkers, N. Y., Jan. 2.—Ralph Lawrence Oakley, a manufacturer, of 741 North Broadway while driving to his home in his automobile ran over and killed Anna Walter, eight years old, of 498 Van Cortlandt Park avenue. The accident happened on South Broadway and Lawrence street and was witnessed by the child's mother and by Oakley's wife, a bride of six months.

Mrs. Walter was celebrating the child's eighth birthday and was taking her to New York city to a theater. A northbound trolley car had stopped at Lawrence street, and the child started to cross Broadway in front of it. Oakley, going north, ran upon the west side of the car and struck the child as she passed from the front of the trolley. A wheel ran over the body, crushing her so badly that she died in St. Joseph's hospital twenty minutes later.

SWEARS IN OLD ASSOCIATES.

Judge C. G. Nott Administers Oath of Office to Many.

New York, Jan. 2.—The first official action of Judge Charles G. Nott, Jr., when he became a member of the bench in general sessions was to swear in many of his associates while he was an assistant district attorney as assistants and deputy assistant to District Attorney Whitman.

Mr. Whitman was present at the proceeding, which took place in the library of the Criminal Courts building, and as each man was sworn in he was presented with an engraved certificate of his office, signed by the district attorney.

STUDIED SUICIDE BEFORE DOING ACT

Deliberated Over Self Destruction Since Dec. 15.

GAS CARRIES OUT HIS PLAN

Newark Musician Played Piano and Then Killed Himself—Left Note Saying He Knew His Act Was Wrong, but Was Out of Work and Despondent.

Newark, N. J., Jan. 2.—Ending two weeks of deliberation whether to commit suicide or to continue to seek employment as a music teacher, John J. Kirchner, twenty-three years old, played the piano and then went to his room at 550 South Thirteenth street and turned on the gas. He was found dead some hours later.

In a letter to Paul Teuber, in whose house he had rooms, Kirchner said: "I know it is wrong to take my own life, but I am out of work and despondent. I have at last reached the conclusion that suicide is the best way out of it."

He asked that his body be given to physicians for medical purposes. This letter was dated Dec. 15, indicating that he had first determined to kill himself more than two weeks ago, but had postponed the act.

A mystery concerning Kirchner which was never solved arose from the finding of a suit case containing letters and articles of women's apparel in the Passaic river on Dec. 20. Through the letters the suit case was traced to Kirchner, who acknowledged that it belonged to him and said he bought the women's clothing in a Newark store.

Kirchner left letters to Mr. and Mrs. D. A. Seagrist of Edmonton, Canada, his stepfather and mother.

REQUEST DENIED, ENDS LIFE.

Woman Takes Poison When Not Allowed to See Her Children.

Hackensack, N. J., Jan. 2.—Broken hearted because she was not permitted to go to her home in Ramsey to spend New Year's day with her children, Mrs. Estelle Cohn, fifty years old, committed suicide by drinking poison on the steps of the new courthouse here.

A few days ago Mrs. Cohn was placed in the care of Probation Officer James Bratt for keeping a disorderly house and was also forbidden to return to Ramsey within a year. Mr. Bratt found employment for her in the Hackenshck hospital.

Yesterday afternoon she said she wanted to go to Ramsey to wish her children a happy new year, but the privilege was denied her. Mrs. Cohn, however, was permitted to take a walk at 5 o'clock. The women prisoners in the jail saw Mrs. Cohn fall on the courthouse steps, and as she looked up she said, "Come quick!" Sheriff R. M. Heath and others hurriedly carried the woman into the sheriff's office and placed her on a cot. She died before medical aid reached her. "Take good care of my children," were her last words.

ROW IN ASBURY PARK COUNCIL

Democrats and Republicans Organize Apart—Courts May Decide.

Asbury Park, N. J., Jan. 2.—A tangle which the courts will doubtless have to decide occurred when the city council met to organize for the year. There was a row over the seating of Councilman Elect J. Otto Rhome, Democrat.

Councilman T. J. Winckler declared that Rhome was a resident of Loch Harbor and so was not entitled to his seat.

The question was put up to City Clerk Calvert, and as he refused to permit Rhome to vote with the body, there was a deadlock, the three Democrats standing against the two Republicans and one Progressive.

The four Democrats, including Rhome, thereupon withdrew to another room, where they organized and went so far as to make appointments and adopt a budget.

The three councilmen left in the room upon the withdrawing of the Democrats also organized and elected officers, and then they listened to the inaugural address by Mayor William A. Berry, who is a Progressive.

BRIEF STATE ITEMS.

William Ryan of Manhattan was instantly killed in Bayonne by a Central railroad express.

Frank Chamkiome died in All Souls hospital, Morristown, from the effects of a shot wound inflicted, according to the police, by Mrs. Lisle Fallicite.

The five commissioners of Jersey City held New Year's day receptions in the city hall. It was the first New Year's day under commission government, and several called to pay their respects.

A sensation was caused at Kenilworth when H. L. Finkle, former assessor, attacked Mayor John Hiller as he left the borough hall. The mayor, who had just been sworn in, was struck in the face and stunned. The attack was unexpected.

Henry Wissel, the new mayor of Edgewater, was sworn in at the borough hall. The outgoing mayor, John Clahan, Jr., got a loving cup from his admirers. Mayor Wissel reappointed Edmund W. Wakeley city counsel and Watson G. Clark borough engineer.

THOUSANDS FALL IN OJINAGA FIGHT

Federals Fleeing Across the Border From Battle.

BODIES STREW DESERT.

American Troops Disarm and Turn Back Hundreds of Deserters From Huerta Forces—Utter Defeat Is Expected—Mexico a Scene of Terror.

Presidio, Tex., Jan. 2.—Warfare in Mexico has been stripped of its glamor and glory, and its bare bones have been shown to the world at the battle of Ojinaga, which has been in constant progress since Sunday.

Brother has fought brother until the desert of Camargo is strewn with bodies; the buzzards are wheeling overhead lazy with their feasts of human flesh; desperate men are crawling to the American side with stumps of arms appealing for aid and peace from the roar of the cannon and the rattle of Mauser musketry, knit together with metallic whirr of the machine guns.

The death list now counts more than a thousand, while an equal number are lying on the battlefield without surgical aid or religious consolation.

Major McNamee, commanding the United States border patrol, wired to General Hugh L. Scott at El Paso, saying:

"Expect at any time during the fight that the greater part of the federal army, possibly 2,000 or 3,000, may be forced to cross the river. I have made disposition to disarm and hold them if this takes place."

Two hundred wounded federals, some of them with arms and legs shot off, who have dragged themselves or been carried across the Rio Grande to the American side, attest to the fact that the battle of Ojinaga is the most sanguinary conflict which has taken place between the federals and the rebels.

In addition another battle is in progress at Nuevo Laredo, Mexico, where 200 federals have been killed and many more wounded.

Major McNamee reported to General Scott that a few rebel shells fell close to or on to the American bank of the Rio Grande north of Presidio, adding, "I sent a demand to General Ortega warning him against the consequences of such action."

The American border patrol here consists of but 900 cavalrymen. If the federal army crosses the river to Presidio the American soldiers will be confronted with the task of disarming three times their number of Mexicans. The opportunities for a clash when this takes place are regarded as dangerous.

The rebel artillery poured a heavy fire upon the federal garrison in Ojinaga, and the rebels were gaining the approaches to the town. To observers on this side it appeared that the rebels would either capture the federal garrison within a few hours or force them to flee to the American side.

American Towns In Peril.

Between Ojinaga and the river is a mile of flat land. If the federals retreat across that it is feared they may draw the rebel fire upon Presidio.

Several hundred women and children already have crossed from the Mexican side and been given shelter in Presidio. Horrifying scenes attend the flight of the wounded to the American side. Many of the federals are so fearfully wounded that they implore the American soldiers to kill them to end their sufferings. More than 200 of them are in a church on this side, attended by Red Cross physicians and nurses.

All the soldiers are disarmed and, if not wounded, are sent back by Major McNamee.

The rebel artillery battered almost incessantly at the crumbling adobe walls behind which were hidden the dispirited federals, and the flashes of the field guns gave the battle scene a touch of the inferno.

With the break of day the artillery fire became more furious, and to the rain of shells which tore the flimsy walls to fragments were added the bullets from small arms that swept the defenses like hail.

RADIUM CAN'T SAVE CHILD.

Dr. Kelly Tries It on a Child of Five, but Gives Up Hope.

Baltimore, Md., Jan. 2.—Dr. Howard A. Kelly has just treated an unusual case of cancer, the patient being a girl of five years, who was beyond cure when brought to Dr. Kelly for treatment.

The fact that cancer is very unusual in children is responsible for the failure of physicians to diagnose the disease properly in its early stages.

For two years the child had been treated by various physicians and surgeons for adenoids and kindred troubles. Operations afforded temporary relief, but the trouble always returned in aggravated form until finally the nostrils were closed. She was taken recently to Dr. J. W. Thomas of the Homeopathic hospital, who pronounced the trouble cancer.

MISS DAVIS TO STOP CRUELTY IN PRISONS

Will Aid Grand Jury Inquiry, She Says.

New York, Jan. 2.—Miss Katherine Bement Davis, the first woman to head a New York city department, who succeeds Patrick A. Whitney as commissioner of correction, arrived without any flourishes at the old fashioned dwelling at 148 East Twentieth street and went to work.

Miss Davis has a face remarkable for its pleasantness as she smiled and said quietly:

"This is no time to talk about my plans. I think the best thing for all of us to do is to take Mayor Mitchel's advice when he swore us into office—we had better keep still until we learn our jobs.

"The mayor suggested that this was to be an administration of deeds, not words. Naturally I have many thoughts about the city's prisons. I could not very well be without them after having been at the head of Bedford reformatory for thirteen years and having in that time many chances to observe New York's prisons.

"But it would be very stupid of me to air them now. I do not even know my office staff as yet."

Miss Davis came to the Bedford reformatory when there wasn't any. None of the modern buildings, not a bit of the administrative schemes that have placed Bedford in the front rank of the world's corrective institutions, were in evidence when she first took charge there. She is more than an advocate of modern penology—she has achieved it.

"Will you help the grand jury investigation of Blackwell's island, now under way?" she was asked.

"I will help to the utmost of my power any proper inquiry into city prisons by any proper body," was the quick answer.

MARKSMAN KILLS SELF.

Malcolm Williams, Mechanical Engineer, Shot Self Through Heart.

Babylon, N. Y., Jan. 2. — Malcolm Cary Williams, an electrical engineer connected with the American Telephone and Telegraph company in New York city, a noted marksman, shot himself through the heart at his home in Argyll Park. Death was instantaneous.

Coroner Edwin S. Moore of Bay Shore and Assistant District Attorney Leroy Young of Babylon, who made an investigation, later decided that there was no doubt the wound was self inflicted, with the likelihood that it was intentional.

Mr. Williams was twenty-nine years of age and married. Mrs. Williams was at home when the tragedy took place. Her husband had retired to his room, announcing that he was not well. She was in the library and the servants were in the back of the house. Mrs. Williams went upstairs at the sound of the shot and with a servant found her husband lying dead in bed.

FLORIDA AIRBOAT LINE STARTS

Regular Daily Schedule Between St. Petersburg and Tampa.

St. Petersburg, Fla., Jan. 2.—The first commercial line of flying machines to be operated in the world was inaugurated here when the St. Petersburg-Tampa airboat line began business. The morning flight of twenty-two miles was made in twenty-three minutes. The passenger was former Mayor A. C. Phiel of this city.

From today on the airboat line will maintain a regular schedule in Tampa, and other trips will be arranged soon. Time cards announcing the departure and arrival of the air craft have been posted, and a ticket office has been established on the principal street of the city.

Local business men formed a stock company to finance the line and arranged with the Benoist Air Craft company of St. Louis for a fleet of fliers.

RAPID PROGRESS IN CHAPEL WORK

Many New Features Have Been Added During Twenty-six Years' Teaching.

ANNIVERSARY SERVICE

Those Who Assisted in Organizing the Hope Chapel Sunday School in the West End Will Speak at the Special Exercises.

A special program of Sunday-school exercises has been planned by Superintendent G. Herbert Condict of the Hope Chapel Sunday-school for tomorrow afternoon, the occasion being the observance of the twenty-sixth anniversary of the founding of the school for Bible teaching in the West End of the city. Several of those who were instrumental in the founding of the chapel will be present at the anniversary services and deliver short talks on the growth of the work in the Sunday-school and contrast the present condition with those which existed before the founding of the place of worship.

The present officers of the Sunday-school and representatives of the Crescent Avenue church will also take part in the program prepared by the superintendent.

History of Hope Chapel.

On November 16, 1884, Elders Squires, Pierson and Simpson of the Crescent Avenue Presbyterian church of this city were appointed to serve as a committee to make the necessary investigations preliminary to establishing a Sunday-school of this denomination in the West End of the city and finally decided to move the Bethel Sunday-school, then at Fifth and Washington streets, to the West End of town, the other side of Plainfield avenue. A notice was circulated among the people in that portion of the city, heralding the founding of a new Sunday-school and the committee having the project in hand decided to call it "Hope" for the time being, as there was nothing to look forward to in the future but hope. The establishment of the new home for Bible study was acknowledged to be a big undertaking and the progress of the new movement was watched with interest by Plainfielders interested in ecclesiastical work at that time.

Prospects for the success of an undertaking of this kind were exceedingly dubious and the more pessimistic of those concerned claimed that not more than one family would be interested in the new branch of the work when it was formally opened. Enthusiasm reigned so high among those concerned, however, that one of the more ardent workers gathered a group of ten boys together in the trench that was being prepared to receive the new building that was being removed from Fifth street and more than half of the youngsters promised to be on hand when the doors of the Sunday-school were thrown open for the first time. This group acted as a body of volunteers and worked to arouse interest during the time that intervened while the constructural work was in progress.

DR. ZWEMER TO TALK ON MOHAMMEDANISM

Rev. Dr. Samuel M. Zwemer will address the Plainfield Federation of Women's Missionary Societies in the First Baptist church, Thursday evening, January 15, at 8 o'clock, on "Mohammedanism." Concerning this subject, Dr. Zwemer has written numerous books and is ranked as an authority, having spent many years in Moslem lands.

Dr. Swemer is now working in connection with the United Presbyterian Mission at Cairo, Egypt, though still on the roll of missionaries of the Reformed Church in America, and is editor of "The Moslem World," a publication of wide influence. He is in this country for a few weeks only, going first to the Student Volunteer Movement convention to be held in Kansas City and addressing various conferences in the east subsequently. Christian workers feel that they are exceedingly fortunate in having the opportunity to hear Dr. Swemer and a large attendance of both men and women of all denominations is requested.

MISTAKE IN BANK FIGURES.

Through a figure dropping out of a form during the printing, a mistake occurred in the advertisement of the City National Bank on the back cover of the Holy Cross Sunday School year book, which was recently issued. The numeral (1) in the amount of the capital $150,000 was lost making it appear that the capital was but $50,000. But few of the books were distributed before the mistake was discovered, and the compilers of the book have requested that this note be made in correction for the benefit of those who have received copies.

MRS. LUCIE E. RISING DELIVERED LECTURE

Mohammedanism the Theme of An Absorbingly Interesting Illustrated Talk.

Mrs. Lucie E. Rising, missionary for the First Baptist church, gave an interesting illustrated lecture before a large audience at the church last night, describing her trip abroad last summer through Mohammedan countries. The lecture was given under the auspices of the Christian Endeavor Society of the church, and the pictures shown were taken by Mrs. Rising.

The speaker told of the universal intolerance and despotism of this worse than Oriental paganism, holding its 25,000,000 subjects in an iron grasp of deadly hostility to the Gospel. She showed how this false religion presents today the greatest menace and the strongest obstacle to the progress of Christianity of any and all of the heathen faiths in those vast regions under Moslem power.

Mrs. Rising gave a sketch of the career of Mahomet and the origin of his religion, and compared the schools of that country with those of this country showing that primitive conditions still exist and that women are still subject to drudgery, but she explained that when these people are converted there is a great change and they become loyal to the cause of Christianity. In conclusion Hoffman's picture of Christ was shown. Mrs. Rising appeared in the gorgeous costume of a "Woman of the Harem."

WILL GIVE THE RECITAL FOR MISSIONARY NURSERY

Charles W. McCutchen, Brown Rolston, Clifford A. Braider and E. S. It is expected that a large number of Plainfield people will attend the affair.

From an artistic standpoint the recital should be a notable one. Mme. Emma Eames, soprano of the Metropolitan Opera Company, and her husband, Emilio de Gogorza, the baritone, have volunteered their services and as an added attraction the St. Cecilia Club, Victor Harris, conductor, will give several chorus numbers. Tickets may be obtained of Mrs. Louis B. Rolston, 19 West 51st street, and Antonia Sawyer, 1425 Brodway, New York city.

BOROUGH ASSESSOR GETS EXTRA MONEY

Dr. Cooley Allowed $200 for His Work in Revising the Tax Books.

Dr. J. H. Cooley, borough assessor, appeared at the meeting of the North Plainfield Council, last night, to explain why he should be paid $200 for extra work performed in the levy of assessments in 1914 made necessary by the Council's appeal to the Somerset County Board of Taxation for a lower assessment. A question arose as to whether the Council could pay the assessor $200 more than his regular salary. Councilman Alexander Milne offered a resolution authorizing Clerk C. M. Dolliver to sign a warrant for the necessary amount. It was adopted by a vote of five to one, Edmund Rushmore being the only one voting "no."

When explaining his position, Dr. Cooley said that after he had completed his tax books which were approved by the County Board, the Council asked him to make changes in accordance with an agreement with the county officials whereby the assessments on many properties were either raised or lowered. This caused several weeks labor, the assessor said. Milne said that at a previous regular meeting Dr. Cooley received assurances from that body that he would be paid extra but Mr. Cowperthwait, after stating that he had attended every meeting since he became Councilman, asserted that he remembered no such promise.

Frank Hollenback was appointed a special marshal by the Mayor and the Council confirmed the same. The street committee reported that the cost of macadamizing Watchung avenue from Codington avenue to the bridge amounted to $407.64, and the levying of the assessments was referred to a committee of which M. C. Van Arsdale is chairman. The fire and water committee reported expenditures of $255.27 during the month of December, 1913. Major Carl Lentz, of Newark, counsel for the borough on the tax appeal, was authorized a payment of $250, making $600 he has received from the borugh to date. Tax Collector Brown was authorized a payment of $250 for office help and $200 for fuel, etc., for his office, to be paid monthly.

The treasurer's report for the year just ended showed that a balance of $1,687.70 was on hand. The recorder's report for December showed there had been 10 arrests made and $42 in fines collected. Overseer of the poor Becker was granted an appropriation of $150 and the bond of Tax Collector Brown was approved. Notices of the appeal from the 1913 taxes levied on their property in North Plainfield township was received from the Jersey Silk Mill, C. W. McCutchen, H. M. Sherman and George Mobus. Judge Isaac P. Runyon submitted an opinion of the borough's liability to reimburse a citizen for poultry destroyed by stray dogs and this was referred to the law and ordinance committee. Councilman Cowperthwait reported that the lighting contract with the Public Service Corporation had been signed.

RECORDER HAND IDLE.

Recorder Fred Hand, of the borough, commenced the duties of that office this morning, but no daring burglar, auto speeder or habitual user of intoxicants was brought before him to have justice meted out. The borough police on New Year's eve, on that holiday or yesterday, did not make an arrest which is considered a testimonial to the regulations regarding the sale of liquor in that municipality.

SPLENDID SHOWING OF STATE TRUST CO.

Local Enterprising Institution Has Cause for Being Proud of Its Strength.

In another portion of this paper, The State Trust Company published its semi-annual statement. It is presented in detail form with an explanation of the meaning of the different headings under which the figures are grouped, so that the uninitiated may understand the exact meaning of the figures presented.

This statement shows capital and surplus One Hundred Fifty Thousand Dollars, deposits of more than Six Hundred Thousand Dollars, cash on hand Twenty-three Thousand Dollars, cash in bank One Hundred Twenty-four Thousand Dollars.

The strength of a bank should not be judged by the amount of its deposits, but rather by the proportion of its capital and surplus to its deposits. The State Trust Company meets this lattest test very satisfactorily, for with deposits of Six Hundred Thousand Dollars, it has a margin of safety (capital and surplus) of One Hundred Fifty Thousand Dollars, or one to four.

This enterprising institution has just cause for pride, not only in the growth it has attained in a little over three years, but also for the progressiveness that it has displayed, and is deserving of the confidence that its growth evidences.

BORO OVERSEER-OF-POOR MAKES YEARLY REPORT

The report for the year 1913 of Fred Becker, overseer of the poor in North Plainfield, submitted to the Borough Council last night, showed that considerable work had been performed at nominal expense. Eleven regular charges were cared for and sixteen other poor persons were given temporary help. At the beginning of the year $1,800 was appropriated for the work and a balance from 1912 of $21.39, made $1,821.39 for the work of the department at the beginning of the year just ended.

The 1913 expenses amounted to $1,715.22, leaving a balance at present of $106.17. The expenditures were as follows: Rent, $727; board, $407.50; provisions, $411.32; coal, $89.80, and miscellaneous, $79.60.

BOROUGH RECORDER'S REPORT FOR THE YEAR

The annual report of the retiring recorder of North Plainfield, Manning F. Gano, which was submitted last night at a meeting of the Borough Council, showed that out of 302 arrests made on over fifty different charges, 101 were caused by violations of the peace ordinance. Next in number was the violations of the dog ordinances, forty-one persons being arrested on this charge during the year. The auto violators numbered seventeen and sixteen were arrested for gambling. Twelve prisoners were caught for the police of this city and seven men were brought before the Recorder for non-support. "Joy riding" was charged against three prisoners and one man was locked up for forgery.

TO GIVE RECITAL.

Of the many women pianists who have appeared in America during the past five years, none have pleased the critics more than Eleanor Spencer, the young American pianist who recently arrived in this country after an eight years' stay abroad. Miss Spencer came home with a big reputation, and her first concert in Carnegie Hall, last November, proved one of the greatest piano novelties that has taken place in New York in years. With Miss Spencer will come Paul Reimers, the popular young German tenor. Mr. Reimers is considered by many music lovers to be the best tenor now in concert. For a number of years he was looked upon as the most popular singer among the social set. Since coming to this country he has received many engagements as soloist with the leading orchestras. The recital will be given at the Hartridge Auditorium on Thursday night.

E. V. H. Conover, of New street, is at Muhlenberg Hospital for treatment.

RAPID PROGRESS AT CHAPEL

The Sunday-school was opened January 1, 1888, with three officers, five teachers, twenty-seven scholars and four visitors, making an attendance the first Sunday of thirty-nine, and this in spite of the most discouraging storm and mud knee-deep. So heartily was the new project endorsed by the residents in the West End of Plainfield that on the fifth Sunday the enrollment totaled up to 100.

For two years and a half there was, in addition to the school session, but one service on Sunday, which was held in the evening, beginning January 15, 1888. The increasing demand for a Sunday morning service soon caused the introduction of the same on November 23, 1890. The first communion service was held December 14, 1890, and forty-five persons joined the church.

While Dr. W. R. Richards was pastor, and on January 1, 1888, the following officers were serving terms in the church: Superintendent, Henry C. Squires; assistant superintendent, F. H. Andrews; secretary, Charles A. Hunter; pianist, Miss Nellie Day; teachers, F. H. Andrews, H. R. Munger, S. R. Struthers, Mrs. S. R. Struthers, Miss Jessie Day and Miss Lillian Neuman. The class roster at that time included: Mrs. Munger's class—George Firstbrook, William Firstbrook, Mrs. William Firstbrook, D. F. Stewart, Mrs. D. F. Stewart, Frederick Pierce, Robert McLaughlin, George H. Fountain, F. C. Morris, Amos Andrews and Benjamin Hand; Mrs. Struthers class—George E. Firstbrook, William, Stewart, George Weston, Fred H. Firstbrook; Mr. Andrew's class—Miss Mary Johnston and Miss Lavinia Weston; Mrs. Struther's class—Miss Lizzie Mowinkle and Miss Lena Mowinkle; Miss Jessie Day's class—Miss Alma Johnson, Miss Lizzie Firstbrook and Miss May Mowinkle; Miss Neuman's class—William Tunison, Bertie Firstbrook, Mabel Firstbrook, Edna Tunison and Willie Firstbrook; visitors, William H. Sampson, Henry B. Newhall, Harry Newhall and William H. Hillman.

Since the three Sunday services were originally started the records show that up to the present time there has been no interruption in either of the three (morning, afternoon and evening), except the omission of the morning service during the illness of Dr. Howard in the summer of 1909, and of the Sunday-school service on Christmas or Easter, when a combined service of the home and chapel schools has been held at the Crescent Avenue church.

Within six months after the opening of the West Fourth street building the structure was so crowded that an addition had to be built, to be shortly afterward followed by another and still another, until up to date there have been twelve additions and another one is being contemplated at the present time. The extensions to date include the bowling alley, gymnasium, storehouse and kitchen. The social activities have increased considerably during the past three years and the younger generation of the church has aroused so much interest in the gymnasium and boys' clubs that the committee is considering the erection of addition to the present gymnasium. It is proposed to erect a visitor's gallery and break out the back partition and make the "gym" considerably larger.

Henry C. Squires was the first superintendent of the Sunday-school and held the office from the time of his appointment, October 3, 1887, continuously until his death October 15, 1906, after over nineteen years of faithful service. He was succeeded by Ira W. Travell, who was at that time assistant superintendent, and on November 18, 1906, H. Raymond Munger was appointed superintendent. Owing to poor health Mr. Munger was obliged to relinquish the office to the present holder, G. Herbert Condict.

The pastorate of Rev. G. Kennedy Newell was begun September 1, 1890, and continued until September 1, 1901, when he removed to take up work in Brooklyn. During his connection of eleven years with the church he built up a strong organization which, when he left comprised in itself a church having 350 members and a school of 560, together with all of the other societies, clubs and associations which enter into the life of a parish.

The Rev. Lawrence R. Howard was installed October 1, 1901, and resigned October 1, 1910. Mr. Howard had charge for nine years and during that time worked earnestly and faithfully in his work and left here because of ill health.

Rev. Frederic L. Greene, the present pastor, preached his first sermon at the chapel on March 5, 1911. Under his direction every department of the church work has continued to expand and all of those interested in the chapel are looking forward for greater and quickened interest in every direction in the future.

The Sunday-school now has numerous departments including the Cradle Roll, Beginners', Primary, Junior, Intermediate, Senior, Adult and Home Departments. Among the numerous societies are the Ladies' Aid Society, the Ladies' Missionary Society, the Y. P. S. C. E., the Ways and Means Committee and numerous other co-operative bodies that are doing good work.

MO-JO White Chewing Gum

Talk No. 28

MO-JO is the most delightful after-dinner confection yet devised.

The little snow white MO-JOs are a delight to the eye—the rare mint flavor an inspiration to the palate.

Then the thought that MO-JOs are clean and white through and through—that they are as wholesome as sunlight, carries with it a mental suggestion that is a mighty good aid to digestion.

MO-JO chewing gum stands alone. The only clean white chewing gum that was ever made.

MO-JO—the gum sans reproach!

MR. AND MRS. H. L. TERRY GIVE DANCE FOR DAUGHTER

Mr. and Mrs. Harry L. Terry, of West Eighth street, gave a delightful dance at their home, last evening for their daughter, Miss Helen Terry, there being about forty young people present, all intimate friends of Miss Terry. The dancing was enjoyed from 8 to 12 o'clock, and during an intermission supper was served. Orchestral music was engaged for the dancing, the program being a popular one.

The home was attractively decorated, appropriate to the holiday season, the arrangement in the dining room being particularly effective. While dancing was the feature of the evening, the affair was marked by several pleasing features which combined to make the occasion one of especial enjoyment to the young folks.

Alfred Tranchard installed the officers-elect of Benevolent Council, Jr. O. U. A. M., last night.

AN OLD RECIPE TO DARKEN HAIR

Sage Tea and Sulphur Turns Gray, Faded Hair Dark and Glossy.

Almost everyone knows that Sage Tea and Sulphur, properly compounded, brings back the natural color and lustre to the hair when faded, streaked or gray; also ends dandruff, itching scalp and stops falling hair. Years ago the only way to get this mixture was to make it at home, which is mussy and troublesome.

Nowadays we simply ask at any drug store for "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Hair Remedy." You will get a large bottle for about 50 cents. Everybody uses this old, famous recipe, because no one can possibly tell that you darkened your hair, as it does it so naturally and evenly. You dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time; by morning the gray hair disappears, and after another application or two, your hair becomes beautifully dark, thick and glossy and you look years younger.—Adv.

IF KIDNEYS ACT BAD TAKE SALTS

Says Backache is Sign You Have Been Eating Too Much Meat.

When you wake up with backache and dull misery in the kidney region it generally means you have been eating too much meat, says a well-known authority. Meat forms uric acid which overworks the kidneys in their effort to filter it from the blood and they become sort of paralyzed and loggy. When your kidneys get sluggish and clog you must relieve them, like you relieve your bowels; removing all the body's urinous waste else you have backache, sick headache, dizzy spells, your stomach sours, tongue is coated, and when the weather is bad you have rheumatic twinges. The urine is cloudy, full of sediment, channels often get sore, water scalds and you are obliged to seek relief two or three times during the night.

Either consult a good, reliable physician at once or get from your pharmacist about four ounces of Jad Salts; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys will then act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice combined with lithia, and has been used for generations to clean and stimulate sluggish kidneys, also to neutralize acids in the urine so it no longer irritates, thus ending bladder weakness.

Jad Salts is a life saver for regular meat eaters. It is inexpensive, cannot injure and makes a delightful, effervescent lithia-water drink.

NEW YEAR'S RESOLUTIONS.

The lot has fallen to me to write at the beginning of the New Year. And there is a presumption that following time-honored precedent a number of young men and maidens, old men and children and several other people enacted a few days ago with more or less solemnity sets of new resolutions concerning their future conduct. This has possibly given the comic papers opportunity to take their fling at the speedy breaking of such obligations. But on the whole, even admitting that there may be cases in which these resolutions are broken, the practise is wholesome and to be commended. For it gives one an opportunity to annually revise one's rule of life in the light shed by experience.

System is the soul of success. The haphazard method always spells failure. Business recognizes this fact and genius usually means diligent systematic application in his profession by a man of brains and soul. Every vocation finds its goal best attained by the adoption of and adherence to a rule of life. But men are not images to be pressed in molds once for all, then left to retain that hard and fast shape into which they have hardened for the term of their natural existence. At least, worth-while men are not. They are alive—they change—they grow—and the form and measure that would fit and hold them on January first, 1913, will need to be revised here and there to accommodate their growth on January first, 1914. So, without abandoning the system, it is well to enlarge and adapt the standard each New Year's day according to one's changed ideals, making it higher and broader, extending its capacity to the point which one's power of vision fancies may have a possibility of fulfillment before the twelve-month has elapsed. And in doing this why not be influenced by actual conditions of things as we stand confronted by "An age of rugged realities, yet boundless hopes." It is quite easy and delightful to adopt an Arcadic philosophy and to exercise an Arcadic philanthrophy; but we are not living in Arcadia—our surroundings are not ideal, but real. Evil exists and will exist, and cold platitudes carry but little help to those who suffer from it.

Our rule of conduct will be valuable just in so far as it is framed to strengthen us in the struggle with evil; it will possess altruistic value just when it enables us to reach out supporting and uplifting hands to those who are suffering from the effects of evil. When we say to one within whose views flows the red blood of a common humanity: "We are so sorry for you; but this would never have come to you if you had made no mistakes, if you had been a man of wisdom, if, being a woman, you had not loved and married a drunkard or a profligate, if you had never speculated, if you had never sinned," and so on ad infinitum, we are not meeting the case squarely face to face as it exists. Surely the poor wretch knows as well as we where the dead "if" comes in. The true Christ-like altruism does not dwell in comfortable self-complanceny upon the monotonous "if;" but it deals with conditions just as it finds them at the moment of distress and need, leaving the probe for other hands or a more convenient season, binding up wounds now—pouring in oil and wine now—sheltering in the hospitable inn now.

This is no plea for a careless heedless charity to professional vagabonds, or a silly sentimental fondling of professional criminals, doubtless as distasteful to them as degrading to its perpetrators. It is only a note, sounding perchance in a minor key, calling to its fellows in the great harmony of humanity to face conditions squarely as they are, and resolve upon and carry out a standard high and strong for themselves and broad and flexible in their dealings with their brethren, that shall lift humanity in 1914 to a higher floodtide mark upon the sands of time than it has yet touched in the years that have passed. Nor is it necessary to such accomplishment that we should always wend our way to city slums or isolated houses in rural wilds. Heartaches and soul hunger and great voids of loneliness abound close by every man's door, and each year may be counted not ill-spent wherein we are enabled to live in a house by the side of the road, and be a friend to man.

WARNER E. L. WARD.

THE FORUM.

A CORRECTION.

Editors, Plainfield Daily Press:

I notice in an article printed in your paper of the 2nd instant referring in general to the matters of the North Plainfield Council, and particularly to the appointment of Isaac P. Runyon for the the office of Borough Counsel, that you quote me as saying that the salary asked for by Judge Runyon was exorbitant.

This is absolutely untrue, for at the meeting which you report, the question of salary was not discussed in any way, the only question being whether or not it was advisable to fill the office of Borough Counsel at this time, it having been decided in caucus to leave this appointment unfilled.

In all fairness to Judge Runyon, Mayor Clark and the rest of the Council, I would ask you to give this as much prominence as the article above quoted.

Yours very truly,
ALEXANDER MILNE.

WILSON REMAINS FIRM AS TO MEXICAN POLICY

(By Telegraph to The Daily Press.)

Pass Christian, Miss., Jan. 3.—President Wilson will maintain his present policy with regard to Mexico. He has made no change as a result of his conference with Special Envoy Lind and is more confirmly convinced than ever that he is pursuing the right course as regards the Southern Republic.

The President made these facts known today in a formal statement to be issued governing the conference held at sea last night, with Mr. Lind. As President Wilson has insisted that the elimination of General Huerta is the sole solution of the Mexican problem that will be tolerated by the American Government it is believed that Envoy Lind brought him information indicating that Genera Huerta's downfall is near at hand.

MORE DAMAGE AT SEABRIGHT.

(By Telegraph to The Daily Press.)

Seabright, Jan. 3.—The high tide this morning wiped out all the repair work which followed the devastation wrought by the bad storm of Dec. 26. All the new bulkheads have been swept away and the fishing district inundated.

The winter mass meeting of the Plainfield Christian Endeavor Union will be held on Tuesday, January 20 at Hope Chapel. The speaker will be Rev. Walter B. Greenway, of Philadelphia, who is well known among the church people here.

BUILD OF THE BABY.

Normal Weights and Measurements Up to Three Years of Age.

A baby should weigh at birth seven pounds, at three months eleven pounds, at five months fourteen pounds, at one year twenty-one pounds, at two years twenty-six pounds and at three years thirty-one pounds. The length of a baby at birth should be twenty and one-half inches, at three months twenty-two inches, at five months twenty-three and a half inches, at one year twenty-eight inches, at two years thirty-two and a half inches and at three years thirty-five inches.

Its chest measure at birth should be thirteen and a half inches, at three months fourteen and a half inches, at five months sixteen inches, at one year eighteen inches, at two years nineteen inches and at three years twenty inches.

Some babies are built very small, and, if well, even if below these figures, there is no cause for worry. But if a baby is about normal size and does not come up to these figures its diet should be carefully looked into, as evidently it is not being properly nourished.

The growth of baby's body is very important. See that the teeth come in properly and that the legs grow straight and strong. The babies should be carefully watched and developed naturally.—Rural Farmer.

GIMBELS—Annual Sale of Furs

Qualities and Styles Measure 100 Per Cent.
Prices Average Normal Wholesale Quotations

Within the last fortnight we have refused at least two hundred thousand dollars worth of furs that were offered to us, beceause they were not the kinds that fashionable women have selected this season—and, because, in many instances, they did not measure up to our high standard of quality.

But, we did accept the surplus of the furrier who, we consider, has achieved the greatest success of the season. And this experience is based on our own experience with his modes.

As this is a sale of new Furs—except for a few models from our own stock—there will be a complete range of sizes in the Coats, and Muffs and Scarfs will be perfectly matched in every instance.

Women's Fur Coats $29.50 to $350

45-in. Black Ponyskin Coats, with collars of civet cat or skunk-raccoon, $29.50.
Leipsic-dyed Caracul Coats, 45 in., $35; with large collars of ermine, skunk or civet cat, at $50.
Flat Caracul Coats with collars of Russian Fitch, skunk or civet cat, at $75.
Arctic seal (dyed-coney) Coats, 45 in. length, $38.50; cutaway model, at $57.50; with collars of fitch or civet cat, at $50.
Hudson Seal (dyed-muskrat) Coats, with collars of ermine, $85.
Scotch Moleskin Coats, at $110.

E. and Trinity Reformed churches, as follows: Tuesday, First Baptist church, Rev. Dr. C. E. Herring, subject, "Prayer;" Wednesday, Trinity Reformed church, Rev. Dr. C. M. Anderson, subject, "Church;" Thursday, First M. E. church, Rev. J. Y. Broek, subject, "The Bible;" Friday, First Presbyterian church, Rev. Dr. Philip B. Strong, subject, "Soul Saving."

RED AND ORANGE TEAMS DISPOSE OF OPPONENTS

In the Employed Boys' Club of the Y. M. C. A. last night the Red team of the Color League defeated the Green aggregation by a score of 18 to 8 and the Orange five won from the Whites by a count of 14 to 7.

Bohl did most of the scoring for the Reds in the Red-Green battle, getting ten counters on five field goals while Hummel counted for six out of the Green's total card, getting two field and two foul goals. Jackson was the leading scorer for the Orange five.

DOUBLE VICTORY.

Two games of basketball were played on the Hope Chapel court this morning, the Hope Chapel Boys' Club first team defeating the Watchung Grammar School five by a score of 10 to 4 and the second team trimming the Intermediate Class of the Temple Baptist Church by a count of 16 to 6.

LITTLE TALKS BY THE WANT AD MAN

Copyright, 1913, The Int. Syndicate, Baltimore.

No. 45.

ADVERTISING is a salesman that is always at work, but never wearies a customer; that call on the same man until he is convinced, but never annoys him with its insistence; that wastes no time, wastes no words, and that can always gain an audience and a hearing. Alone among salesmen, advertising has free access to the libraries of the great; it marches unchecked past the secretary of the big merchant and enters without hindrance the store of the retailer. When it cannot tell its story to a man in his office, it can always gain his attention in his home. The door of the housewife is never slammed in its face. No country is so remote, no village is so dead, that it does not go there for orders and get them—Saturday Evening Post.

Tell me, suppose you want a job, or want to sell your house, or want to rent an apartment, or want domestic help, or want—anything—can you think of a quicker, less expensive, more direct way of getting that want before the people than through a little Want Ad?

Classified advertising is always at work. It does not weary a customer, because that customer turns to it of his own free will. It does not annoy him with his insistence; rather, it pleases him with its concise information. It wastes no words. It gets its message across, and instantly. It has access to the hearts of the people because it reflects the needs of the people.

Want Ad advertising in the columns of this newspaper gains attention in offices, in homes, in city, in country—wherever people have that which they do not want and want that which they do not have. No door is ever slammed in its face.

And say—isn't that a pretty good way to get YOUR want over the line?

Of Interest to Women and the Home

The Housewife's Daily Economy Calendar

FRANCES MARSHALL

Planning the Year's Budget.

It is the lifelong desire of a certain woman to get the ballot because she thinks when she does get it she will receive an even half of her husband's earnings—to do with as she pleases. Just why this arrangement should follow woman's acquisition of the vote, she does not explain. There are other women, and they may be right, who think that there should be a pre-nuptial agreement determing the division of the income.

The whole question of division of income should be easily settled. The woman who performs her duties faithfully—who keeps house well and brings the children up as they should be brought up—deserves her share in the family income. In such a family, she does her work as well and as faithfully as her husband does, and so earns a right to help spend the family income—which, in these circumstances, she and her husband have earned together. The truly industrious woman realizes the value of money—the woman who has worked to earn money before her marriage, or the woman who has been carefully trained to spend it. If all women were of this type there would probably be less worry and trouble concerning division of income.

How to Learn.

The first step for the woman to take in gaining a fair share of the family income is to learn how to spend money wisely.

It is interesting to spend money on paper—almost as interesting as it is to spend it from one's pocketbook. So it is a good thing for every one to spend the year's income, at the beginning of the year, on paper. Much can be learned in this way.

Here, for a model, is the ideal budget: The income which ranges between one and two thousand dollars is ideally divided in this way: For food, twenty-five per cent; for rent, twenty per cent; for clothes, twenty per cent; for recreation, traveling, books, and such things, twenty per cent; for operating expenses—wages, fuel and such necessities—fifteen per cent. The model for the income between two and four thousand is the same, excepting that fifteen per cent is allowed for clothes, and twenty-five for the recreation group. The smaller the income, the greater the percentage that must be spend on food. An income ranging from five to eight hundred must give forty-five per cent to food. And the rent and all other divisions must be relatively smaller.

Of course, few families follow exactly these ideal budgets. But the woman who feel that she has spent money unwisely, and realizes, therefore, that she hardly knows how to handle her share of the family income, whatever that share may be, would do well to compare the budget of her family's expenses with these ideal budgets. They are helpful guides to the woman—or the man, either, for that matter—who is trying to learn how to spend money wisely.

Practical Fashion Hints

By Alice Gibson

The raglan sleeve is the smart feature of this blouse. Together the sleeves form a yoke across the back, joined in the center with a seam. A plait on each side of the front gives the effect of a vest, but if a contrasting material is desired it may be set in under this plait to form the vest.

No. 7715 may be made in silk, flannel or linen. If you have a width of silk ratine left over from a summer costume it will by using this design make a most attractive blouse and will be warm and comfortable as well. The ivory white which was so popular is especially smart for separate blouses. An excellent method for finishing seams instead of binding or French seaming them is to run two lines of machine stitching about ¼ of an inch away from the line of stitching that joins the seam and trim off close to the second stitching.

To make this blouse in size 36 it requires 2¾ yards of 36 inch material.

The pattern is cut in 6 sizes, 32 to 42.

This Is a Perfect Pattern.

Be sure to state right size, measuring over the fullest part of the bust for dimensions.

It may be obtained by filling out the coupon and inclosing 15 cents in stamps or coin to the Pattern Department of this paper.

Some Cookery Suggestions

WHOLESOME MOLASSES CAKES.

MOLASSES is undoubtedly wholesome. It is made from the same kind of cane as sugar, yet it happens to contain qualities which have been eliminated from the sugar. Our grandmothers well understood its use and had scores of recipes in which it took the place of sugar. There is no more wholesome dessert for children than one in which molasses is an ingredient.

Small Cakes.

Molasses Drop Cakes.—Take a cupful each of molasses and brown sugar, a half cupful of shortening, three cupfuls of flour, three-quarters of a cupful of boiling water, three eggs and a teaspoonful of baking soda. Mix the molasses, sugar and shortening together until smooth; then add the baking soda dissolved in the boiling water. Add the well beaten eggs, then the sifted flour. Bake in a moderate oven in small pans. Brush the pans with a little melted butter so that the cakes will not stick.

Molasses Spice Cakes.—Cream together one-half cupful each of butter and sugar and molasses; then stir in two eggs and beat well. Add alternately one cupful of sour milk and two cupfuls of flour which has been sifted with a level teaspoonful each of soda, cinnamon, ginger and half as much of salt and cloves. Put into muffin tins, sprinkle with chopped nuts and bake.

Simple Recipes.

Plain Molasses Cake.—Take a cupful each of butter and sugar, two cupfuls of molasses, five cupfuls of flour, a little salt, two teaspoonfuls of baking powder and three well beaten eggs. Mix in the order named. Spices may be added to the flour to suit the taste. Butter a baking pan, pour the batter into it and bake.

Ginger Loaf.—Place in a bowl a cupful each of molasses and sour cream and mix into this two cupfuls of flour sifted with two level teaspoonfuls of soda, the same of ginger and a little salt. Add a beaten egg and bake.

Molly Played Better Than Before.

Daddy's Bedtime Story—Molly's Successful Piano Recital.

"MOLLY had a face like a little round moon," began daddy. "It was just as round as it could be, and her hair, which was curly all around her face, made her look still more like a moon; also she had a big mouth and smiled a great deal. Molly was very musical, and ever since she had been a little girl, so little that she had to be lifted to the piano stool, she had been able to play anything she heard.

"Her family were far from being well off, but they strove to give Molly a musical education. So every afternoon Molly went to a conservatory of music. She would carry her little music case with her and eagerly await the time for her music teacher to be ready for her. She always was ahead of time for her lesson.

"One day it was decided that Molly was so talented she could give a concert. So the evening for the concert was decided upon. Molly practiced and practiced the pieces she was to play.

"Molly had a special dress made for the occasion of white silk with a pink sash and a pink bow to match to tie around her hair. All the children were more excited than Molly herself and whispered: 'Oh, I'm so glad I'm not Molly! I should think she'd be so frightened!' 'Oh, I couldn't play a note with so many people listening to me!'

"But Molly was not at all nervous. She was very proud of her pretty new dress, for she had never had a really new dress before. She had always had to have the dresses of her older sisters cut down and made smaller for her. And Molly, too, wanted to please her teacher and do her best for his sake.

"When Molly walked on the stage she was applauded by all her little friends. She loved the lights and the faces of her friends in the audience, and she played better than she ever had before. When she was through her recital her friends presented her with a basket of yellow roses.

"Unknown to her, Molly's teacher had invited an old friend of his to the concert. This gentleman was very rich and fond of music. He liked to help along any one he felt deserved it. He was so delighted with Molly's playing that he rushed up to the little girl, saying: 'I shall send you and your mother to Germany. There you'll have the finest music teachers in the world. You will come back making us all very proud of you.'

"You can imagine how happy it made Molly, who had worked hard to be worthy of her family's struggles to give her lessons. But perhaps most of all it pleased her old teacher, who prayed that he might live to see his little pupil come back as a wonderful concert player."

ANTI-SUFFRAGE

Conducted by Plainfield Branch New Jersey Association Opposed to Woman Suffrage.

It occurs to me that a few general remarks from some of our prominent speakers and writers must find interested readers, at least, among those possessing "open" or unbiased minds.

I have endeavored to select a few passages from two of them, the first quotation being from Mrs. Scott, wife of Justice Francis M. Scott, of the Appellate Division of New York Supreme Court, quoting from an address before the judiciary committee of the Senate of that State:

"To many young persons, to many emotional persons, change is mistaken for progress. Thus in the train of the women so long identified with the demand for suffrage, who do not realize that the times have outgrown their cause, have followed many who, full of the unrestful spirit, are hurrying along, eager only for something different, something more, forgetting the inexorable law which science has laid down; the law we know as the Specialization of Function. In every line of life we see this law ruling development. Where there is a specialization there comes to be greater and greater perfection; nowhere is progress accompanied by a diffusion of force, but always by a concentration of effort in special directions. So, since the first development of sex, has specialization of the male and female types gone on; men have grown more manly, women more womanly. Are we alone of all nature to forcibly destroy the work of untold ages, and thrusting men and women together, demand that the work that each is beginning to be perfect in shall be indifferently done by both! And then, there are the assertions of greater virtue made for our sex without foundation. Again, in being equal we differ. Born as we are of man and woman, inheriting the mental and moral characteristics of both parents, we differ from our brothers only in so far as our physical limitations affect our organizations. Theirs are the robuster virtues, called to growth and strength by rough contact with the world. Theirs the word which serves for the bond; the responsibility which is the foundation of business life; the integrity on which justice rests; the broad mindedness, which gives each man his chance. And to balance all that, women have the spirit of self-sacrifice, the charity which forgives, the personal purity, all of which are essential to the existence of the home, and cause thir sons to rise up and call them blessed.

"I approach this question of morality with natural hesitation. It, and our physical disabilities are the points I spoke of earlier as being ignored when this question is seriously discussed, and yet unless considered this question cannot be properly dealt with.

"Who does not realize the present disinclination for motherhood which possesses so many of our younger generation, and who can see it without alarm? It can be traced to this unrestful desire for life outside the home. When motherhood is spoken of with contempt, when a home-life is considered too dull to be endured; when the ambition of the intellectual life becomes so warped as to be dissatisfied with any outlet but that of public life—what is to become the future?

"Do what we may, say what we can, we cannot break down the barrier of sex which indicates the parting of the ways."

Grace Duffield Goodwin says in the Introduction of Anti-Suffrage Ten Good Reasons:

"The demand for any sweeping and revolutionary change in existing conditions, whether political, industrial or religious, throws upon the sponsors of such a change the burden of proof. Present evils must be clearly demonstrated, and the proposed remedies must hold out a reasonable hope of permanent betterment. The ardent supporters of the present demand for universal adult suffrage (the exact meaning of "votes for women") are under the necessity of proving to American women their present evil condition, and of proving, also, that universal adult suffrage is the panacea.

"To fair-minded critics many of the arguments for limited female suffrage are plausible, and in some cases sound, such as those which base their demands upon a limited suffrage for women with educational and property qualifications. It must be remembered that twenty-six States in the Union have today some form of limited female suffrage, which, however, is of so little interest to the women concerned that the voting right is very rarely used. It is estimated that less than 2 per cent. of the New England women who are entitled and urged to vote upon school matters, ever take advantage of their opportunity.

"Those who oppose the universal franchise for women submit to men and women interested in this subject, that such a sane position as restricted suffrage is not advocated by suffragists. In this day of frenzied democracy, limited suffrage is not popular with men, much less with women. Suffragists desire full female citizenship with all the rights of men. It is against these wholesale claims that the anti-suffragists level their objections.

"We who sincerely and seriously oppose the program offered by the suffragists, unite in asking them to prove the evil condition of American women as a whole, and to demonstrate the remedial effect of the ballot when granted to women.

"We submit the proposition that American women, judged not by the individual, the group, or the class, but as a whole, are suffering under no wrongs which need for their redress the violent over-turning of the entire political machinery of the nation.

"We have no desire to confuse the issue by comparing our position with that of women in other countries. Few American can speak with intelligence regarding matters so purely local. We desire to act as American conditions demand, and we refuse to be stampeded by the oratory of women from England or elsewhere, who prove, by daily misstatement, that they are not informed concerning American conditions or American laws.

"Many women of this country are accepting English statements of American conditions, and declaring themselves to be suffragists without intelligently considering for themselves the political situation, the industrial and legal conditions now prevailing in their own country.

"Confused thought and unconsidered speech are the order of the day. It is highly desirable for us all to bring our brains into the discussion of the question, and to subject our emotions, our enthusiasms, our sympathies to the control of our reasoning powers. A large part of the suffrage movement at present, in its fervor and fury, represents the acme of hysterical feminine thoughtlessness and unrest. The remainder represents the impractical idealism of that class of men and women whose ardor carries them lightly over the many difficulties which are insurmountable for those who will be called upon in the future, to apply these roseate dreams to the common tasks of practical politics.

"In its application it is but a question of method, a discussion of ways and means—the best ways, the most effective means, of attaining undefined and half-understood political ends in a huge and ill-balanced democracy, struggling under the present burden of an already dangerously large electorate."

Two in a row at the hands of a bunch of New York collegians is going pretty good. If the Y. M. C. A. team had played fifty per cent. as well against Hope Chapel as it did against the N. Y. U. crowd matters might have been vastly different.

Home ties are bound to effect the work of an combination, but then you can't expect to win a city title from a bunch of foreigners.

Wonder if the Gotham crew will turn the trick in Saengerbund Hall this afternoon? Plainfield is getting to be a regular rendezvous for these New Yorkers. Townsend Hall High School basketeers are scheduled to lineup against the boroughites this afternoon.

Although Lidgate is keeping in good condition by playing the role of referee during the winter months, the burly baseball backstop has not had many chances to cause kicks. Arguments have been few and far between on the Association court this winter.

It's about time for Ernie Dorflinger to come out of hibernation. In the baseball season Ernie is the most prominent figure on the map but in the winter time he is seldom seen.

Despite the fact that the Scotch Plains aggregation has elected a captain and manager one does not hear very much from the 'Plainers in regard to real competition. What's the matter with basketball in that section this year? It looks as though a few grains of Brodziak was needed.

Dunellen is another portion of the New Jersey map where the game has become extinct. Last year the sport flourished in that village but the inhabitants have now forgotten what a basketball looks like.

If a lay-off has the same effect on bowlers as it has on baseball players, those local Elks must have a coating of rust about an inch thick by this time.

During the last two weeks there have been but two Elks' League matches rolled, one in Newark and the other—well, it was so long ago we have forgotten where it happened.

If some other teams besides Newark and New Brunswick don't get into action pretty soon either one of this pair is apt to cop the championship.

Everything appears to be all right in that Knights of Columbus League except the secretary. He has evidently forgotten a couple of the series for he certainly didn't have all of the games in his recent publication. That malady is common among bowling league secretaries, however, and we are willing to recognize the new league as a pretty healthy baby.

Query—What college football team had a player by the name of Eckersall during the season just closed? H. C.
Answer—Chicago University is the only one we know of.

Sporting Editor:
Query—What is the routine of work on a U. S. warship? What length of time can one enlist for? What is the average number of men on a warship? N. F.
Answer—There are many different occupations and space will not permit the outlining of the same. The term of enlistment is four years except in the case of boys under 18 who enlist for minority. The number of men varies with the size of the ship, some of latest battleships having a complement of 1,200 men.

BASEBALL NOTES

Dorflinger is one manager who does not worry about his players joining the Federals.

The Yale varsity nine, for the first time in years, will not open the home season of the New York Giants next spring.

President Britton, of the Cardinals, has decided to abolish the free score card system which was established at the St. Louis park last season.

Joe Birmingham, the Naps' manager, is speeding over the roads nowadays in a brand new automobile, a gift from President Somers, of the Cleveland club.

Manager Griffith, of the Washington Senators, has completed arrangements to care for fifty-five ball players at the training camp in Charlottesville, Va.

It is rumored in Tri-State League circles that the champion Wilmington club is for sale. It is evident that a pennant-winning outfit is not always a paying proposition.

Patsy Flaherty, the former big league pitcher and now manager of the Lynn team in the New England League, will coach the University of Georgia baseball candidates next spring.

"Chief" Bender, of the Athletics, is not only a wonderful baseball pitcher, but a corking good golfer, a proficient billiard player and a crack trap and live bird shooter as well.

The new $1,100 flagpole for the world's champion Athletics at Shibe Park will have a stone foundation. On this will rest a steel structure thirty-five feet high, in which the pole will be placed.

That McGraw school for managers is some institution. Managers Wilber Robinson, of Brooklyn; Charley Herzog, of Cincinnati; Harry McCormick, of Chattanooga, and Arthur Devlin, of Oakland, are all former Giants.

WITH THE BOXERS

"Wild Joe" Belasco is said to be the first Filipino to box as a professional in America.

Johnny Dundee and Phil Bloom have been matched to box at the Atlantic Garden, New York, January 13.

Freddie Welsh, the English lightweight champion, will meet Frankie Whitney, the lightweight champion of the South, in Aalanta on January 6.

Georges Carpentier, Europe's heavyweight champion, started boxing as a bantamweight. He has held the championship of France at all weights.

Young Kid Broad, the American welterweight, made his London ring debut the other night and finished on the losing end in a slapfest with one Peter Harris.

Battling Levinskey, the Philadelphia light heavyweight, continues to trim his opponents with neatness and dispatch. This Levinskey person may yet prove to be a champ.

Jim Flynn says he feels sure he could defeat Jack Johnson now that the champ has a broken wing. But even with a twisted wing the "Big Smudge" would be likely to put it over the man from Pueblo.

In a muss with Kid Lewis, of England, next month, Owen Moran will try to convince the boxing experts that he is still there with the mittens. The said experts recently rendered a unanimous decision that Owen is a "haser."

FITZ-DALY BOUT A CERTAINTY

Manager Meek Has About Completed Arrangements For Fight in Penna.

WILL IGNORE RULING

First Real Move in Action to Obtain Reversal of Decision Started This Afternoon—Meek's Plan to Make the Commissioners Listen.

Although boxing guardians have been endeavoring to keep the name of one Bob Fitzsimmons out of the sporting limelight and to keep his burly form off the rosined platform, it now seems certain that the big fellow's friends will see him back in the game even sooner than they have heretofore anticipated. A letter from Johnny Meek, Fitzsimmon's manager, states that he will start action against the Boxing Commission this afternoon, but the first encounter will not be swayed one way or another by the decision of last Tuesday.

Manager Meek announces that he has practically completed arrangements to have Bob re-enter the ring in Williamsport, Pa., January 22, when he will stack up against Dan Daly, a 206-pound aspirant to the heavyweight title. Daly offered to meet Fitzsimmons in the ring January 12, but Meek thought that the big fellow needed a little more polishing up and the "come-back" fight will there fore be delayed until the 22nd. Bob has continued training and claims that he will dispose of the heralded white hope in short order.

Manager Meek opens his court action with a corps of lawyers looking after Fitzsimmon's interests this afternoon and he is confident of securing a reversal of the decision which put Bob out of the New York State ring. In taking the first move Meek has secured the services of three world-famous doctors, one of whom is Dr. Donovan, of the New York A. C., and also the services of Bob Edgren, a life-long friend of the "Ruby" scrapper.

It is Meek's plan to get affidavits from all four of these famous sport experts and then place the entire data before the commission. Meek claims that the commissioners will be reluctant to go on record as having ignored the statements of the world-famous individuals and will give some time and thought to Fitzsimmon's claims at the next meeting.

TWO GAMES IN Y. M. C. A.

A double bill of basketball has been arranged for the Y. M. C. A. "gym" tonight, the first team lining up against a picked group of stars in the Association and the Necco A. C., a team of Plainfield High School players lining up against the Marathon A. C., of North Plainfield. The first originally had a game booked with the Y. M. A., of South Bound Brook, but the latter manager cancelled the engagement at the last moment.

DECIDING GAME WON BY PLAINS BOYS

Pastime A. C. Beaten in Close Fight for Junior Honors.

In a basketball game which was decided wholly on the ability of the opposing five to cage field goals, as no fouls figured in the scoring, the Scotch Plains Parish House Juniors, playing on their home court, defeated the Pastime A. A new comer on the Parish House floor by the name of Day rung up sixteen points for the Pastimes. Howell chalked five field goals for the Plains boys, the person cage behind.

CEDARCROFT TEAM LOST SPEEDY GAME

First of the Series with Cranford Brought Out Some Good Hockey.

Hockey players representing the Cranford Canoe Club opened their season here yesterday afternoon with a 1 to 0 victory over the Cedarcroft players on the latter's ring in Park avenue. Despite the fact that the lack of ice has made it impossible for the teams to get in much practice the rival septets displayed surprising form, with the result that every manoeuvre was fast and interesting.

Dean Mathey, of tennis fame, was the little sharpshooter to register the winning ace for the visitors from his position at center, the Cranford score came after a flurry of fast playing and was well-earned. Yesterday's setto was the opening round of the annual series between the two clubs.

The lineups:

CRANFORD.		CEDARCROFT

NEWS OF INTEREST IN THE PLAINFIELD BUILDING WORLD

New Parish House For Grace Church Is Nearing Completion

Splendid Gift of T. J. Mumford Is Most Elaborate Building Recently Completed on West Eighth Street—Every Possible Convenience and Many Unusual Effects in Interior Finish.

Thomas J. Mumford of West Ninth street, is having a two and a half story stucco and lime stone dwelling erected on West Eighth street, between Central avenue and New street, which when completed will be presented to the Grace Episcopal church as a memorial to Mr. Mumfords wife. The building will be used as a rectory. It is estimated that the cost will be about $27,000, and the house will be ready for occupancy about April 1. The frontage of the building will be fifty-five feet while the depth will be forty-eight feet.

Set upon a small terrace the exterior of the house will be shown to good advantage. The foundation and first story walls has been built of gray lime stone lined with white mortar. The upper walls of the building are of hollow tile faced with white stucco. Throughout the stucco artistic designs and carvings of chestnut, finished naturally, have been inlaid. The roof which is of the peaked type will be covered with slate and has copper gutters and leaders. At the southwest end of the house is a large veranda with a floor of tile and roof supported by four large square columns of gray limestone. At the rear a wide terrace with dark red tile floor has been built.

The basement contains a store room, servants toilet, ash pits, coal bins, boiler room wood storeroom, dark storage and two other large storage rooms.

Leading to the large entrance doors is a short flight of steps of gray lime stone with a handsomely carved balustrade, and a tile floored vestibule. The doors are arched at the top and have leaded glass windows and both sides are leaded glass panels. Two large coat closets are at either side of the door on the inside and are finished in oak. The hall runs the depth of the house and from it run the stairs. It is finished with a double arch over the stairs of oak artistically carved and finished, oak detail trim around the ways and oak paneling over the walls of the staircase. All the trimmings have been stained a light oak.

To the right of the hall, at the front of the house is the reception room which is trimmed in quartered white oak, white walls and ceilings and parquet flooring. At the rear of the reception room is the living room and library, and the walls are encased with high bookcases of white oak with carved tops and doors of paneled leaded art glass. In the center of the southwest wall of this room a large open fireplace has been built faced with gray pressed bricks and set off with linings of a dark red mortar. The trimmings of this room like the others is of white quartered oak stained light oak, white walls and ceilings and parquet flooring. The floor of the fireplace is of large square gray colored tile. Entrance from the reception room into the living room, as well as from the living room into the main hall, is through double doors with leaded glass panels, and white oak casings. French windows with leaded glass panes lead from the reception room and living room to the veranda and terrace.

The dining room is located at the left of the main hall at the front of the main structure. The ceiling finished in white is arched, as is a small recess with reclining seat at the northeast side of the room. In the front a large bay window with arched ceiling and window seat has been built. From this seat a good view of Eighth street is permitted. At the center of the southeast wall of the room is a large open fireplace of gray pressed bircks with flooring of large square tile. At the left of the fireplace is a large closet for the storage of table linens while at the other side is the door leading into the butlers pantry. The walls to the heighth of seven feet from the floor will be encased with quartered oak paneling finished in mission style. The walls above the paneling will be white.

At the rear of the dining room is the butlers pantry with three dressers, plate warmer and sink, and beyond is the kitchen, as well as a small servants hall. The kitchen is fully equipped. The servants hallway forms the rear doorway to the kitchen and opens upon a lavatory, a refrigerating room and a laundry, in which is a garbage burner and stove, set upon tile floors. At the rear there is a servants porch with floor of concrete. The roof of the porch is finished with a stucco facing and is set off with square columns of chestnut stained dark oak, and railings and banisters of carved chestnut.

The stairs main stairway is of oak, with oak treads and risers to the third floor. Handsomely carved oak posts support equally handsome balustrade and hand rail. On the second floor to the right of the stairway are two bedrooms, the one on the extreme south corner having a large open fireplace built in the outside wall, of gray pressed brick marked with dark red mortar. Between these two rooms a private bathroom is located with floor, walls and ceiling of tile. Each bedroom has two large closets the doors of which are faced with full sized plate glass mirrors.

At the front of the house there are two other bedrooms, a linen closet with dresser, a bathroom with shower attachment, medicine cabinet, splendid fixtures and tile floor. At the rear of the second floor there are two servants rooms, a servants bathroom, a rear hall upon which the rear stairs open and two large storage closets. Entrance to the rear hall is gained from the front hall by passing under an artistic plaster arch which spans the ceiling. At the side of the staircase on the first floor and at the head of the stairs on the second story two large lounging seats that can be used to store clothing have been built with handsomely carved face boards of oak, which have been stained a weathered oak color. The top floor will be used only as an attic for the prsent.

Marsh and Gette, of Plainfield and New York drew the plans for the building. Wyman & Haberle are doing the carpenter work; B. F. Tallamy and Brother the masonry; Arthur F. Newman, the plumbing, gas piping and installing of the hot water heating system; Charles Conover & Co. the painting and interior decorating; John Cose the slate roofing and has done the copper gutter and leader work. Allen B. Laing is wiring the building and the Plainfield Tile Company is supplying and laying the tile work.

The majority of the material used in the erection of the building has been furnished by Boice, Runyon & Company.

DECEMBER PERMITS TOTALED $52,297

Eighteen Granted by Chief Doane, With First Ward in the Lead in Value.

Building summary for the month of December, 1913.

	New Buildings	Alterations	Total
1st Ward..	$20,100	.....	$20,100
2nd Ward..	11,550	$ 250	11,800
3rd Ward..	7,500	.....	7,500
4th Ward..	697	12,200	12,897
Total ..	$39,847	$12,450	$52,297

During the month of December eighteen permits were granted by T. O. Doane, the local building inspector. Thirteen of these permits were for the erection of new buildings, four for alterations to present structures and one for the installation of a gasoline tank. The Second and Fourth wards had the highest number of permits issued which were, for the Second ward five for new buildings and one for alterations, and the Fourth ward three for new buildings and three for alterations. The First Ward had four permits issued for the erection of new buildings and in the Third ward only two permits were issued for new structures while neither ward was issued a permit for alterations.

Although the First ward had only four permits issued during the month the total amount of money involved in these few led the other three wards. Its total was $20,100. For the season when the building trades are practically idle the figures prove that this year has been an exception alone. In every section of the city building has been booming and the growth of the Queen City has extended in all directions.

The total amount of money involved in the erection of new buildings for the month of December is about three times the amount of the alteration planned for the same period. This comparison shows that the property owners in and around this city are inclining towards new building investments, rather than to the improving of property already erected.

The cellars each contain a boiler-room, coal bins and launory. The main entrances open into large living rooms; to the right of the entrances are the stairways leading to the second stories. At the base of the stairways large commodious hall seats which can be used for storing clothing have been erected. The living rooms are on the left hand side of the main entrances and are separated from the dining rooms only by large columned and arched openings. Both the living rooms and dining rooms have false beamed ceilings faced with chestnut left natural, as the the detailed trimmings of all the rooms on the first floor. These rooms have access to the large veranda and breakfast porches by means of double French windows. The second story hallways run crosswise the entire width of the buildings and open upon sleeping porches at the southerly end of the structures. Each house has three large bedrooms, with ample closet room, one bathroom each, with the Standard enamel fixtures and medicine cabinet and large linen closet. Two window seats have been placed in each house and one large lounging seat is included. The rooms on the second floor for both houses will be finished with white wood trimmings, white enameled and white walls and ceilings. The flooring throughout both buildings will be of hardwood filled, waxed and polished. Combination gas and electric lighting fixtures will be installed in each structure. The exteriors are shingled, one painted white and the other brown. One structure has a front and side porch, with sleeping porch at rear on first story and small garage at the rear, while the other has only the front porch. All the materials used in the construction including the millwork and interior decorative materials were furnished by the J. D. Loizeaux Lumber Company. The owner will upon request of either tenant or buyer decorate the interior to his or her taste.

SLONIM'S SHOP HAS $10,000 IMPROVEMENT

Jewelry Store Will Be One of the Finest Business Houses in Town.

Leo Slonim, the West Front street jeweler is having extensive alterations made to the store and two upper stories of the building that he will occupy after the first of the year. With the cost of the store equipment that is being made especially for his use it is estimated that the entire cost of the change will be about $10,000.

The work will include a complete overhauling of all three stories, with an addition of thirty-eight feet at the rear of the building for the store section. This will give the owner a store about a hundred and ten feet deep and forty feet wide. The store floor will be occupied by the regular selling space, an optical room and a ladies retiring room which will be fitted up with lounging and toilet quarters. This will be the first store in this city that will have a ladies retiring room for its patrons.

The show cases and other equipment which is being made specially for the owner will be of solid mahogany, as will the panelling which will cover the walls above the top of the show cases. The floors will be covered with one of the most up-to-date styles of floor covering, the exact style not having been decided upon as yet.

In addition to it being the only store in town having a ladies retiring room, it will also be the best naturally lighted store space that can be found in the business section of this town. Gas piping and electric wiring are being installed as well as a steam heating system. The ceiling will be covered with sheet metal thereby making it semi-fireproof.

The front show windows will be of heavy plate glass with a marquise at the top. The marquise will be of leaded art glass and will extend out above the show windows over the sidewalk. A copper cornice with the embossed name of the owner has already been placed above the space to be occupied by the marquise. Around the base of the windows highly polished slabs of granite will be placed. The entrance to the store will be enclosed by the show windows as well as an extension of the marquise, which will not extend quite as far out as that above the outside windows. The floor of the entrance is of heavy glass squares set in concrete.

Charles H. Smith drew the plans for the changes; George D. Wilson is doing the carpenter work; Conniff Brothers the masonry; Charles Dutcher is installing the steam heating system; Patrick E. Neylon the sheet metal ceiling work and the Newark Cornice & Skylight Company the copper cornice work. James R. Jeffers laid the concrete sidewalk as well as the glass and concrete entrance to the building.

The contracts for the plumbing, electric wiring and gas piping have not been awarded up to the present time.

The ground floor will consist of a laboratory, 18 by 21 feet, to be used by the owner for experimental work, and a garage.

For a number of years Mr. Repp has had a laboratory on Park place, New York, which recently was closed, because of his removal to this city. Now that he has become settled he will again take up the experimental work. It is estimated that the machinery to be installed in the laboratory will cost the owner about $12,000.

George H. Fisher, Jr., drew the plans for the building. Contracts for the work have not been awarded as yet.

—To go straight to the right store, at the right time, in making a particular purchase, is not a matter of luck, or of general knowledge of the stores,—but of keeping in touch with store advertising all the time.

WIDEN AND REPAIR BRIDGE.

The Union County Board of Freeholders have had a four-foot extension added to the southwest end of the culvert which covers Cedar brook on Watchung avenue, between Franklin place and Carlton avenue at an estimated cost of $250. Besides the addition to the width of the walk the underside of the bridge was pointed up and the fence railings were given a new coat of paint. Charles A. Peterson did the work. Owing to the volume of water which passes through them in wet weather, the inlets which carry off the surface water from Watchung avenue have become badly damaged and repairs are necessary. It is understood that within a short time the necessary repairs will be made.

—Merchants realize that the housewives who appreciate "special sales" are critical buyers—and that mere price-lure is not enough. The goods must be RIGHT.

—Some store may be placing on "special sale" just now the article you have not felt like paying "regular" prices for.

—To the housewife the value-quest is unending—for it is a part of her daily "business." And this fact makes the store ads a "business matter" with her.

MANUFACTURING CONDITIONS HERE

Managers of Most Local Plants Look Forward to a Fairly Good Year.

RATHER SLOW NOW

Saurer Concern About Only One Whose Prospects Do Not Look Bright—Scott Press Co. Unusually Busy.

The prospects for a busy year in the local manufacturing plants are fairly good according to representatives of the various factories, with one exception and that is the Saurer plant of the International Motor Company, where there appears to be a great deal of uncertainty as to the future. There is a belief on the part of some that this concern will close down in the near future. The force has been reduced considerably, at present there being not more than eighty or ninety men employed.

The purchasing department of the Saurer plant will be removed to the Mack plant at Allentown this week, and only recently the engineering force was removed to the New York office. The men in the assembling department are somewhat busy and an order for four trucks received a few days ago will keep them busy for awhile. The force in every department has been reduced to a minimum, and those employed there are just awaiting developments. Of course, if a sufficient number of orders are received the force will be increased, but this does not seem likely at present.

The Potter Printing Press Works has been quite active for some time, although orders are slowing down a trifle. A full force of men is employed in the various departments on regular time. According to the concern, the new year's prospects are good and no especial curtailment of force or business is anticipated in the immediate future.

The Walter Scott Printing Press Works has been very busy the past few months, more men being employed than at any time since 1907. A full force is employed in all departments and there is an indication that the coming year will be a good one, judging by the present outlook.

While the Hall Printing Press Company has been pretty busy of late, it is said that business is slowing up a little. The usual force is employed at the regular schedule of hours.

Until quite recently there has been considerable work at the Pond Machine Tool Works, but just now the force is working on a shorter schedule and a few men have been laid off, more especially in the foundry, where there has not yet been the usual amount of casting to be done. There is a feeling, however, that business will soon pick up and the regular schedule of hours will be returned to in the near future.

OBSERVE CHAPEL'S 26TH ANNIVERSARY

Hope's Sunday School Pupils Celebrate the Event at Special Exercises.

Special exercises to commemorate the twenty-sixth anniversary of the founding of Hope Chapel Sunday-school were held in the school yesterday afternoon and despite the unfavorable weather conditions there was a large attendance of the pupils. A feature of the afternoon's program was a roll-call from a roster compiled when the first meeting was held in the new chapel on January 1, 1888, and which consisted of the names of twenty-seven pupils. Out of the original twenty-seven two were present yesterday afternoon and answered "Present" to their names, they being Mrs. S. R. Struthers and Frederick H. Andrews.

G. Herbert Condict, the present superintendent of the school, presided at the anniversary services, which were held previous to the regular class sessions, and he introduced the Rev. John Sheridan Zelie as the principal speaker of the afternoon. Dr. Zelie's talk was of a personal nature and he complimented the school officers and pupils on the progress made in the work at that place and expressed a wish that the progress would continue through the new year. James E. Kimball represented the Bethel Chapel Sunday-school at the session.

INFORMAL PROGRAM FOR NIGHT PUPILS

Experiment Was Successful But No Plans Were Made for the Future.

A small but enthusiastic audience attended the opening night of recreation work for night schools at the Washington School auditorium, on Saturday night, and enjoyed an evening of informal amusement which was supervised by the members of the committee. Miss Anna Melvin, the director of recreation work, was unable to be present and therefore no definite plans were laid for a continuance of the work on a weekly schedule.

Vocal selections rendered by some of the more talented pupils in their native tongue supplied entertainment for the guests and a feature of the program was a Finnish selection by a trio of pupils speaking that language.

Following the program of music a dance was enjoyed and refreshments, consisting of ice cream and cake, were served later in the evening.

COMPANY K NOTE.

The regular January business meeting of Company K will be held at the close of the regular drill session tonight. It is expected that the annual election of officers for the ensuing year will also be held at the meeting. Chairmen for the various fair committees will be selected and a definite date for the annual fair will be arranged.

XMAS TREE FIRE CAUSED BIG LOSS

Blaze at Rob't Beguelin Home Resulted in $75,000 Damage to Property.

SOME NARROW ESCAPES

Presence of Mind of Governess Saves Lives—Cook Only One Hurt—Mrs. Beguelin Was Formerly Elsie Pfeifer, of This City.

Brooklyn, Jan. 5.—A blazing Christmas tree in the library at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Beguelin, of 52 Eighth avenue, Saturday night, endangered the lives of five persons, all of whom were rescued, and did property damage to the extent of $75,000. Mrs. Beguelin was formerly Miss Elsie Pfeifer, of Plainfield, where she lived for a number of years before her marriage to Mr. Beguelin, a diamond importer.

The gift tree was lighted for the benefit of Virginia Beguelin, five years old, who had as her guest Gregory Price, three years old, who was accompanied by his governess, Miss Marie Moser, who called for help.

Seizing the children, Miss Moser summoned Mrs. Beguelin, who turned on a fire extinguished, which did little good. Escape to the street by the lower stair was cut off and the occupants of the house were driven to the second floor. A servant gave the alarm and the fire department was called to the scene of the fire. A crowd gathered and made an improvised life net with overcoats into which the children jumped to safety.

By this time the engines had arrived. Captain James Walsh put up a ladder, which fell short of reaching the window by ten feet or more. Mrs. Beguelin, unable to maintain her grip on the sill any longer, fell with great force into the fire captain's arms. In a moment a longer ladder was placed and Miss Moser and the cook were taken down.

The Beguelin house was one of the handsomest in the slope section of Brooklyn and it is one block from the home of the late Mayor Gaynor. Mr. Beguelin is a diamond importer in Maiden lane. His firm is Cross & Beguelin.

Mary Hammond, the cook, was the only one injured. In making her way to the upper floor after giving the alarm she was painfully burned about the hands and face.

SHOT BY HUSBAND, MRS. CRUSEK DIES

No Trace of Bullet Found When Autopsy is Performed on Young Woman Victim.

Somerville, Jan. 5.—Mrs. Michael Crusek, who was shot by her husband as she was leaning over a trunk at her home at Manville on Sunday, November 30, died on Saturday at Somerset Hospital, as a result of the wounds. Ever since the shooting the woman had been in a critical condition. Because of her uncertain condition the December grand jury did not indict her husband, but now it is probable that the jury will be reconvened.

Crusek claimed that he was examining the revolver when it was accidentally discharged. It is said, however, that the couple had been quarreling the night previous. Mrs. Crusek was about twenty years old.

An autopsy was performed on the body Saturday, under the direction of Dr. W. H. Long, county physician. No trace of the bullet could be found, which must have gone through the body of the victim.

UNCLE TOM'S CABIN PROF. PERRY'S TOPIC

Harvard Scholar Tells of Harriet Beecher Stowe and History Making Novel.

Prof. Bliss Perry, the Harvard lecturer, gave the fifth and last of his series of talks on epoch making novels at the Hartridge Auditorium on Saturday night, Harriet Beecher Stowe's "Uncle Tom's Cabin," being the subject. He was well received by a large audience which gathered, despite the decidedly inclement weather, and by many the talk was thought to be the most interesting of all.

After briefly reviewing the history of slave-trade legislation in this country from early in the eighteenth century up to 1852, and the passage of the Fugitive Slave Law, when Mrs. Stowe wrote the book, the speaker launched into a highly interesting description of her life, and how she came to write the novel. Harriett Elizabeth Beecher was born in Litchfield, Conn., on June 14, 1811, the daughter of a minister. In 1832 the family moved to Cincinnati, Ohio, and four years later she became the second wife of Prof. Calvin E. Stowe, of the theological seminary in that city. The speaker declared that Prof. Stowe was an easy going man, and that the burden not only of running the family but doing much that usually falls upon the man, was thrust upon Mrs. Stowe. It was while in Cincinnati that Mrs. Stowe gained much of the information and experience which she later put into the characters in her book, as that city was one of the stations on the famous "underground railroad" by which slaves were aided in their efforts to reach Canada. It was declared that Mrs. Stowe's actual experience in a slave state was of but two weeks' duration, when she visited a farm in Kentucky, but that every household servant which her father had was a former slave, and many of the chapters in "Uncle Tom's Cabin" are based on actual experiences of these people. The writing of the book was begun in 1850, after Prof. Stowe had taken his family to Brunswick, Maine, where he assumed a professorship at Bowdoin College, and it was all completed but the last chapter, when the family moved to Andover, where Prof. Stowe was called in 1852 to accept a chair in the Theological Seminary.

Mrs. Stowe was prompted to write the story by her sister, who had read some brief sketches which she had written in 1849, and who urged her to tell the real story of the slaves. The book first appeared as a serial, beginning in 1851 in the "National Era" a magazine published in Washington. It did not make a very vivid impression at that time, but the first day a Boston publisher put it on sale in book form 3,000 copies were sold, and 10,000 the first week. It was translated into many languages, and the royalties received from its publication made it possible for the Stowe family to live a life of ease from that time on.

The speaker declared that the work on the book was done at odd moments, a few lines at a time, between the housework and the care of five young children. There was no effort to accomplish a definite purpose, but merely to set before the people of the world the true conditions in the South during slavery days. Several extracts were read to prove this assertion.

Prof. Perry quoted an instance to show that the force which made the heart of the Northern army in the Civil War had been nurtured in boyhood and youth on "Uncle Tom's Cabin," and carried the book in their hearts. The intense humanity of the story made it appeal to all of the people of the thirty nations in whose language it was published, and it was declared that it will continue to appeal forever. Aside from the deathbed speeches of Uncle Tom and Little Eva, he said that there was not a line in the book that was exaggerated, or did not portray possible happenings. It was declared that the very fact that the book is not strong in deliberate and conscious art and has not the finish of the student who writes in privacy made it all the more effective and gives to it much of its fresh and homely nature. While her work has been surpassed in some particulars, her power to win and impress a great audience of readers warrants the statement that no American novelist has equaled her.

In concluding Prof. Perry thanked his hearers for the courtesy which has been extended to him throughout his course of lectures here.

BESLER AT WORK SAVING PROPERTY

Jersey Central's Manager On Scene of Storm's Ravages on the Coast.

ROAD LOST $10,000

S. S. Carvalho's House Damaged—10,000 People Flock to Shore to See Damage Wrought—Octagon Hotel Gone.

Vice President and General Manager W. G. Besler, of the New Jersey Central, who resides here, was among those who directed the work of rescue and protection of property along the Jersey coast yesterday, following the terrific nor'easter which struck the coast late Friday night and Saturday. He spent most of the day at Normandie-by-the-Sea, where he put in much hard work. Mr. Besler says that the damage to the New Jersey Central's tracks at that place will cost about $10,000 to repair, and that the road suffered at other points along the shore.

There are many Plainfielders who have summer homes along the coast, and among those who suffered losses was S. S. Carvalho, of West Eighth street, whose home was damaged. It is estimated that fully 10,000 people flocked to the shore yesterday to witness the vast waste of destruction and the angry sea, the greater crowd being in the vicinity of Seabright, which perhaps suffered the worst of any of the shore places.

The famous Octagon Hotel, five stories high, which cost $75,000 to build and which has been a favorite resort for people from all parts of the country, was swept into the sea yesterday. Hundreds of houses suffered a similar fate, leaving many people homeless. So far as known no lives have been lost. The total damage is estimated at $1,000,000, and that to Seabright about $400,000.

Sea walls and bulkheads were carried away like so much paper, and as the cost of restoring them will be so great, steps have already been taken to secure Federal aid in this work. As Seabright has but $12,000 in its treasury available for relief work, no doubt outside aid will be sought to help needy families and restore order out of chaos.

YOUNG MAN CONVERTED BY A PASTOR'S SERMON

Despite the storm the service at the Park Avenue Baptist church last night was well attended and the sermon by the pastor, Rev. Dr. Maguire, on "The Man Who Can," was one of peculiar power.

At the close of the sermon one young man in the congregation expressed his desire to lead a Christian life. The service throughout was an impressive one and well repaid all those who attended many of them from long distances.

Ten Thousand Dollar Pearl Necklace Among the Loot—Booty's Value Estimated at $15,000 Fully Insured—Second Story Job Carefully Planned—Burglars Made Get-away in High Power Car.

The largest haul in eighteen years, according to police records, occurred on Saturday night when burglars entered a second story window of the home of former State Senator Ernest R. Ackerman, at 506 West Eighth street, and made off with jewelry valued at $15,000 and several hundred dollars in cash from a bureau drawer while the family was at dinner. Leaving behind a small fortune in valuables close at hand, the crook or crooks got away in a high-powered automobile. The loot was chiefly the property of Mrs. Ackerman. It is covered by insurance. Police Chief Kiely and a Pinkerton Detective Agency man are working on the case practically without a clue.

The most costly article taken was a necklace containing eighty-five pearls and valued at $10,000. Mrs. Ackerman has been years in matching and collecting the costly ornaments and but recently had 10 stones added to the string. It is the theory of the police that professional second-story men traced the pearls from a New York jewelers to the Ackerman home a week ago. It is thought that since that time, they had so minutely studied the lay-out of the house, and the situation of the bureau that they were able to enter Mrs. Ackerman's room from a window after scaling a porch column, grab the loot and escape within a period of several minutes.

Senator Ackerman was dressing in a room adjoining that of his wife, previous to dinner. At about 6:45 o'clock he descended the long stairway and walked along the hallway and thence into the dining room, where he joined Mrs. Ackerman at the table. A high-powered American roadster with large searchlights spreading rays of light far ahead, with engine running, stood near the driveway of the estate, in Liberty street, facing south. Footprints around a clump of bushes, near where the auto stood, indicate that every move made by Mr. Ackerman as he left the room on the second floor to go to the dining room had been noted by a man in hiding. Two men were seen in the automobile by Michael Higgins, a hackman, who passed at the time. They sat huddled in the machine, their faces partly concealed by the collars of the heavy fur coats they wore.

As the Senator was enjoying his meal he heard a door slam shut. He thought this unusual as no windows had been opened to allow a draft to enter and becoming suspicious, ran from the table to the second floor. He found the third drawer of his wife's bureau open, and a jewelry box containing the valuables gone. As if in answer to his hurriedly inquiring gaze an automobile containing three men turned the corner and at mile-a-minute speed sped away and was hidden by the darkness. Thep sent a taunting screech of the electric siren as they disappeared.

Running to the telephone, Mr. Ackerman called police headquarters telling Sergeant Maurice Higgins, who answered, that his house had been robbed of thousands of dollars worth of jewels. Higgins notified Police Chief Patrick J. Kiely at his residence and hurried to the Ackerman home. Kiely arrived soon after and took charge of the case.

The authorities of surrounding municipalities were notified by telephone and word was sent to all garages and road-houses to have the occupants of all strange automobiles detained. But no word has been received from any place regarding the capture of any suspects. Although the car is said to have contained a New York license number and to have proceeded east, when the thieves were making their getaway, a check made out to Mrs. Ackerman by H. E. Weber for $25 on the Third National Bank of Cumberland was found in the street at the intersection of Plainfield avenue and West Fourth street, indicating that the burglars had either traveled westward, casting the check away as they went, or had made a detour of the city, to throw off pursuers.

Investigation showed that the looter who entered Mrs. Ackerman's room had climbed to the roof of the porch on the West Eighth street side of the residence. Prying open a window he crawled through the opening. Once inside he closed the sash and passed into Mrs. Ackerman's room. Taking the supposed precaution to open a window on the Liberty street side of the house, this act led to the discovery of his presence, for, as the sashed was raised a draft of air

FAILED TO IDENTIFY ALLEGED SWINDLERS

Pair Held at Fall River for Victimizing Women Here Are Released.

Men supposed to be Felix Marks and Joseph Codack, both of Richmond street, this city, who it is alleged swindled two local women out of $900 several months ago, have been caught in Fall River, Mass. Police Chief John Fleet, of that city, notified Chief Kiely and the latter communicated with Mrs. Marks, a wife of one of the swindlers, who secured $600 from his spouse under the pretense of buying a house in Newark. After journeying to the New England city the woman said she was unable to positively identify the two prisoners and they were released. Codack was the fiance of a Polish girl.

According to the police Marks and Codack planned jointly to swindle the women and telling them that they were going to buy a large house and store in Newark, where all could live happily together induced the unsuspecting wife and bride-to-be, respectively, to turn over their life savings. When the men got the money, it is alleged, they left town. Letters and photographs were found by Mrs. Marks showing that her husband had "married" other women in various cities, and this led the police to believe that he made a practice of going from place to place, making love to women, marrying them and swindling them of their savings.

Adrift In the Arctic, Fate of the Karluk Is Causing Uneasiness

CAPTAIN ROBERT BARTLETT, commander of the Canadian exploring vessel Karluk, the man who navigated Peary in his successful expedition to the north pole, and his crew and a number of scientists, who joined the Stefansson expedition, have disappeared in the arctic. Vilhjalmur Stefansson, the leader of the expedition, and several others, with whom he left the ship shortly before she was carried into the outside ice, are safe ashore at Point Barrow.

Stefansson and his party started last June to explore the unknown arctic region bordering on the north pole and to define the limits of an unexplored continent which Stefansson and other arctic experts believe to exist in those regions. Stefansson took with him the largest scientific staff ever taken on an arctic expedition, and all told the expedition had four ships. A section of the expedition was to explore and make ethnological and other scientific studies in Victoria Land.

Fears have been freely expressed for the safety of Captain Bartlett and the men on board the Karluk, but Captain Bartlett is an experienced and resourceful arctic navigator, and even if the ship is crushed those who know him best believe that he will extricate his party. The ship was provisioned for three years. Admiral Robert E. Peary, who employed Bartlett as his navigator, said recently in an interview:

"To those who think that Bartlett will not come back I say they had better wait for a little while. I know Bartlett pretty well, and—well, he'll be heard of again all right.

VILHJALMUR STEFANSSON, LEADER OF THE CANADIAN ARCTIC EXPEDITION.

"Of course in regard to his ship, the Karluk, it is impossible to tell what has happened to her as long as she is surrounded by the real polar ice, for as long as a vessel is in polar ice an accident may happen at any moment. The ice may press around the vessel until her braces and crossbeams are broken, but the very pressure of the ice will keep the vessel from going to the bottom until some change in the tidal current or of the wind releases the pressure. Then the boat will go down like a stone, but, of course, the crew will have had plenty of warning.

"[illegible] if the vessel goes Bartlett has had sufficient experience with me to have his essential supplies all on deck so that in a moment he can have them overboard where the crew can get at them.

"His boats, too, will be all ready, as mine were when we went to the pole, each with its rifle, shotgun, stove, biscuit, matches, compass, pemmican, axes, hatchet, tea and coffee, so that all that has to be done is to lower the boats on the ice. They are so equipped that the crew can start at once in perfect safety for the nearest land, hauling the boats over the ice. The land may be twenty or thirty days of travel away."

Rumors have also gained currency to the effect that differences had arisen between the leader of the expedition and Captain Bartlett and that the captain had abandoned Stefansson after the latter had gone ashore with a party to hunt. But those who know both men give no credence to these rumors. The directors of the Explorers' club, of which organization both Stefansson and Bartlett are members, met at their headquarters in New York city the other day and passed a resolution disputing the rumors and expressing their entire confidence in Stefansson as a just and competent leader and in Bartlett as the soul of loyalty.

Plainfield, N. J., January 5, 1913.

TIME FOR ACTION.

In advising the Common Council that the police and fire forces be increased, Mayor Stewart has but reiterated the suggestion made by former city executives. That more policemen and more firemen, particularly the former, are needed, is quite evident to all familiar with the present conditions of those departments. This has been the situation for some years past. How long it is going to be allowed to continue is a question.

Few cities have so small a police force in proportion to population as has Plainfield. The beats here as a rule are necessarily so large that the policemen cannot attempt to cover them properly and as a result many parts of the city are unprotected. This is a fact and there is no sense in suppressing it. The condition should be rectified and without delay. As the saying is, "don't lock the stable door after the horse is stolen."

THE PENNY PAPER.

Another newspaper has learned that the penny daily in the smaller cities of the country is not a profitable undertaking and this time it is the Trenton State Gazette whose experience has caused it to increase the price to two cents per copy beginning with today's issue. As the reason for the change, that newspaper says that "during the past year the failure of many penny newspapers has been recorded and others have increased their price to two cents because they have found it necessary to do so to put their business on a fairly paying basis."

As the State Gazette says: "When the cost of printing and delivering a penny daily newspaper to its readers has been met, there is absolutely no profit left for the publisher. In fact, there is a loss that has to be borne by the advertiser, which is not fair to him."

A GROWING INDUSTRY.

Few people in Plainfield realize that, although housed in comparatively small buildings, there is located here as complete a talking machine plant as in any place in the country. An inspection of the Vitaphone factory near the Netherwood station reveals a compact and thorough organization, with modern and methodical management, which gives promise of making this one of the city's principal industries. The company is now manufacturing machines of many sizes, but because of limited space has had great trouble in keeping up with orders.

An organization of young men, who know the talking machine business from top to bottom, producing a machine which they justly claim is superior to any on the market at the same prices, is one that should be encouraged, and we hope to see the day when Plainfield will share fame with Camden and Orange as the home of a great talking machine industry.

The Vitaphone Company is not making any great noise about what it has done, and what it intends to do, but it deserves the support and hearty co-operation of every citizen of Plainfield. If there are any persons who doubt the statements regarding the merits of the product of this factory, they may soon disabuse their minds by a visit to the plant, where the latch string is always out.

We hope to see the day when the Vitaphone Company will employ hundreds of hands, and a friendly word by Plainfield citizens when opportunity presents can do much to aid this lively industry.

The venerable Dr. Charles W. Eliot, has framed up a religion all his own but the only one who could get any comfort out of it would be the famous scholar himself, and it is quite likely that he would soon tire of it.

Col. Goethals is firm in his refusal of the offer of New York's police commissionership. The Colonel knows when he is well off.

Speaking at Montclair yesterday, Dr. Harvey W. Wiley, the pure food expert took a fling at Taft, Roosevelt and Wilson. Getting real peevish isn't he?

The finding of the body of Jessie McCann in the ocean has robbed the morbid writers of white slave stories of another of their tales of mysteries.

GAVE 'PHONEY CHECKS ON ORDERING GOODS

Stutzenberg Was Most Liberal as Man Without Money—Ordered Out of Town.

John Stutzenberg, formerly of New Rochelle, N. Y., employed as a gardener by P. D. Sakiatvala, of 73 Leland avenue, caused all sorts of trouble by giving out "phony" checks and ordering goods indiscriminately from local and out of town merchants, was arraigned before City Judge W. G. DeMeza on Saturday. It was the opinion of the court and the police that the prisoner had been drinking heavily and he was released under a suspended sentence upon his promise to leave town at once.

Stutzenberg first attracted the attention of the police on Friday, when John Sharkey, a local butcher, showed Chief Kiely a check for $32.47 said to have been made out by Stutzenberg and given to a Mrs. Townley, of 317 Netherwood avenue, to pay a bill. The check was no good, there being no funds to meet it.

Other queer antics by Stutzenberg, which brought many complaints to the police included the ordering of $100 worth of flowers from C. L. Stanley, four wagon loads of crushed stone, bricks, cement and sand from Fred Cole, of Scotch Plains, all to be delivered to his employer. He then went to Newark and ordered $76 worth of seed from J. F. Noll & Co., to be sent to the same address, but the concern was suspicious and did not send the seeds. When the flowers and building materials were delivered the truth became known and then followed the arrest of Stutzenberg.

Railways In Mexico; Ruin and Havoc Wrought by Revolution

PRESIDENT E. N. BROWN of the Nacionales de Mexico (the National Railways of Mexico), the largest railroad in the Mexican republic, has been on a visit to this country and has been in consultation with some prominent railway presidents. The Nacionales railroad is very much in the eyes of the American public just at the present time. It has suffered heavily at the hands of the rebels, who have destroyed a large part of the property, and more damage is still threatened. The Nacionales railway represents an investment of $834,000,000 Mexican or about $417,000,000 in our money. At one stage of the revolution the value of its property seized by rebels was approximately $225,000,000.

The last report of the Nacionales de Mexico recently made public deals with the operations during the fiscal year ending June 30 last.

The company's gross earnings, which were $61,447,000 (Mexican) in 1912, declined $4,077,000 in the past year. A surplus of $2,484,000 earned in 1912 was reduced to $723,000 last year, and after paying one dividend of 2 per cent on the first preferred stock, there remained a deficit of $468,000 at the close of the year. This reduces the company's surplus from previous years to $99,000 (Mexican) or about $49,500 in United States gold coin.

"It will be recalled that reference was made last year to the difficulty of selling at a fair price any of the prior lien bonds or guaranteed general mortgage bonds, and the consequent necessity of meeting the financial requirements by the issuance of short term notes," says Luis Elguero, chairman of the board of directors. "It is with regret that I have to advise that this difficulty still exists and in a more intense form, for while the world's investment markets have improved slightly, conditions in Mexico have been considerably more disturbed than they were in the previous year, making it practically impossible to sell any of the company's bonds.

"The board fully appreciates the undesirability of issuing short term obligations, but unfortunately the company's position, combined with the general financial conditions throughout the world, has rendered it impossible to adopt any other course."

The report goes on to say: "As is well known, the conditions which have prevailed throughout the country have affected principally the railway lines. In addition to damage done to the physical properties, the disturbances and interruptions had a marked effect on the gross earnings, while at the same time the constant reconstruction work made necessary to keep the lines in operation increased materially the operating expenses."

Since Madero and Suarez were shot to death in Mexico City last February 5,000 miles of railroad in Mexico, worth $300,000,000, have been siezed by rebels or bandits and plundered or destroyed.

Some of the money is now represented by heaps of ashes. Some is accounted for in stretches of desolate roadbed, untraveled by trains for many days. Of other millions nothing is left to tell the tale of destruction. From Monterey to San Luis Potosi, three hundred and odd crooked miles, not a station is standing with the single exception of the station at Saltillo. Four hundred wooden bridges along this right of way have been burned. Iron and steel bridges have been blown up with dynamite saved from looted storehouses. The rebels made a bonfire of a million dollars' worth of rolling stock the night that Monterey fell.

A thousand miles or thereabouts of railroad that cost $50,000 a mile to build and equip may or may not parallel the coast of the gulf of California. It was there a few months ago. It has not been heard from since.

Chihuahua, Hermosillo, Torreon, Matamoras, Saltillo, Monclova, Monterey—a chain of cities and towns whose names could be linked in many paragraphs—attest the widespread destruction to railroad property during the last twelve months.

With the cessation or interruption of railroad traffic the great industries along the lines were compelled, of course, to shut down. Their idle employees swelled the rebels' ranks by many thousands. Reports of shutdowns became so common that they were no longer published with the acclaim they would have commanded in less strenuous times.

PLAINFIELD GETS STORM TAIL-END

Little Damage Done Here by Infant Hurricane, But Business Was Upset.

A terrific wind storm, accompanied by rain and hail, visited Plainfield, Saturday night, doing much damage of a minor nature to bridges, trees and roads in the vicinity. The storm raged furiously along the coast, especially in the northern portion of the State and Plainfield got only the tail-end of the mild hurricane.

In the districts where the storm was fiercest bridges were inundated, wires torn down, trees uprooted and frame dwellings blown to pieces. Many people were made homeless during the few hours the wind blew at express train speed across the country and hundreds of dollars worth of damage was caused by the wind and rain. In a number of nearby towns trolley service was brought to a sudden halt and the streets were flooded from curb to curb.

The ferocity of the wind made the carrying of umbrellas an impossibility and pedestrians who sought to protect themselves by this means soon had the pleasure of seeing their umbrellas turned suddenly inside out by a crossing current.

Between the hours of 10 and 11 o'clock Saturday night the electric lights in Plainfield and North Plainfield went out several times and left several business houses and recreation centres in utter darkness. During the North Plainfield High School dance in Saengerbund Hall the illumination became extinct on several occasions while the guests were in the midst of a terpsichore number and gas had to be brought into use. In Scotch Plains the spectators watching the basketball games in the Parish House were left in utter darkness several times and when they left the house they found that the streets had been flooded by the storm during the time it took the play the games. Conditions were exceedingly bad along the country roads in Scotch Plains, Fanwood, Westfield, Dunellen, South Plainfield and New Market, and week-end shoppers going to their homes in any of these places had to wade through water above their shoe tops.

The Plainfield Transit Company with its auto buses did a big business between here and South Plainfield and each car was crowded. The trolley service was interrupted several times during the evening and breaking of wires caused numerous delays.

The high wind damaged fruit trees to a considerable extent and also ripped large limbs from sturdy oaks and chestnuts on the outskirts of the town. Poor business was a common complaint among local storekepers Saturday night and a number who were seen this morning claimed that they had experienced the poorest week-end of the last twelve months. Few shoppers ventured out to do their week-end buying Saturday night, a majority being content to subsist on what was left over in the family cupboard from the forepart of the week.

Sunday morning the rain turned to sleet and then returned to rain in the afternoon. Last night snow dropped heavily and much had fallen by 7 o'clock this morning. The sun made its appearance about 9 o'clock, however, and conditions took a decided turn for the better.

HUMAN DOUBLES; REMARKABLE INSTANCES OF RESEMBLANCES

Distinguished People Who Have Their Counterparts.

Cases of Mistaken Identity Are Quite Frequent.

MRS. MARAVINE THOMPSON has contributed to the American Magazine an interesting article on "Human Duplicates In Our Great Cities." She has found her own double and has also collected some other striking instances which are reproduced below.

"To come suddenly upon yourself reflected in a mirror," writes Mrs. Thompson—"that is, to think it's yourself and to discover it's another person you see! How do you think you'd feel looking into the eyes of your double across a department store aisle under such circumstances? I certainly felt queer. My double started and drew back involuntarily, and so did I. I blurted out:

"'I thought you were my reflection. Did you think the same about me?'

"'Yes,' she whispered in an awed tone. 'It's uncanny, isn't it?'

"Then solemnly we went together to one of the long mirrors in the store and looked at ourselves and each other side by side. Both were dressed in white and wore a big panama hat. Our faces, figures, apparel, were so similar that each could only stare in silence at this other woman whose outward identity was so like her own. My double suggested that we have our pictures taken. So we went to a photographer across the street. He wanted us to pose together. 'Twins always do,' was his argument.

"We believed that our respective pictures would not look alike. Minus color and expression, the difference would be more apparent, we said. But, lo, our pictured features were duplicates also!

"Which is the picture of myself and which is my double? You don't know. Well, you needn't look embarrassed. My own mother doesn't know. My double is Annie Walsh, and I met her in a department store in Boston in 1903. At the time I jotted down the following points of likeness between Annie Walsh and myself: Eyes, nose, mouth, chin, lines of expression, squint in eyes when laughing, contour of face, height, general appearance and manner. I will leave it to any reader whether our photographs, herewith reproduced, would not deceive any one, even a husband or mother. Of course in the flesh one could not deceive the other's relatives long, but outsiders could be deceived indefinitely."

Now, you either saw the late Mayor Gaynor of New York or have seen pictures of him. Christy Mathewson, the great "Matty," knew Gaynor well. So when he saw him at the railway station at Richmond, Va., a few years ago he shouted to a fellow ball player in the car: "Oh, Jags, look! There's Gaynor! How d'y'do, mayor?" The Giants crowded to the window and gave the mayor a round of applause. Only—it was not Mayor Gaynor! It was Dr. Thomas Wilson, educator, and treasurer of the New York State Training School For Girls, who received this ovation from the Giants.

Dr. Wilson bowed and smiled. It would have been useless for him to say he was not Mayor Gaynor. He had tried this before. He has a summer residence at Oak Island beach, and on every trip to and from Long Island he was accosted with "How d'y'do, mayor?" from some one. Shortly after Mayor Gaynor recovered from his illness attendant upon the shooting a conductor of the Brooklyn Trolley company stopped beside Dr. Wilson and said in a worried voice, "Why, mayor, you just went down with me, and here you are back again." Dr. Wilson merely smiled. But when the car reached Eighth avenue and Flatbush, where the mayor lived and he didn't get off, the conductor, now very anxious, came and said, "Here's your street, mayor." "I have business further up," replied Dr. Wilson truthfully.

The resemblance between the late mayor and Dr. Wilson was not a temporary one. For fifteen years the doctor was taken repeatedly for Gaynor. The first time occured fifteen years ago at the Hotel Brooklyn. A lawyer came to Dr. Wilson and said, "Excuse me, judge, but I would like to speak to you about that reference case in Harlem," and proceeded forthwith. Dr. Wilson's explanation of "who he was only partly convinced him.

"Well, if you say you're not Judge Gaynor I'll have to take your word for it. But—Lord! I know you. I've tried cases before you. I'd swear it's Judge Gaynor here before me."

Colonel Roosevelt has his double in Judge Keyes of Concord, Mass. Mr. Keyes has a fund of amusement out of his resemblance to his famous prototype. A politician and ardent Progressive, he is in evidence at the Progressive rallies and is always mistaken for the colonel. While Roosevelt is being cheered by one part of a crowd, Keyes mistaken for Roosevelt, is lustily greeted by another part. Mothers stop him with a proud "I have six children, colonel," or a supplicating "Kissa de baby, please, Mr. President."

When first introduced to the colonel Keyes flashed a Rooseveltian grin at him and said, "Delighted!" Roosevelt gave a twin grin and said: "Bully! That's bully!"

SCENES IN THE SCHOOL OF MME. MONTESSORI, THE FAMOUS EDUCATOR OF CHILDREN

MONTESSORI CHILDREN AT WORK AND AT PLAY

IS IT THICK OR THIN?

A CONTENTED GROUP IN THE MONTESSORI SCHOOL

IN THE MONTESSORI SCHOOL ROOM

What is the Montessori method?

It is the playhouse school; the school where the rudiments of workaday knowledge seep into the juvenile brain; the school in which educators from one end of the world to the other have been interested and which, wherever its principles have been carried, has remained as the initial step in an epoch of child development.

American interest in this latest forward step of education has been heightened by the arrival here of Dr. Maria Montessori, countess, doctor of medicine and mother of the newest system of child education and a woman easily entitled to her place among the half dozen most prominent in the world. A woman of wonderfully attractive personality, the attention of the Western world already is concentrated about her activities and her appeal for the propagation of the system [illegible] on the highest pinnacle of feminine attainment both in this country and abroad.

For the next month and a half American men and women, educators and statesmen, will listen with profound attention to her appeal for the extension of the methods of juvenile upbuilding which already have taken a place in history and which have placed her name next to those of Rousseau, Pestalozzi and Froebel.

[illegible] appeal to the American spirit of progressivism has been made, perhaps, by no woman than that which has marked the advent of Dr. Montessori. Here perhaps more than anywhere else her revolutionary method of child education has been received constructively. In America also perhaps more than anywhere else she may go, Dr. Montessori will see concertedly applied the methods of teaching which have become her lifework and which have commanded the attention of the world.

"DRAW ONE IN THE DARK" NOW CRY ON PENN. R. R. TRAIN

PENNSYLVANIA RAILROAD'S ALL STEEL LUNCH COUNTER CAR IN SERVICE BETWEEN PHILADELPHIA AND NEW YORK

All the joys of a quick lunch, swinging on a whirling stool, were enjoyed for the first time by passengers who arrived in New York from Philadelphia on a Pennsylvania Railroad train recently. It is an innovation introduced by the railroad company, and from the large patronage it received it is going to prove a success.

Along the mahogany counter in the car twenty-one persons can be accommodated. Orders to the kitchen were varied, and instead of hearing the old familiar calls one heard "Draw one in the dark," "Adam and Eve on a raft," and "Two sinners on a lolly pop stick."

THE PLAINFIELD THEATRE

The last time Annie Russell appeared in London, it was in a dramatization of Bret Harte's "Sue." The following cable dispatch to the New York Sun told of her triumph there: "Miss Annie Russell has won a veritable triumph in Mr. Bret Harte's 'Sue' at the Garrick Theatre. She has accomplished what no other actress, English or foreign, has ever done in London before—reduced a whole house to tears. Today's newspaper notices of her performance are such a charous of unstinted encomiums as has never been given before to a new-comer on the London stage." Miss Russell has finished with tears for awhile and is now devoting herself to the works of the masters of Old English comedy, and one of these, "She Stoops to Conquer," will be presented by her and her Old English Comedy Company at the Plainfield Theatre, Saturday night. The seat sale which is now on indicates that local theatre-goers will respond as substantially as have the play-goers in the larger cities of [illegible] last winter.

PLAINFIELD CAB CO.,

TO PARIS BY AERO IN THIRTY HOURS

Inventor Expects to Cross Ocean in Machine of Own Design.

IS PRACTICAL, SAY EXPERTS

Northcliffe Prize Competitor Building Two "Sea Planes" Along New Lines. Another Inventor Believes His Bird Aeroplane Forestalls Accident—Naval Flying Boats Approach Perfection.

With new achievements in aviation for 1913, further great strides in "man flying" are in sight. One aeroplane inventor expects to fly from New York to Paris in thirty hours, and another has an invention which, he thinks, assures absolute safety in the air.

Charles E. Smith of Newark, N. J., is the man who hopes to accomplish the record flight to Paris. He will compete for the $55,000 Northcliffe prize in August. Smith has begun building two machines at a cost of $15,000 each.

The many new features in his air and water craft, Smith declares, make it totally different from anything ever before seen in this country or Europe. Bird men who have seen the machine and talked with the inventor in his laboratory in Newark say his idea is entirely practical.

The inventor claims to have solved the problem of carrying sufficient gasoline for a trip of at least 4,000 miles and is confident that his craft will exceed a speed of 100 miles an hour. With this speed, he contends, he can cross from Newfoundland to England in twenty hours, making the journey in one spurt without landing, or he can sail from New York to Paris in less than thirty hours, also continuous flying.

Shares Opinion of Graham Bell.

Smith holds the same opinion which was recently expressed by Graham Bell, who for years has been interested deeply in affairs of air travel, that the only craft capable of making the transatlantic trip is one so constructed that it can soar to an altitude of five miles and then make the journey in one tremendous glide at a high rate of speed. The Newark man estimates that a gradual drop in altitude of a foot to the mile will accelerate greatly the work of two propellers and is of the opinion that the velocity of the machine will increase until toward the end of the trip a speed of 150 miles an hour will be reached.

Applying all the known principles of mechanics, studying the structure of birds and their mode of flight and watching the results obtained by each new machine invented, he became confident that he was on the right track. Less resistance, more stability and a practical assurance against accidents were the three main points he worked on.

Should he prove successful in his transatlantic flight Smith will begin immediately the construction of several larger machines for the transportation of passengers and freight.

Builds Bird Aeroplane.

Ernest Molner of Detroit has perfected a bird shaped aeroplane which he believes will solve the problem of safety in the air. He has substituted wings for the planes of the flying machines now in use and has made the backbone of the machine similar to a bird's body. The wings may be raised or lowered, contracted or expanded at the will of the operator.

Molner has been at work on his plane for ten years and recently obtained his patents. The machine is built entirely of steel and aluminum. It will be propelled by a gasoline motor.

Better Flying Boats.

With the closing of the United States aviation camp at Hammondsport, N. Y., and shipment south of Uncle Sam's new fleet of flying boats, it is announced that as direct results of the summer's season of flying and experimental work under the direction of Captain Washington I. Chambers there has been developed a larger and more seaworthy type of flying boat, a combination craft adapted to either land or water flying, which Captain Chambers has named the "Owl" type, and a practical automatic stabilizing device.

—There's not a dull, nor an unimportant ad in today's paper. There's not one that may safely be overlooked by any great number of the paper's readers.

LITTLE TALKS BY THE WANT AD MAN

Copyright, 1913, The Int. Syndicate, Baltimore.

No. 45.

ADVERTISING is a salesman that is always at work, but never wearies a customer; that call on the same man until he is convinced, but never annoys him with its insistence; that wastes no time, wastes no words, and that can always gain an audience and a hearing. Alone among salesmen, advertising has free access to the libraries of the great; it marches unchecked past the secretary of the big merchant and enters without hindrance the store of the retailer. When it cannot tell its story to a man in his office, it can always gain his attention in his home. The door of the housewife is never slammed in its face. No country is so remote, no village is so dead, that it does not go there for orders and get them—Saturday Evening Post.

Tell me, suppose you want a job, or want to sell your house, or want to rent an apartment, or want domestic help, or want—anything—can you think of a quicker, less expensive, more direct way of getting that want before the people than through a little Want Ad?

Classified advertising is always at work. It does not weary a customer, because that customer turns to it of his own free will. It does not annoy him with his insistence; rather, it pleases him with its concise information. It wastes no words. It gets its message across, and instantly. It has access to the hearts of the people because it reflects the needs of the people.

Want Ad. advertising in the columns of this newspaper gains attention in offices, in homes, in city, in country—wherever people have that which they do not want and want that which they do not have. No door is ever slammed in its face.

And say—isn't that a pretty good way to get YOUR want over the line?

There are so many delicious dishes that may be made with left-over cereals of various sorts that they ought to be looked on somewhat in the light of a treat by the economical housewife and her family.

Almost all sorts of cereal can be fried, and served in this way either as a dessert at luncheon or with the meat course at dinner. If you have left-over cereal of a sort suitable for frying—hominy, rice, cream of wheat, male cereals, or any of the other fine-grained cereals—wet a square or oblong pan with cold water and then pour in the cereal while it is still hot. When it is cold cut it in slices and dip it in eggs and crumbs and fry it. If it is to be eaten as a dessert sprinkle it with a little cinnamon and sugar and serve it with maple syrup or some sweet sauce. If it is to be eaten with meat, sprinkle it with salt and a dash of grated nutmeg. It can be fried without being dipped in egg and crumbs.

For Salad.

Rice that is left over can be converted into a delicious salad. Use the rice as a foundation and mix it thoroughly with a French dressing until the different grains are separated. Then add the other ingredients, pile the salad on lettuce leaves and top with mayonnaise.

Croquettes.

Cereal left-overs can be made into croquettes in this way: Allow a cupful of chopped meat—also left-overs—to every cupful and a half of cold left-over cereal. Season with salt pepper and paprika. Then add half a teaspoonful lemon juice and the same amount of onion juice. Sprinkle in a little chopped parsley. Form into croquettes dip, in beaten egg and fine crumbs, and fry quickly in hot fat.

Some Cookery Suggestions

FRUIT SPONGES.

LUNCHEON MENU.
Cold Sliced Meat.
Green Tomato Pickles.
Toasted Muffins.
Apple and Lemon Sponge.
Tea.

PRUNE SPONGE.—Beat the whites of three eggs to a stiff froth. Add one yolk at a time to the beaten whites, then lightly mix in one half cupful of sifted granulated sugar, one-half teaspoonful of vanilla, and, lastly, beat in lightly three-quarters of a cupful of finely sifted flour in which three-quarters of a teasponnful of baking powder has been thoroughly mixed. Boil and stone fifteen prunes, chop fine, add one-half cupful of sugar and juice of one-half lemon. Butter a pudding dish, put in prune mixture, add sponge and bake twenty to twenty-five minutes.

A Handsome Dessert.

Apple and Lemon Sponge.—Put one pound of sugar and half a pint of water into a saucepan, boil quickly for five minutes, skimming well. Add half a pound of pared and cored apples. Stew gently till quite soft, and rub them through a sieve. Dissolve half an ounce of gelatin in six tablespoonfuls of water. Strain it into the apples and then add the grated rind and juice of one lemon. Put the mixture in a cool place and whisk till stiff. When cool add a few drops of red coloring and three whites of eggs. Continue to whisk till quite set. Serve with cream.

Banana Sponge.—Peel and pound smooth six or eight bananas, add three or four ounces of sugar, a little grated lemon rind, the juice of one-half of a lemon, one ounce of gelatin and rather more than one and one-half pints of cold water. Stir this over the fire until the sugar and gelatin are dissolved, then lift it off and, when nearly cold, beat it well, mixing in the stiffly whipped whites of two eggs. Pour into a mold and stand on ice until set.

Made With Canned Fruit.

Pineapple Sponge.—Take the beaten yolks of three eggs, add one-half cupful of the juice drained from canned pineapple, three tablespoonfuls of lemon juice, one-half cupful sugar and a few grains of salt. Cook until the mixture thickens; then add two tablespoonfuls of granulated gelatin soaked in one-fourth of a cupful of cold water. As soon as the gelatin is dissolved remove from heat, and when the mixture begins to thicken add one-half cupful of whipped cream, whites of three eggs beaten until very stiff and two-thirds of a cupful of sliced pineaple cut in small cubes. Chill in a suitable mold. When ready to serve turn into a serving dish and garnish with glace cherries and sliced pineapple.

Daddy's Bedtime Story—When the Fireflies Came To America.

They Are Collected From the Swamps.

JACK and Evelyn very rarely in one day played all the games they wanted to, but it had poured all day, and a whole rainy day indoors had proved too much for them. When they heard the sound of a key being turned in the front door they bounded down the stairs.

"We thought you never would come," cried Jack. "Aren't you late?"

"No," said daddy, looking at his watch; "I'm just five minutes ahead of time. Why, what's the matter? Haven't you had a good day?"

"No," said Jack; "it's been simply awful. It has rained and rained, and we couldn't go out. Do hurry and tell us our story."

"Dear me," said daddy, "to think that you and Evelyn really were tired of playing! I thought that never happened."

"Well, only on a rainy day," said Evelyn.

"A rainy day is tiresome," replied daddy, "so I'll tell you a very cheerful little story. I think I will tell you about the fireflies.

"Way off in Brazil," began daddy, "the fireflies are regarded as very valuable and very wonderful, and so they really supply lights for all the entertainments. They are collected in masses from all the swamps where they live, and then when the people give garden parties they let the fireflies fly around to give them fairylike light.

"One evening at one of these parties were two little American girls. The fireflies heard them talking about America. They said they loved America far more than Brazil, and the things they cared for above all else in Brazil were the fireflies. Of course you can imagine how proud and pleased the fireflies were. They listened to still more of the conversation of the two little girls and found out they were sailing with their mother on a big steamer for America. The fireflies decided to go along too.

"They stayed in their swamp until the sailing day came, and then they hid themselves back of a lot of unused camp stools on the ship. Of course the trip was very uncomfortable for them, but they made the best of it. At last it was over, and the fireflies, unseen, followed the little girls to their home.

"Of course the little girls gave a party soon after they got home for all their small friends. They told them about the lovely fireflies of Brazil, when, all of a sudden, the fireflies came forth and sparkled their little lights as they flew around. Oh, how the children clapped their hands and the little girls cried, 'Now we are home in America, and we have the fireflies from Brazil!'

"And you may be sure the fireflies were happy, too, with the success of their surprise."

Practical Fashion Hints

By Alice Gibson

7994

There is nothing more convenient in a woman's wardrobe than a smart satisfactory separate skirt. Especially at this time of the year when long, heavy wraps are being worn. No. 7994 is a two piece design with a bit of fullness at the back which may be arranged in gathers or clusters of tucks.

To prevent seams from sagging where a loose weave material is used a good method is to stitch a narrow tape or strip of muslin in with the seam being careful, however, not to draw it in the sewing. If a skirt binding is used at the bottom, and it is a practical bit of economy in these days of narrow skirts, it must always be shrunk before using.

This skirt may be made for size 24 with 2⅝ yards of 42 inch material. The pattern is cut in 8 sizes—22 to 36.

This Is a Perfect Pattern.

Be sure to state right size, passing the tape tightly around the smallest part of the waist and loosely around the widest part of the hips.

It may be obtained by filling out the coupon and enclosing 15 cents in stamps or coin to the Pattern Department of this paper.

EDUCATOR OF CHILDREN.

Dr. Maria Montessori Returns Home After Lecture Trip In This Country.

Dr. Maria Montessori has sailed for her home in Rome, Italy, after making a tour of the eastern section of this country and lecturing in various cities. She is the founder of the Casa del Bambini (Houses of Childhood), the system of kindergarten education which trains infants and young children, without corrections, rewards or punishments, to develop their own lives. Her theories are wielding an influence which may fairly be called revolutionary. Undoubtedly she takes rank with Froebel and Pestalozzi among the great pathmakers of education.

DR. MARIA MONTESSORI.

She has quite a following in this country. The Montessori school as it exists in America, conducted in connection with social settlements, public and private schools, through the co-operation of mothers in a community, even in the church school, is a place where rewards and punishments are abolished, where the individual child is observed and directed mentally and physically, and the children are allowed to select those educational materials which they need at their special stage of development.

—Something unusual for the table is always a welcome treat to the home folks. The ad-reading women does not find the problem hard.

Points for Mothers

Novel Amusements Help.

The little weary face and the fretful cry of "I don't know what to do" that so often delay the sick child's convalescence can easily be avoided by a few ingenious thoughts for his amusement.

Very often Teddy bears and expensive toys that have been sent to him by sympathetic relatives will lie neglected at the foot of the bed, and the invalid's interest can be aroused only by some novel form of entertainment that has never amused him before.

Children are never happier than when cutting up paper. Snip, snip they go, clipping out shapeless pieces from old magazines and making a mess while they waste their time. There are so many ways in which paper cutting can train little fingers to be clever and active. For a few cents one of those colored paper "pantomimes" can be bought whose "cast" and scenery will take some hours to finish neatly. Little girls love to cut out paper dolls and create fashionable wardrobes for them. Very often they prefer to draw the outlines themselves, and then they can color them with crayons. Flowers, model houses, brightly hued chains—all these can be made from paper.

Rag Dolls and Beads.

The average child loves to make those rag animals and dolls that are now sold at every toy shop. The shapes are easily cut, and then they are stuffed with rags and sewn up again. This is another opportunity to humor a child's artistic bent because the animals can really be made from plain pieces of calico, provided somebody cuts it out in the right shape, and this can be painted by the youngster.

Stringing beads is a favorite pastime with the sick child. Rings, bracelets and necklaces can be made for relatives "on order," and there is nothing that children enjoy so much as making things for grownups.

Scrap book making is another task which a child enjoys. Give him a blank book, a paste pot and a few old illustrated magazines and he will amuse himself for hours.

An imaginative child finds great joy in seashells. He loves to feel the different shapes and by putting them to his ear thinks he can hear the sounds of the waves. This sometimes entertains him for hours.

The Bran Pie.

Children love any excitement, and a novel way of keeping their unfailing interest is to make a bran pie. A few penny toys should be wrapped in separate pieces of paper and hidden in a cardboard box that has been filled with sawdust. Every hour or so the child can pause a minute from his other amusements and have a "dip." Great will be his speculation as to what he is going to pick out of the bran pie.

Care of Young Children.

It is curious to notice how few women realize the possibilities of comprehension in children between the ages of two and five years. They will discuss the most impossible subjects before the little ones and very often discuss the children themselves in a way that seems to indicate that the little brains are blanks. So they are at first, but they are blanks upon which any passing hand can write what very few hands can erase.

The average child of these years is quicker to comprehend than at any other period. He is more sensitive to impressions than grownups can possibly realize. An angrily raised voice leaves a blot on the young mind which it will take weeks to remove.

Think, then, mothers, of the responsibility of writing on these quickly covered blanks. Think of the care which should be spent on the writing, for, remember, as the child is trained now so will he be in adolescence. If kindness, courtesy and generosity are the lessons impressed on the young mind as he grows so will the knowledge of these traits develop. If he is raised on other principles he will reflect their impressions in after years.

Train your little one in ideas of big heartedness and compassion toward others. It is very easy to do. When the child bumps his head do not encourage him in ideas of revenge by spanking the offending obstacle and saying "Bad door" (or bad floor or whatever the object may be). "How could it hurt baby! There! Take that!" It is this method which will train the child in entirely wrong ideas of revenge.

If instead of this treatment the child is taught compassion and self forgetfulness the mother will reap the reward in after years. Teach the little one by saying: "Poor door! There: did baby hurt it? Baby didn't mean to." In this way the little one will forget his own hurt in thinking of the other.

Teach the little one, also, to be unselfish toward other children. When he has been the recipient of a present of candies, cakes or toys teach him to divide his goodies with others in the family or, if he is the only child, then with his friends. If the little mind is impressed with the fact that "it is more blessed to give than to receive" it is quite certain that the child of such teaching will not grow into a selfish, self centered man or woman.

THE DAILY PRESS IN LINCOLN will be found on sale or delivered to any address every afternoon by E. Purvis, newsdealer.

—At Westfield, C. F. Wittke has the Daily Press on sale each day.

A Cross-stitch Centerpiece.

Cross-stitch should be embroidered in heavy mercerized cotton number 8 or rope silk, as the finer threads do not fill the ground sufficiently to show at a distance, or to cover the transfer medium.

This rose design is twenty-two inches in diameter, and may be developed in two shades of pink, green and light blue, on white or natural colored linen. The scalloped edge should be slightly padded and covered with buttonhole-stitch in white or cream to match the linen.

These garlands may also be used on a pillow, table-runner or bag.

Pattern number 14451, will be supplied to readers of the Daily Press for fifteen cents.

OVERTIME GAME WON BY CAPTAIN

Jim Doig Comes to the Rescue of Hope Crew With Much Needed Tally.

CONTEST VERY CLOSE

Roseville Presbyterian Five Finds the Locals in a Slump and Manages to Tie up the Score Just Before the Whistle Ends Game.

Four minutes of overtime play was required to decide the Hope Chapel-Roseville Presbyterian Church basketball game on the local court Saturday night, Captain Jim Doig finally coming to the rescue with the winning field goal, and ending the encounter with a tally card reading 29 to 27. The game Saturday night was a marked instance where good refereeing came to the rescue, Frank Rimmer's judgment in awarding a point to the Chapelites was fouled while shooting being the only thing that separated them from defeat at the end of the two regular periods, for without this point the decision would have favored the visitors by a score of 27 to 26.

Hope Chapel was plainly experiencing an off night Saturday and put up an inferior article of basketball, while the Roseville crew hung on to the pace setters during both periods and could not be shaken off. Tommy Heron and Jim Doig were the only two players who could find the Hope Chapel goal, while Crane and Walker led in this department for the visiting team.

MIDGET SUBSTITUTE SHOWS REAL SPEED

Young Porter Dropped the Ball Through the Net Six Times for Hope.

Hope Chapel second team players had an easy time disposing of the Mt. Pleasant aggregation in the preliminary contest on the Chapel court Saturday night, the final count being 26 to 13. Despite the fact that the locals presented a cripple front the substitutes had little trouble in holding their own against the rival clan and the score was doubled with apparent ease.

At the end of the first half the Hope crew led with a card of 7 to 4 and they managed to keep the 2 to 1 lead throughout the final canto. Porter, one of the Hope Chapel midgets, substituted for one of the absentees and put up the best game of any man on the floor. Besides getting into the team work in fine style the youngster rang half a dozen field goals. For the visitors Hatfield did the best work in scoring points.

Queries, Comment and Answers

Sporting Editor:

Query—I have been told that the wings of a bat are merely hands. Is that correct?—S. B. B.

Answer—The wings of a bat are merely hands. The fingers are unusually long and joined by a thin membrane similar to that of a duck's foot, only thinner. This membrane is extended up the arm, along the body and down to the legs and tail. The thumb is very short and its nail is extended to form a hook or claw.

Sporting Editor:

Query—When do lights on vehicles have to be lighted in Plainfield —P. G. B.

Answer—One hour after sundown is the time. It is generally dark enough then to warrant a light

Sporting Editor:

Query—Where is the best skating in Plainfield or nearby this city?—M. D.

Answer—You will probably find the best skating on Willow Lake. This is located a little off Central avenue, near Elizabeth street.

Sporting Editor:

Query—What is Bob Fitzsimmons' correct age?—J. T.

Answer—Bob will be fifty-two years old June 4, next.

Sporting Editor:

Query—I am told that there will be a Civil Service examination held in this city for postoffice position sometime within the next three weeks. Is this correct, and if so, where will the examination be held?—V. X. Z.

Answer—We have heard of no examination. However, you can obtain further information by applying to the local postmaster.

SECOND CITY TITLE WITH HOPE CHAPEL

Y. M. C. A. and Churchboy Quintets Will Clash Again Next Saturday Night.

Arrangements have been completed for the playing of the second City Championship game on the Hope Chapel court next Saturday night between the Y. M. C. A. and Hope Chapel teams and both aggregations are now busy putting on the finishing touches. Hope won the initial encounter which was played on the Association court Christmas afternoon in a one-sided fashion, completely outplaying the rival clan from whistle to whistle, but despite the poor showing put up in the first game, the losers are optimistic of their chance of taking the second encounter and thus tie matters up making a rubber game necessary.

Hope Chapel will probably have the same lineup as it had in the first game while the Y. M. C. A. outfit will consist of several new faces, notable among which will be George Townley, captain of last year's North Plainfield High School team. One of the missing stars in the Association battle front will be Al Zrynairski, who recently resigned as captain. Townley will play the vacancy left by the captain and Glover is now acting as leader of the quintet.

Although it is a recognized fact among local basketball teams that the Hope Chapel quintet is practically invincible on its own court, the Y. M. C. A. team holds out high hopes of dispelling the jinx and coming through on top.

AJAX TROUNCED BY MARATHON QUINTET

Association Five Held to a No-Score Record in the First Period of Play.

Totalling up fourteen field goals during two periods of the preliminary game in the Y. M. C. A. gymnasium Saturday night, the Marathon A. C. basketball quintet added another victory to its string, taking the Ajax into camp by a score of 29 to 11. The Ajax five a new Y. M. C. A. team composed of members of the Employed Boys' Class, put up an inferior game against the fast traveling Marathons and the long distance aggregation scored many sensational baskets from difficult angels.

During the initial canto of battling the Association five failed to score a single point and in the final session could count for but four field goals and three fouls. Dilts and Force led the scoring for the winners, while Dawe played the best all around game for the losing side.

"HOME-RUN" CLOUGH CAN ALSO SMASH THE PINS

George Clough, known as "Home-Run" Clough, while a member of the Dunellen New Jersey League team during the past season of baseball, is also some bowler if the records he is hanging up in Elizabeth at the present time are a sample of what he is capable of as a consistent performer.

Clough is a member of the Elizabeth Y. M. C. A. pin team which has won every game it has rolled this season. He is the high average man with a mark of 181.6 for nine games and ranks third in the high score column with a 207.

Reserves Furnish Lots of Practise for Fast Traveling Association Five.

Showering field goals on the head of the Reserves almost at will, the Plainfield Y. M. C. A. basketball team put in a night of practice in the Association, Saturday, and rang up a score of 69 to 26 in whirlwind style. George Townley appeared in a Y. M. C. A. uniform Saturday night for the first time and put up an excellent game at guarding, holding his man scoreless throughout the two periods of play.

Joe Gavett once more led the scoring with sixteen field goals to his credit and Moulton also did some good work for the locals, getting seven of the two-point variety. Captain Glover put his men through a stiff signal drill and put on the finishing touches for the second Hope Chapel game next Saturday night.

NETHERWOOD QUINTET MINUS EIGHT POINTS

Scotch Plains Second Five Hung up a Noteworthy Verdict.

Playing on the Scotch Plains Parish House court for the first time, the Netherwood five received a drubbing at the hands of the Parish House seconds Saturday night by a score of 28 to 20. The visiting five was badly handicapped in the first half, being unfamiliar with the floor, but in the last half put up a stubborn fight.

The game was stopped frequently when the lights went out, owing to the wires short-circuiting. Keith Saunders caged six field goals for the 'Plains, with Hall and Marston tied for second honors. Wilmerding held up the visitors' end with eight points.

N. P. H. S. WON HANDILY

Final Score 27 to 12—Rough-house Tactics Brought Into Play During Last Few Minutes of Combat—New York Herd Weak Shooters.

The North Plainfield High School basketball team defeated the strong team from Townsend Harris Hall School, of New York city, in Saengerbund Hall, last Saturday night, by the score of 27 to 12. The game was speedy and clean at all times and only a very few fouls were called during the entire forty minutes of play.

The boroughites played defensive ball at the start but soon found out that their opponents could pass better than shoot. The local boys began to increase their lead slowly and at the end of the half the score stood 14 to 4. The game was called many times because of accidents or arguments, the latter being numerous.

The second half opened with a rush and the visitors made a field goal on the first play, but Van Mater cancelled that with his second tally. The game then became rough and the visitors were penalized three times. Love led the boroughites in points ,getting six baskets and three fouls while Van Mater and Dunning were tied with a trio apiece. For the visitors, Adler and Kaufman each made four points while Holman and Bennett each made one basket.

FITZ SUPPORTERS SCORE COMMISSION

Drexel Biddle and Edward Hall Issue Damaging Letters in News Columns.

Bob Fitzsimmons' efforts to secure "come-back" recognition in the roped and rosined arena are beginning to attract world wide notice among the sporting populace and the "Lanky Ruby" has received numerous letters of condolence from those who uphold his side of the question. Bob is still training and will probably be seen in the ring with one of the present day "white hopes" sometime this month.

Among the most notable of the letters received is one from A. J. Drexel Biddle and another from Edward J. Hall, of Bennington, Vt. Both of these men are well known supporters of the fight game and Biddle, recognized as the "millionaire amateur champion," states just what he thinks in the letter published below.

"Philadelphia, Jan. 2, 1914.

"Regarding the New York Boxing Commission's ruling as to Bob Fitzsimmons being bared from activity in the squared circle which Fitz endeavored for years to glorify by his brilliant work, such as very few pugilists if any have equaled, I thought a suggestion from one who has known him intimately for years might at least be considered.

"It is well known that Fitz, who was frequently termed a freak in build, was unsteady on his legs almost from the day of his arrival in America many years ago. I witnessed several of his contests - viz.: Jeffries, Ruhlin, Sharkey, in New York, and others more recent.

"When one considers that Fitz fought Jack O'Brien thirteen fierce rounds at forty-six years of age and twelve winning rounds with Bill Lang, a youth of renown in Australia, at fifty years, I feel a little consideration should be shown him.

"Why not match Fitz, McCoy or O'Brien who intend returning to the ring? Any of these men would make a fit match for the public to witness, and it is just possible that the present crop of so-called 'White Hopes' would learn some of the finer scientific points of the art of which we can truly state Bob Fitzsimmons is or was an adept exponent. I am, yours truly,

"A. J. DREXEL BIDDLE."

"Why not put 'Bob' Fitzsimmons in the ring against the entire Boxing Commission? I think he could soon convince them that he was and is young enough to enter the ring.

"That Boxing Commission was appointed to keep out the crooked ones, not to determine the age and skill of the boxers, and the censorship is going a little too far when they rule out 'Glorious Old Bob' and then let the ruck of the present day do us out of our money.

"EDWARD J. HALL.

EIGHT GAMES IN NEXT FOUR DAYS

Local Scholastic and Club Basketball Managers Have Busy Routine.

TITLE GAME FEATURES

Final Contest of a Busy Week Will Be the One on Hope Chapel Court Next Saturday Night When Hope and Y. M. C. A. Teams Meet.

Major basketball teams of this city and of surrounding suburbs have a busy week of the court game mapped out for the next six days, no less than eight big contests having been arranged to be played nights during the present week. Besides the numerous so-called "big" contests, an equal number of minor struggles have been arranged, the Grace church team having two, the Hopel Chapel boy's club and second teams having arranged battles, a number of class teams in Plainfield and North Plainfield High Schools being due to meet rival aggregations and Scotch Plains and Y. M. C. A. second squads being down to compete on some court or another.

Plainfield High School, Scotch Plains and North Plainfield High School each have a couple of games to roll off and these are booked with some of the fastest rival scholastic representatives scheduled to appear here this season.

The big bill will be started Wednesday afternoon when the Morristown High School team appears on the Plainfield High School court and North Plainfield High School goes to Passaic. In the evening one of the best teams that ever appeared in this vicinity will perform on the Scotch Plains Parish House court in a contest with the 'Plains team. This aggregation is the St. James Triangle team and has been stirring things up in the Hudson County League during the past season.

Thursday afternoon the North Plainfield High School girls, after a letup which has lasted several weeks, will go to Cranford and resume play with the High School girls of that place.

Plainfield High School will get into action again on Friday night when the annual game with the Westfield High School team will be played at that place. This is one of the most popular bookings of the season for the Queen City scholars as it is always followed by a social time and dance in the Mt. Ararat schoolhouse. The same night Scotch Plains will migrate to Bound Brook and try conclusions with the W. F. A. quintet of that place.

As a grand climax to the week of basketball North Plainfield High School will take on the New Brunswick High School five here Saturday afternoon and the Y. M. C. A. team will go to Hope Chapel Saturday night to play the second game for the City Championship with the chapelites. This is a contest looked forward to by all local fans and inasmuch as the Hope crew won the first game, a second victory next Saturday will mean the championship for the chapelites.

ST. JAME'S TRIANGLES WILL INVADE 'PLAINS

The St. James Triangle five, of Brooklyn, a professional club in the Hudson River Valley Basketball Leauge, will make its first appearance in this vicinity on Wednesday evening, when it plays at the Scotch Plains Parish House against the first team of the place.

Supervisor Batterson has staged the game more in the nature of an

ARLINGTONS EVENED UP WITH 'PLAINS

Parish House Team's Crippled Lineup Put up a Strong Battle Saturday Night.

The Arlingtons, of Newark, journeyed to the Scotch Plains Parish House, Saturday night, for the purpose of getting even for the defeat received earlier this season and won by a score of 26 to 24. It was one of the closest and most exciting games ever played on the Parish House court. Playing without two of their regular men the first team put up one of the best games it has ever played.

Early in the second half the Parish House boys overcame a heavy lead but in the last minute of play Morgan shot two goals in succession for the Arlingtons giving them the verdict by two points.

Subbing for Smith, Alleger, the Westfield midget, hung up six points for the home five. Marston and Ricketts made six each also. Morgan, Sargent and Fairservice tied at eight points each for the Arlingtons.

LID REMAINS TIGHTLY CLAMPED IN ELIZABETH

Elizabeth, Jan. 5.—There was no letup on the part of the police yesterday in enforcing the Sunday closing law. None of the saloon-keepers took a chance, although several did last week.

According to the liquor dealers, if the law is so strictly enforced within three months more than a score of the saloons will be formed to go out of business.

THIEVES ROB E. R. ACKERMAN

coming from the west, sent a door crashing shut. The noise was heard by the former Senator. Hearing the latter's ascending footsteps, the looter evidently grabbed the jewelry from the drawer, dove through the open window and ran to the waiting machine.

It might appear the work of what the police call "an inside job," meaning that a household servant had been an accomplice of the crooks, but Senator Ackerman is stout in denying that any of his help had anything to do with the burglary. "My servants," he said, "have long been in my employ and I would trust any of them with anything I possess. Every cook and servant had been with us from ten to twenty-five years, and are tried and true."

Besides the costly collection of jewels, a rare assortment of broaches, rings, pins and bracelets set with diamonds, sapphires and other stones was taken and the amount of loot taken may reach $20,000.

Detective Sergeant John J. Flynn and Sergeant Higgins have been detailed to the case and will give their entire time to assist the police of other cities to locate the crooks. Outgoing steamers bound for Europe and other foreign climes are being watched for suspicious characters and some of the oldest detectives in the service in New York are watching the pawn shops and dives of the Metropolis. The insurance company that wrote the policy protecting Mrs. Ackerman from loss, is contemplating offering a substantial reward for the thieves' capture. A detailed description of the stolen loot was mailed this morning to one thousand chiefs of police in this country.

The list of articles stolen follows: One pearl necklace consisting of eighty-five pearls, with diamond clasp; one smaller sized pearl necklace, with diamond heart as pendant; one large diamond bird pin with ruby eyes; one diamond and pearl bow-knot pin set with small pearls, pin of platinum; one oblong pin set with four small diamonds and pearls; one pearl pin set with six Ceylon pearls, pin about one to one and a half inches long; diamond crescent; one large sized butterfly pin, with diamonds, rubies, opeals and sapphires; one Tiffany pin, circle shaped, set with pearls and diamonds alternately; one ring with two large pearls and two small diamonds set between; one ring with pearl centre and large diamond on either side, surrounded by small diamonds; one ring with three rubies, set around with diamonds; one ring with three pearls, filled with diamonds; one ring, torquoise surrounded by diamonds; one chain bracelet consisting of gold links set with sapphires; one pair gold lorgnettes with gold chain set with pearls; one diamond ring, Princess setting, set with three large diamonds in centre and set around solidly with diamonds; one solitaire diamond ring; check of H. E. Weber for $25.00 on Third National Bank, Cumberland, Md.; Fifty-trip ticket Plainfield to New York with ten or twelve trips unused; about $200 in money; one antique ring, set with four small diamonds and blue sapphire in center.

A patrolman has been stationed in the rooms in which the burglar trespassed, with instructions to allow no one to touch anything until the arrivalf of a finger print expert from New York who will take impressions of all finger marks in the hope that in this way the crook will be identified.

RETAIL LICENSE REFUSED FINDLAY

Common Council Goes on Record as Opposed to Increasing Present Number.

PASSES RESOLUTION

Councilmen Martin and VanHerwerden Alone Vote Against It—No Action Taken on the Five Wholesale Applications.

The question as to whether any additional retail liquor licenses should be granted in Plainfield this year was promptly settled in the negative at the meeting of the Common Council, last night, when the following resolution introduced by Councilman Charles C. Graves, chairman of the license committee, was adopted by a vote of nine to two, Councilmen Theodore Martin and Cornelius vanHerwerden opposing the resolution:

"Resolved, That in the judgment of this Council the number of persons and places now licensed to sell spirituous, vinous malt and brewed liquor in quantities less than one quart, in the city of Plainfield, is sufficient to meet all public demands thereof and that additional licenses of that character are unnecessary and would not conduce to the public good."

This action was taken after a half-hour recess of the Council held for that purpose, and it means that there will be no further consideration of the application of Alexander D. Findlay for a saloon license on East Second street, and the application will not be advertised among those to be considered by the Council. There was no reference to granting any additional wholesale licenses, there being five new applicants this year.

When the vote was taken on the resolution, Counsilman Martin hesitated when his name was called, explaining that he would like to consider the question, but when President Clay informed him that he must vote "no" or "yes" unless excused, he voted against the resolution. Mr. vanHerwerden also voted no, making no comment. Those supporting the resolution were President Clay, Councilmen C. C. Graves, Francis J. Blatz, Leighton Calkins, A. D. Edgar, John H. Cose, Thomas F. Hylan, Richard A. Claybrook and Juan A. Babcock.

FINDLAY MAY FIGHT OVER REFUSAL

Rumor He Will Mandamus City for Refusing to Grant His Application.

The Common Council in adopting a resolution, last night, deciding not to grant any addition retail liquor licenses this year, took that action under the provisions of the new law which provides that in municipalities where there is less than one saloon to five hundred inhabitants it may advertise that applications will be received and licenses awarded to the highest bidders. The Council in deciding that there are a sufficient number of saloons in the city will not advertise, the law apparently giving the governing body discretionary powers in the matter.

There was a rumor in circulation today that Alexander D. Findlay, who applied for a saloon license on East Second street, would mandamus the city in an effort to compel the granting of a license to him. In this case he would be obliged to take the matter to the courts for an interpretation of the law and the whole expense would be placed on him. Neither Mr. Findlay nor his lawyer, W. L. Hetfield, could be reached this afternoon by the reporter.

In view of the fact that the Council by a vote of 9 to 2 adopted the resolution offered by the chairman of the license committee would indicate an overwhelming majority in favor of such a position. In many respects the law is vague, but the Council did not take any action until after being advised by Corporation Counsel Charles A. Reed.

It is the opinion of Mr. Reed that the Council in adopting the resolution as it did, puts that body on record as being opposed to granting any more saloon licenses and its position is well taken in declining to advertise that applicants will be received with the understanding that licenses will be granted to the highest bidder. If by any chance the matter should be taken to the courts and the decision should be favorable to Mr. Findlay, the Council could reject his application on the grounds that it was objectionable, and judging by the present sentiment of that body he would stand little show of getting a license, in fact the same position might be taken in reference to any

JOHN M'GAULEY IS MISSING FROM HOME

Wandered Away Yesterday and His Whereabouts is a Mystery.

Parents and friends of John McGauley, of 709 East Sixth street, who disappeared from his home yesterday afternoon and has not been heard from since, are greatly concerned over his absence. Given to wandering slightly he has always returned within several hours, but what keeps him away on this instance, is a mystery.

He is described as being five feet eight inches tall, slim build, is sickly, wore dark coat and trousers, gray cap, tan shoes and was without an overcoat when last seen.

The neighborhood of his home has been searched, but no tract of him could be found. Chief Kiely has been notified and he in turn gave orders to his men to keep a lookout for the youth. His father is almost frantic and will make several trips out-of-town today in an effort to locate his son among relatives.

COLUMBUS KNIGHTS GAVE HALF-MILLION

Catholic University at Washington Receives a Rich Endowment Fund.

Thomas J. McLoughlin, of Newark, national warden of the Knights of Columbus, represents this State's order at the presentation of an endowment fund of $500,000 to the Catholic University of America today in Baltimore. It is made to Cardinal Gibbons, as president of the board of trustees of the college, at Washington, D. C. The $500,000 was raised by the Knights of Columbus by subscription from among its members.

The $500,000 is the second endowment gift by the Knights of Columbus to the Catholic university. The first was $55,000 donated several years ago for the purpose of endowing a chair of American history at the college.

By the terms of the $500,000 gift the income will be used for the purpose of instituting fifty scholarships. The scholarships will go to young men, Americans, who desire to enter the Catholic priesthood. It is intended to have the scholarships competed for annually. They will be open to students in all parts of the United States for the term that opens at the Catholic university next fall. Each scholarship will cover a period of four years.

James A. Flaherty, of Philadelphia, supreme knight of the Knights of Columbus, makes the presentation to Cardinal Gibbons today. The $500,000 was handed over in bonds bought by the Knights.

Mgr. Thomas J. Shahan, rector of the university, acknowledges the gift on behalf of the faculty, and outlines the uses to which the money will be put.

DECLINED TO ACCEPT RESIGNATION OF PRESIDENT

Miss Mary O'Connor, president of the Women's League of St. Joseph's church, at a meeting held last night tendered her resignation, but feeling that they needed her good services the members by vote declined to accept it. Miss O'Connor has long served the league in various capacities. Following the business session a short program was rendered consisting of a reading by Miss Agnes Fitzgerald and vocal solos by Miss Elizabeth Day, accompanied by Miss Julia Day on the piano. Euchre was also played and Miss Mary Leahy and Mrs. Mattis succeeded in scoring the greater number of points, receiving an appropriate souvenir as evidence of their skill.

Miss Agnes Fitzgerald announced that the Children of Mary would hold a euchre January 30, in Debele's Auditorium for the benefit of the villa of the Sisters of Mercy. Dancing will follow cards and refreshments will be served.

MOOSE PETITION ACTION DEFERRED

Justice Bergen Wants Some Proof Before Granting Application.

RENEWAL FOR ELKS

Court Charges Grand Jury as to Excise Matters—Many Local Cases Are Listed for Trial This Term—Elks Get License.

Elizabeth, Jan. 6.—The January term of the Union County Courts opened here this morning with Justice James J. Bergen on the bench. There was a large attendance. Councilman Abiel D. Edgar and Bertholde J. Schreiner, both of Plainfield, are members of the Grand Jury. Charles Baechtel, of Elizabeth, is the foreman.

Justice Bergen in his charge to the Grand Jury, drew that body's attention to the provisions of the excise law, giving instructions as to what should be done where violations are found.

Plainfield Lodge, No. 885, B. P. O. E., was granted a club license for the coming year, but the applications of Plainfield Lodge, Loyal Order Moose, was laid over, as were also the applications of James B. Guttridge for a hotel license for the "Maples," Fanwood, and that of Raffael Cenezio for a wholesale license in Fanwood township. Walter L. Hetfield, Jr., of the firm of Reed & Hetfield, appearing for the township, presented a remonstrance against granting a license to Venezio. The applications which were laid over will be given a hearing on Friday. George Ball remonstrated against the granting of licenses in the township.

Regarding the application of the Loyal Order Moose, Plainfield, for a club license, the court said that it wanted to know whether there is any private school, church or mission within two hundred feet of the place seeking a license and whether there are any objections by neighbors to the application being granted. This information he hoped to have presented to him on Friday.

As yet no judge has been assigned for the trial of cases which will begin on Monday, January 19. Among the causes listed for trial which are of interest to Plainfield are the following:

Mrs. Peter Murray against Charles E. Faber, in tort; Mrs. Abby K. Schneider against Mrs. Katherine Coman, in which damages are sought for alienation of husband's affections; B. F. Sturtevant Co., against Den. J. Galbraith, on contract; Clifford Applegate against Charles Lyman, on contract; Justyna Wojcio against K. Rothberg, in tort; Jones Thomas Company aganist the Standard Automobile Tire Company, on contract; two actions of J. D. Loizeaux against Emanuel Kapelsoh, mechanics' lien; Davis Steinman against Alice A. Pfister, mechanics' lien.

PLAN SOCIAL EVENTS FOR JEFFERSON CLUB

Organization's Roster Has Now Passed the Century Mark.

The Jefferson Democratic Club met at its headquarters at Prescott place and West Third street, last night, and elected the following officers: President, Edward Strappe; vice president, Patrick Culliney; second vice president, James McNeil; financial secretary, Harvey Van Pedt; recording secretary, William Sutton; treasurer, Peter McCluskey, and sergeant-at-arms, Fred Lanning. Six new members were also added to the roster.

During the business session, which preceded the election of officers, plans were made for several social events to take place during the winter months, the first of which will take the form of a smoker and social on Friday night. The report of the secretary of the club showed that the roster has steadily grown in numbers and that the organization was prospering financially. Formed with a few members in the midst of the last campaign, the membership has grown until it has now passed the century mark.

SOMERVILLE FINDS IT IS EXTRAVAGANT

Departments Exceed Appropriations and Council Will Practise Economy.

Somerville, Jan. 6.—Rigid economy is to be the watchword by the Borough Copncil, as was evidenced at the first monthly meeting held at the engine house last night. It developed at the session that every department of the borough had exceeded its appropriations, with the exception of the shade tree commission and free public library, and in order to carry on the work of the borough along the lines followed last year it wold require a budget of $50,000 instead of $30,000 raised by taxation last year.

Among the departments which had exceeded their appropriations for the past year were the following: Streets, $7,000, and instead almost $17,000 was spent; fire purposes, $2,700, and for this purpose $6,000 was spent; for the collection and disposal of garbage the budget provided only $1,200, while $5,000 was expended.

This situation has become critical, and the members of the Council have determined for this year to cease the payment of any money for any department after the appropriation for that department has become exhausted. Just how the Council will meet the present situation is problematical, as it is well-known that the expenses of running the borough the past year exceeded the income by over $10,000. In order to begin curtailing the expenses it was voted to purchase the team of horses and outfit from N. O. Dunster and stable them as at present at the engine house. For some years the borough has paid Mr. Dunster monthly $123.50 for the use of this team, and it is believed that the purchase of the outfit by the borough for $450 will result in a material saving during the past over that of last year. It was also decided not to purchase any new hose or equipment for the fire department, except in a case of extreme necessity.

The monthly report of J. K. Brokaw showed a balance on hand of about $9,000, and bills were ordered paid amounting to about $2,000.

E. E. Mundy and T. C. Mundy requested the payment of West End sewer certificates Nos. 87, 89, 90 and 102, nd it was also voted to pay off $22,000 of certificates of indebtedness as soon as the money comes to hand. This latted is in line with a similar resolution passed at the meeting on December 29, and is in confirmation of that action.

Councilman Bellis presented a detailed report of the work of the street department for the past year, which was ordered placed on file.

The standing committees for the year were announced by Mayor Steele, as follows:

Streets, sidewalks, crossings and garbage, Messers. Barras and Bellis; police, Ellis and Durling; fire department, Cline and Durling; street lighting, Wright and Richards; finance and auditing, Wright and Barras; sewers and drains, Richards and Bellis; street railways, Durling and Cline; public lands, Richards and Cline; stationery and printing, Wright and Barras; poor, Barras and Richards.

The salaries of the borough officers were fixed as follows: Borough physician, $100; superintendent of fire alarm, $120; clerk, $480; overseer of poor, $300; engineer and janitor, $420, superintendent of streets, $900. The borough attorney was also voted $50 as a retaining fee.

The rest of the borough officials were re-appointed, as follows: Street superintendent, Jacob Klotz; superintendent of fire alarm, Jacob H. Gernert; engineer and janitor, George D. Totten.

There was some argument over the appointment of the borough marshals, and Councilman Bellis recommended the re-appointment of the following: Joseph Hanlon, Michael O'Brien, Robert Holmes, Julius Sauter and Edward Ramsey. It was decided, however, to defer action in this matter until some future meeting.

REPORTS RECEIVED BY CITY FATHERS

Health Board and Playground Commission Make Annual Statements.

ROUTINE OF COUNCIL

The Board of Health Asks $9,000 for Coming Year and Urges Adoption of Some Sanitary Garbage System.

Aside from the action taken by the Common Council last night, in which it was decided not to grant any additional retail liquor licenses this year, the business generally was of minor importance. Two additional reports were received, that of the Playground Commission, showing a balance on hand of $212.93, and the Shade Tree ommission, showing that it had received and expended $2,197 in the care of the city trees. The twenty-fifth annual report of the Board of Health was received, and inasmuch as it is to be printed with other reports was not read.

George P. Mellick, of the Board of Governors of Muhlenberg Hospital, in a communication, requested the removal of a light from the west to the southeast corner of Park avenue and Randolph road and the location of a new light on Moffett avenue, between Marion and Park avenues to give better light near the Nurses' Home. This was referred to the light committee.

The Religious Society of Friends made its annual protest against the granting of any liquor licenses in the city. This was referred to the license committee.

The Board of Health in a communication set forth that it would require an appropriation of $9,000 for the coming year, a new sanitary code being in contemplation as well as other improvements. The board also requested the Common Council to appoint a committee to confer with the health authorities regarding a system of garbage disposal. These were referred to the proper committee.

The Council purchased a new typewriter for City Clerk James T. MacMurray, the price of which is to be $65 and the old machine now being used. Mr. Hylan offered a resolution, which was adopted, authorizing the installation of a new electric desk lamp for the city clerk, the same to be properly wired beneath the desk. The Council then adjourned to Monday night, January 19. Another meeting will be held on Monday night, January 26, to act on liquor licenses.

PLAINFIELD'S PLAN URGED BY A PRIEST

Elizabeth Clinic Advocates Adoption of Similar Excise Ordinances in That City.

Elizabeth, Jan. 6.—Continuing his crusade for better excise conditions, the Rev. Dr. Mackel urged the parishioners of St. Patrick's church at the masses on Sunday to advocate the adoption of the Plainfield liquor license plan for this city. He pointed out the advantages for all concerned if the Plainfield system was adopted to regulate the liquor traffic in Elizabeth.

"Opponents of this movement would offer as an argument the loss of money entailed by those interested," he said, "but the loss of money could not be balanced with the wrecked homes and unhappiness that at present exists and the slaves of intemperance chained to this passion.

"When Lincoln demanded the emancipation of the slaves in the South the slave-owners howled him down, declaring they would lose money. Public opinion, however, demanded a halt on this traffic of human flesh and blood, and men gave their lives in support of the movement. Public sentiment disregarded the cry of the slave-owners about the loss of money and the sentiment overwhelmed the protests of the Southerners.

"Residents of the rest of the city, I am sure, are willing to have this city adopt the Plainfield plan," he continued. "I wish you to be zealous advocates of it. It is your duty, you who have particularly shown your devotion to Jesus Christ and His church in so many ways.

"The Plainfield plan does not make the liquor business prohibitory, but it places it in the hands of respectable men, who will control the business properly and will not sell intoxicants to women or children.

"The Plainfield plan is acceptable to all classes. It merely regulates the sale of liquor as a dangerous drug. Have this plan adopted."

SURPRISE PARTY FOR MISS MARION AVERY

Tendered by Twenty-five of Her Schoolmates in Boro High School.

Miss Marion Avery, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Avery, of Fairview avenue, was tendered a surprise party at her home last night by about twenty-five of her schoolmates and friends. The affair was arranged in honor of Miss Avery's sixteenth birthday anniversary.

The young hostess admitted that it was a complete surprise as the entire party swooped down upon her as she opened the door. Singing, dancing and a general social time prevailed throughout the evening. Two prizes were offered for the couple doing the most things in a limited time and these were won by Lucy Douglas and Franklin Lowe. The former received a gold trimmed pipe and her partner a "diamond" ring, but part of the performance was to exchange prizes.

The home was simply decorated with colored electric lights and bouquets. Miss Avery received many presents from her friends, among them being a mantle clock. Shortly before midnight light luncheon was served by the hostesses' mother.

The couple who have just returned from a short honeymoon, were married by Rev. Dr. William A. Knox, pastor of the Dunellen M. E. church, on New Year's Day. Miss B. Jacobs was bridesmaid and Harry Smalley acted as best man. A reception followed at the home of the bride's parents, where dancing was enjoyed and the wedding feast served.

DANIEL F. GINNA DIES OF TYPHOID

Former Councilman and Well Known Man Passes Away After 5 Weeks' Illness.

DEATH UNEXPECTED

Owner of Woodbrook Farms and Prominent in Local Society—Wife and Daughter Survive Him—Funeral Arrangements Later.

Daniel F. Ginna died of typhoid fever early this afternoon at his home, 1127 Watchung avenue, following an illness of five weeks. The attack at first was considered a light one and up to as late as a week ago he was thought to be improving, but a sudden change in his condition gave cause for anxiety on the part of his family and the end came peacefully this afternoon.

Although Mr. Ginna was not born in this city, he spent the greater part of his life here. He was the son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Stephen A. Ginna, his father being a prominent citizen here for many years, serving as a member of the Common Council for several terms.

After his father's death, Mr. Ginna established the well-known Woodbrook Farms dairy located in the southwestern part of the city, and he devoted practically all of his time to that business, which has grown to large proportions, the products of the farm being widely known.

Mr. Ginna always took a deep interest in city affairs and in 1906 he was elected a member of the Common Council, serving two years. He was a member of several important committees, but as chairman of the street commitee he perhaps did his best work. It was during 1907 that he was able to see the accomplishment of the brick pavement in the business section of the city. He strongly favored this improvement and worked hard to have the work completed.

Mr. Ginna was a member of the Crescent Avenue Presbyterian church for many years, and while he held no official position there was interested in every department of the work, and especially in the work of Bethel chapel, which was founded by his father many years ago. The deep interest manifested by the father was maintained by the son to the last. He was a member of the Plainfield Country Club and was prominent in social functions.

There survive a wife and one daughter, Miss Catherine Ginna, and a sister, Mrs. Erickson Perkins, of Rochester, N. Y.

NORTH PLAINFIELD'S DEATH RATE LESS

Whole Year Passes Without Single Case of Typhoid Fever.

Officers were elected and reports presented at the annual meeting of the North Plainfield Board of Health held last night in the Borough Council rooms. The reports showed a ten per cent. decrease in the death rate and the fact that there had not been one single case of typhoid in the borough during last year.

The annual report of Louis Oliff, the health inspector, was particularly gratifying. It shows that there were only fifty-eight cases of communicable diseases in the borough during the year. There were 1,500 inspections and two arrests. The slogan of the inspector, "keep clean all the time," has been enforced according to the records. There were 106 births, 85 deaths and 46 marriages.

Mr. Oliff was named as a delegate to represent the Board at the annual conference of the State Board of Health to be held in Trenton, January 23-24.

These officers were elected for the coming year: President, Andrew E. Kenney; secretary, treasurer and registrar of vital statistics, Dr. A. H. Dundon; counsel, Francis J. Blatz.

LOSS ON HOUSE $10,000.

Located on the storm swept peninsula of Seabright, the summer home of S. S. Carvalho, of West Eighth street, was damaged to the extent of $10,000 by the flood and wind of Saturday night. The retaining wall constructed following the first storm on Christmas day was the only thing that saved the Carvalho home from complete destruction.

NEWSPAPER SCRIBE'S OPINION OF MARTIN

Boston "Post," Writer Looks Upon the Local Player as a Coming Star.

"Commenting on the prospects of the Boston Braves for a rosy season in the National League race this year and describing the youthful players on the Hub outfit, Paul H. Shannon, of the Boston "Post," has the following to say of our friend, Jack Martin:

"Manager Stallings expects great things of Jack Martin, who was with the New York Highlanders at one time and was eventually secured by the Braves from Rochester. Many thought that the New York Club made an unwise move in letting him get away, but his performance in 1912 was rather erratic and that probably induced the Highlanders' manager to cut loose from him. Last season Martin showed a wonderful reversal of form, hit for .294, and his work had a great deal to do with Rochester's success. He fielded .923. He is twenty-four years old, 5 feet 9 inches in height, and weighs about 160 pounds. His winter home is in Plainfield, N. J."

The Boston writer has Jack down for a pitcher like many other baseball writers and avers that the little shortstop will be a fixture on the "Beantown" aggregation during the coming championship race. Heading the article penned in the Boston paper is a picture of Martin in his "Sunday-go-to-meeting" clothes and is a photograph which has heretofore never adorned a sporting chronicle.

The local boy has his work all cut out for him this season and if he succeeds in landing a permanent berth on the Hub nine he will have completed one of the most noteworthy stunts in modern baseball. Opposing him as a contender for the shortstop berth is Maranville, the little Cuban, who has been cavorting between second and third and pulling off sensational feats for Boston during the past two years.

Many of the Plainfielder's friends have suggested to him that he try for third instead of short this season but Martin is confident of success and intends to match his prowess against that of the veteran Maranville and be satisfied with the results. Plainfield followers of the National pastime, and particularly those who have been ardent admirers of the local youth since he made his debut in fast company, will watch his progress through the sporting pages after March 1 and a majority are optimistic of his chances of hauling down the job he is trailing.

Dr. A. F. Van Horn, medical inspector of the local public schools, at the regular monthly meeting of the Plainfield Board of Education held in the high school rooms last night, reported that he had conducted a total of 3,470 examinations during the year 1913, and that out of this number he found 1,044 who had never been vaccinated. The school nurse's report showed that a total of 7,675 pupils had been brought to her attention during the year just closed.

An adjourned session was ordered for January 12 at which an accumulation of important business will be disposed of. Messrs. Tyler and Woodhull were appointed as members of the Board of School Estimate at last night's meeting.

MONDAY AFTERNOON CLUB TO CONTINUE DEPT. PLAN

An interesting discussion of a proposed program for 1914-15 was held at the general meeting of the Monday Afternoon Club held at the Hartridge Auditorium, yesterday afternoon. It was finally decided to continue three, instead of four departments, those selected being literature, art and miscellaneous. These will be continued for another year at least.

The present program permits of conflicting dates, that is it is necessary for two departments to meet on the same day, but the new arrangement this will be avoided. After a considerable debate the matter of arranging the program was left to the executive committee to be reported upon at another meeting. It was the opinion of many members that the department plan had increased interest in the organization and its work and for that reason it was thought best to continue it for another year.

COMEDY CLUB TO GIVE PLAY AT THEATRE AFTER EASTER

Mr. Hart has coached a number of the successful shows given by the club in the past, including the two given in December at the Park Club. The play to be given has not been decided upon, but President Brown Rolston has appointed a play committee consisting of Mrs. Henry L. McGee, William T. Pelletier, Alson M. Abbott and Mr. Rolston, and they are considering a number including some which have never been given before. The play will be decided upon and the cast probably chosen before the February meeting of the executive committee.

FEW FOLKS HAVE GRAY HAIR NOW

Druggist Says Ladies Are Using Recipe of Sage Tea and Sulphur.

Hair that loses its color and lustre, or when it fades, turns gray, dull and lifeless, is caused by a lack of sulphur in the hair. Our grandmother made up a mixture of Sage Tea and Sulphur to keep her locks dark and beautiful, and thousands of women and men who value that even color, that beautiful dark shade of hair which is so attractive, use only this old-time recipe.

Nowadays we get this famous mixture by asking at any drug store for a 50 cent bottle of "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Hair Remedy," which darkens the hair so naturally, so evenly that nobody can possibly tell it has been applied. Besides, it takes off dandruff, stops scalp itching and falling hair. You just dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time. By morning the gray hair disappears; but what delights the ladies with Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur is that, besides beautifully darkening the hair after a few applications, it also brings back the gloss and lustre and gives it an appearance of abundance.—Adv.

A LICENSE QUESTION.

Its decision not to add to the number of retail liquor licenses this year, as made by the Common Coucil last night, reflects the general public sentiment. The result of the vote on the question was decisive, nine of the eleven members going on record against any increase and they are to be commended for respecting the wish of the great majority of the people.

The idea of disposing of the matter at this early date was to avoid any unnecessary expense to the city by needless advertising of the single application filed. This is in conformity with the policy of the present municipal administration as expressed by Mayor Stewart in his annual message for rigid economy.

The chances for any wholesale applications being granted now appear more remote than ever. The probabilities are, according to those who seem to be informed on the situation, that the Councilmanic license committee will recommend that none of the fire wholesale petitions be sanctioned. One argument is advanced that the quintet stand on an equal footing and that it would be manifestly unfair to make any distinctions and to grant all of the applications would be absurd.

The real danger in granting of them lies in the fact that such action would be an opening wedge and that it might lead to an entire change of Plainfield's well established policy. But as we have said, the chances are mighty slim for any change. Members of the body who are opposed to any increase say that the majority of the body feel that way about the matter.

J. P. Morgan is not following in the footsteps of his distinguished sire, when it comes to parting with relics. He is reported to having flatly refused to give back to the State of Virginia the will of Martha Washington alleged to have been stolen from Fairfax, Va., county records during the Civil War. It will be recalled that the elder Morgan voluntarily returned a cope when he learned that it had been stolen from a church in Italy.

The Elizabeth Journal makes the suggestion that the Public Service Railway Company issue an order instructing its trolley car conductors to call the names of streets. That idea cannot be considered unimportant. Much annoyance is caused by passengers, who are strangers, being carried blocks beyond their destination simply because the conductors do not inform them of the street at which they desire to alight.

There's a lesson for many otherwise sensible people to be learned in the fact that the burglar who made off with $15,000 worth of jewels at Senator Ackerman's home the other night did not get his very rare collection of stamps. The Senator had that much prized treasure stowed away in a safe deposit vault.

William K. Devereaux, who was turned down as a candidate for the Asbury Park postmastership by President Wilson, is now having his troubles in getting a reappointment on the Monmouth county tax board. And yet he has been one of the hardest workers for his party for many, many years.

The Romantic History Of Panama Road, Built by Americans

SIXTY-FIVE years ago three Americans secured a concession from the Colombian government for a railroad across the isthmus. In 1847 a Frenchman had succeeded in getting a concession, but he could not raise the money to even make a survey, and when he dropped his rights the Americans went after them, and in December, 1848, Colombia granted permission for the road to William H. Aspinwall, John L. Stephens and Henry Chauncey.

The three Americans had in view the handling of the immigrants bound for the recently opened California country, and Aspinwall already had started a steamship line between Panama and San Francisco. The discovery of gold in California paved the way for the raising of the necessary money for a start.

But railroad building in 1850 was far from what it is today, and constructing fifty miles across a country which had the reputation of being the most unhealthy in the world was no easy task. After a year's work, when the line had been run only seven miles inland to Gatun, the money gave out altogether, and the promoters did not know which way to turn.

Then a bad wind and good luck came to the enterprise. A sailing ship bound for the mouth of the Chagres river, where it was customary to land passengers for a canoe trip up the river to within eighteen miles of the Pacific, was unable on account of storms to put in there and instead landed its cargo and human freight at Colon, the starting point of the railroad.

The seven miles of railroad became popular at once, and one may be sure that the rates charged were high enough to suit even a railroad rate-maker of today. But, despite the high rates, the seven mile road was so much better and faster than the Chagres river route to the same point that the company prospered, and money poured in again. From that day to this the Panama railroad never has passed a dividend and has paid from 3 to 61 per cent yearly.

It was in 1850 that the work was begun on the road, and five years later, on Jan. 28, the first railroad train was run across the continent.

AN EXCURSION TRAIN ON THE PANAMA ROAD.

The road was a trifle over forty-seven miles long and reached a height of 263 feet.

European trade for the orient went by way of the isthmus, and Panama was once more a land of plenty. The roadbed followed exactly the trail of the old Spanish mule trains. But now, instead of carting treasure in the shape of looted gold and jewels, the treasure train carried manufactured goods for far away countries.

In 1869 the first railroad across the United States was completed, and much of the freight trade and most of the passengers were diverted from the Panama route, but still the road continued to make money.

In 1881 the French Canal company, preparing to start work on the waterway, needed the railroad. The Frenchmen found it absolutely necessary, in fact, to carry out their plans, and so they purchased 68,887 of the 70,000 shares of stock for $201 a share and assumed charge of the road.

In 1904, when the United States bought over all the rights to the canal, it obtained this stock and also bought up by private purchase the remaining shares, so that today the Panama railroad is owned by the United States, as is the steamship branch of the service.

The road is today one of the most complete in the world. The old rails have been replaced with eighty pound ones, and it is double tracked most of the way. One hundred ton oil burning locomotives are used, and the passenger and freight cars are the best made.

As the Panama canal, like the railroad, is following the original trails of the first adventurers, it has been necessary to relocate some of the line, so that today it is running partly through a new country. The route over which the Panama railroad was built was known in the old days as the gold road, for it was traversed by gold seekers of all kinds from the earliest days to the time of the California excitement in '49.

This first railroad owned by the United States pays dividends and is run strictly on business principles. Colonel George W. Goethals, the canal builder, is the president, and there never has been a suspicion of any of the graft or the playing of political favorites that every one said would mark a government owned system.

STIRRING CAREER OF GEN. VILLA, VICTOR OVER NORTHERN MEXICO

Yesterday a Bandit, Today a Victorious General.

He Holds Over 100,000 Square Miles of Territory.

"WHO is Villa?" is the question that has been on the lips of thousands since the stories of his remarkable series of triumphs against the battle worn regiments of Victoriano Huerta's generals began to sing over the wires to the north.

It is a question that any Mexican can easily answer. For fifteen years he has been a man killer, a bank robber, a bandit, a soldier of fortune and the deadliest foe of the government rurale. Today by the changing chance of a few weeks, a battle won, a city taken and looted, and he is the conqueror, the great general, destined seemingly to be a power in the new regime in Mexico if the war of the Carranzistas is successful.

No man in any of Mexico's countless rebellions and revolts has gone through a more complete change of circumstances than has Pancho Villa in the last five months, and to few men has there ever been given a more kaleidoscopic career in a lifetime than this desperado-diplomatist has jammed into it in the last five years of his existence.

Escaping from United States border patrols and Mexican federal infantry and cavalry last March, Villa took the field with a single horse, which had been "borrowed," two sacks of flour and nine men. In November he returned with upward of 10,000 followers, mostly well armed, quick moving cavalrymen, thirty-eight large field pieces, fifty rapid fire machine guns, a train load of ammunition, other train loads of supplies for his troops and more than $5,000,000 in Mexican money. He controls the state of Chihuahua, the wealthy cotton and irrigation country in the Laguna district of Coahuila and the mines of Durango state, the most valuable in the whole republic of Mexico. He has taken from the Huerta government and holds today 100,000 square miles of territory. Chihuahua city, which he has occupied, is the largest and most important city in northern Mexico.

The cohesive power of loot is the thing that holds Villa's army together. It is a bond that infolds mine worker, cowboy, rancher, farmer, peon and aristocrat. This band of robbers gutted Juarez, led by Villa himself. They sacked Torreon, and Villa was the arch sacker. He is reported to have taken $3,000,000 in cash there. He threatened Parral after Manuel Chao captured it, and the merchants paid him ransom to keep his "gentle hyenas" out of the place. He has looted Chihuahua and has driven many Spanish residents from that city. A demand was sent to him from Secretary Bryan that Spaniards as well as Americans be given protection and that the property confiscated from Spanish citizens be returned to them.

The story of the beginning of Villa's criminal career is that he was left as a guardian of his sister, a beautiful girl, on the death of his father. His family, it is said, was a good one, as good as any in the north of Mexico. Soon after his father's death a jefe politico or high sheriff, who lived near the Villa ranch, eloped with the sister who had been left in Pancho's care. There was no marriage, according to the story, and Pancho decided that the situation could only be cleared by the death of the sheriff. He galloped after the elopers, caught them and arranged their marriage. Then he told his newly acquired brother-in-law to sign his own death certificate, dig his own grave and lie beside it. He shot the bridegroom and rolled him into the grave.

When the story became known the father of the sheriff rode out to the Villa ranch and was shot dead as he knocked at the door. Then Pancho fled to the hills and a price was placed on his head by President Diaz.

He gathered together a number of desperate men of the northern mountain country, and within six months his name was spoken with awe throughout the country. He and his band, which he controlled absolutely, subsisted by robbery and pillage in the Chihuahua mountains, and their crimes were usually of the most desperate sort.

When Madero revolted against Diaz Villa cast his lot with the revolutionists, giving up for a time his routine of professional outlawry for the purpose of satisfying his revenge. This move brought him into the national affairs of Mexico, and since then as defender of the government or as a rebel against it he has been a figure of increasing prominence. When he came forward to aid Madero he was accepted at once, for Madero feared him. He brought with him a rank of 1,000 men and was the right arm of Madero's power.

Before the battle of Juarez, in which the Diaz forces were decisively defeated, Villa had a violent quarrel with General Garibaldi, another one of the revolutionary leaders, and threatened to kill him. In the battle which followed Garibaldi distinguished himself and was given credit for the victory, and Villa, incensed and jealous, went so far as to cross the border into El Paso trying to find and kill the man who had outshone him. Madero's efforts to restrain him caused ill feeling between the bandit and his chief, which was increased when Pancho, to vent his anger, killed an officer at Chihuahua against whom he held a grudge.

A final quarrel at this time, which resulted in Villa leaving the Madero forces, occurred when Madero insisted upon protecting the life of General Juan Navarro, a federal general who had been captured. Pancho insisted that the man be put to death and was backed up in his demand by Pasquale Orozco, the other bandit leader in the revolutionary forces. When Navarro was stolen out of the lines and saved by Madero, Orozco left the army, and Villa threatened to kill his leader.

Soon afterward Villa left the army of the revolutionists and, joining with Orozco, fought Madero's detachment at every turn. For three months Villa worked hand in glove with Orozco; but, as was customary with him, he became jealous of Orozco and withdrew his forces. He asked to be taken back into the Madero fold, and that much harassed leader was glad to get him. He was then given the rank of general in the federal army.

General Villa left the federal forces and became persona non grata with General Huerta when he refused to curry his superior's horse at Mexico City. He was arrested and shot in the leg and barely escaped with his life. He took to the hills again, but within a short time was identified with the revolutionists.

RUSSIAN ARMY TERROR STRICKEN

Spy System and Abuse Work Havoc In the Ranks.

SOLDIERS' SPIRIT BROKEN.

Startling Indictment In a London Publication Devoted to Russian Affairs. Insanity, Suicide and Assault of More Frequent Occurrence Than In Any Other Country.

The conditions of service in the Russian army are unbearable, according to the correspondent of a London periodical that treats exclusively of Russian affairs. This correspondent declares that the spy system and utter lack of consideration for enlisted men by the officers, and their brutality in dealing with civilians have crippled Russia's fighting force and reduced to a low ebb the spirit of the army. The article says:

"All military writers agree that at least half the strength of any army depends upon the spirit prevailing in its ranks. If they are to fight well and successfully the men must be united by comradeship, have faith in their officers and feel that they are risking their lives for something worth fighting for.

"Looking at the Russian army from this point of view, we cannot but be startled by the facts of every day life among the czar's soldiers. Comradeship is practically made impossible by espionage.

Officers Suffer as Well.

"It must not be imagined that spies confine their attention to privates. The officers are not immune from the same treatment. Until recently political charges made by the secret police against officers of the army had to be inquired into and verified by the ministry of war. But the gendarmerie naturally disliked this procedure, as it often exposed the worthlessness of espionage. The chief of the secret police therefore applied to General Sukhomlinoff, the minister of war, asking that any information about any army officer coming from his agents should be accepted by the military authorities without question. M. Sukhomlinoff fully agreed to this suggestion, gave orders accordingly, and added that the police reports should be kept secret from the officers concerned. Thus every officer is now at the mercy of every turncoat and spy without being given a chance to refute the allegations against him.

"Dueling is encouraged and sometimes forced. An arrogant attitude toward peaceful citizens, especially if they are independent in their political opinions, is interpreted as a laudable manifestation of 'military honor' and loyalty, while heartless, cruel treatment of the rank and file is regarded as 'good discipline.'

Murder In Code of Ethics.

"A writer named Kulchitsky has published a volume entitled 'Advice to Young Officers.' In this book, which deals, among other things, with possible quarrels between officers and civilians, the author says: 'Kill on the spot and with a single blow. A living man may harm you, while a dead one is harmless (i. e., as a witness) in case of a trial.' This book is recommended by commanders to their young officers on leaving a certain military school.

"This encouragement of lawlessness certainly does not strengthen the necessary discipline in the Russian army. While exacting from the private absolute obedience to a superior's order, however idiotic or lawless, and absolute conformity to formal rules which have nothing to do with the military efficiency of the soldier, the bullying officer no longer acknowledges any binding discipline so far as he himself is concerned. Cases of gross and unprovoked assault committed by officers on privates may be cited ad infinitum. From them it may be gathered how cheaply human life and the personality of a soldier are accounted in the Russian army.

"We cannot wonder, therefore, that despair and hatred of their profession and their superiors are rife among the Russian soldiery. There is no other army in the whole world where insanity, suicide and assaults on commanders by privates are so frequent. A committee of doctors at Kiev found that in the local military hospital alone there were simultaneously 200 insane privates who had to be discharged from military service. And there is no particular reason why insanity should be more rife at this place than in other districts. According to the report of the war ministry in 1911 the number of privates who took their own lives during that year was 347, and this figure is surely not exhaustive, since many suicides must have been reported under the heading of 'accidental deaths.'"

Fifteen Years to Make State Survey.

An idea of the tremendous task involved in making a state survey is obtained in the announcement that during 1913 approximately 2,000,000 acres of public land were surveyed in Montana. At the present rate of progress provided the appropriations and field forces are not reduced, it will be fifteen years before the work is completed. Twenty million acres have yet to be mapped.

CHECK ON LORD COWDRAY.

He Denies Intention to Dispose of Mexican Oil Interests.

Lord Cowdray has recently denied a public statement to the effect that he was about to dispose of his Mexican oil interests to an American concern. He said:

"Neither my firm nor I have sold nor are we about to sell our Mexican oil interests to the Standard Oil company or any one else."

Lord Cowdray has been blocked in attempts to gain oil concessions in Colombia and also in Costa Rica. The congresses of both countries refused to ratify oil contracts which had been negotiated. These successive failures have raised the question whether an attempt will now be made to upset Lord Cowdray's oil concession in

LORD COWDRAY, THE ENGLISH OIL KING, AND MEXICAN OIL WELLS.

Ecuador, which gives his firm the right to exploit the whole country by sections.

Lord Murray of Elibank, partner of Lord Cowdray in various enterprises, who has recently been in the United States, denied in an interview that the Pearson firm, of which Lord Cowdray is the head, is hostile on the whole to American interests in Mexico, Costa Rica and some of the South American land. This, he said, was not true, because the Pearsons had extensive business associations in the United States. Competition was to be expected, he said, as the legitimate procedure of rival business men. He further said that the public in England believed that the United States was disposed to exclude all European activities from countries within the sphere of the canal zone.

NEW KING FOR NEW THRONE.

European Powers Have Agreed on Prince William For Albania.

It is announced that all the European powers have given their consent to the assumption of the Albanian throne by Prince William of Wied. The prince is the head of the house of Wied. He was born in 1872.

William Frederick, sixth prince of Wied, is the son of William, the fifth prince of Wied, who died on Oct. 22, 1907 at the age of sixty-two years.

PRINCE WILLIAM OF WIED.

Prince William, the present head of the house, married in 1898 Princess Pauline of Wurttemberg.

The house of Ruhkel is one of the oldest in Europe, dating back to 1226. The title of Wied was derived by inheritance of half of the county of Wied named after a small river, an affluent of the Rhine, through the marriage of Thierry IV. of Runkel with Anastasia, daughter of John II., count of Isemburg-Wied, in the fifteenth century.

It is expected that Prince William will ascend the newly created throne of Albania some time in February. He has hesitated about accepting the throne and has made his acceptance conditional upon certain stipulations, chief among which is that the great powers shall secure him an annuity for life in case he should be forced from the Albanian throne. This shows that he does not consider his tenure thereof in the light of a fixture, and one cannot help recalling in this connection the remark made by Prince Bismarck to King Charles of Roumania when, as a mere prince of Hohenzollern, he called upon him to ask his advice about accepting the crown of Roumania.

"Take it," replied Bismarck. "You will always be able to look back to the adventure as an interesting experience for a young Prussian subaltern."

ANOTHER IDEA TO AID FARMERS

Finding an Outlet For Products Aim of New Organization.

EXPERTS FORMULATE PLANS

Agriculturists, Shippers, Commission Merchants and Consumers Interested In Movement Which Is Sequel to Recent Conference In Philadelphia. Will Investigate the Middleman.

Farm experts, transportation authorities and big shippers in all sections of the United States are being consulted by Charles E. Calwell and the members of his committee regarding the proposed Philadelphia farm bureau which is about to be started. The bureau idea is a direct outgrowth of the agricultural conference and corn exhibition which was held in Philadelphia recently. It was part of a country wide agitation to decrease the cost of living, render the farm more efficient, provide a sure outlet for the product of the agriculturist and bring about generally a closer relation between him and the city dweller.

All parties, farmers, shippers, commission merchants and consumers, were represented at the conference, and, although there was a considerable clamor for the total elimination of the middleman, the general opinion seemed to point to the conclusion that this individual was a very necessary cog in the machine. The better plan, it was decided, was to have the bureau investigate him thoroughly and vouch for him to the farmer, so that the latter would have more confidence in him and would be reasonably sure that it is safe to forward perishable products to him.

What an Expert Says.

Among the experts who have been consulted concerning the formation of the bureau is Professor A. B. Ross of Bedford county, Pa. He has been suggested by Mr. Calwell as director of the bureau. In a recent letter to Mr. Calwell, Professor Ross discussed the functions of the farm bureau. His letter is in part as follows:

The Philadelphia farm bureau should co-ordinate closely with outside shipping groups. It ought not to be asked to pay expenses properly chargeable against the product shipped. Its purposes are an adequate supply, measures to secure wholesomeness and palatability of food and such standardization, both in quality and grades, as will make for stable markets.

We face a condition, not a theory. The initiative must be with Philadelphia. She must offer the inducement to eliminate waste and stimulate production. Part of the expense can be charged against the produce from the start. There should be a marketing charge to help sustain the bureau. The cost of inspection, where called for, should be borne by the offending party, whether producer or consignee.

There are honest commission men and many dishonest commission men, and what is equally bad, there are many careless and inefficient commission men. This condition results in uncertainty that today is largely responsible for waste and limited production. I speak from knowledge of the facts.

Give Confidence to Farmers.

Give the attraction of increased confidence to the farmers and the production will increase with surprising promptness.

The bureau should have one man to devote his whole time to the propaganda and collateral work of the truck and fruit industries, a man capable of handling problems of the proper carriers, systems of packing, caring for and handling produce, cold storage, etc. Another man should devote himself entirely to marketing problems—that is, the finding of the markets for the stuff we grow and keeping in touch with the country districts so as to prevent shortage and overplus of supply. A glut in the market is just as much waste as if the stuff were allowed to rot on the farm.

There should be an inspector in charge of complaints. The mayor ought to appoint him and the city pay him on the ground of conservation of health, but toward his support a charge ought to be made for inspection, collected from the complainant who has improperly complained or the shipper who has overgraded his stuff or shipped it carelessly.

By far the greater part of the nation's food supply comes from small farms. Much of it is handled by hucksters. Much of it is shipped in such shape that waste is sure to occur. Practically all of this could be saved, says Professor Ross. Many farmers are prepared to produce heavily of the coarser food supplies—potatoes, cabbage, turnips—and many farmers' wives and children would be glad of the opportunity to realize the potential profit from small areas of truck, fruit and fruit products, butter and eggs if a certain outlet for such production at a reasonable price could be found.

OUR LATEST BATTLESHIP.

Champagne to Christen the Oklahoma. Though State Is "Dry."

The battleship Oklahoma, which will be christened in March, will cost approximately $15,000,000 when ready for service. It has a displacement of 27,500 tons and an armament of ten fourteen-inch guns, twenty-one five-inch guns, four three-pounders, two one-pounders, two three-inch field-pieces, two machine guns and four twenty-inch torpedo tubes. Its length will be 575 feet, with a beam of ninety-five feet, the portion below the water level being twenty-eight feet and six inches. The battleship will have sixty-three officers and 1,009 men.

The battleship will be christened by the governor's daughter, Miss Lorena Cruce, and, regardless of the fact that Oklahoma is a prohibition state, a bottle of real wine will be used.

LITTLE TALKS BY THE WANT AD MAN

Copyright, 1913, The Int. Syndicate, Baltimore.

No. 46.

"DON'T whine about your lack of opportunity. There are opportunities for everyone who is able to convince the world by his industry that he is worthy of success."

—Abraham Lincoln.

Suppose you're out of a job. Want work, don't you? Anything, so it's honest. But you don't know just where to turn to get it, do you?

You can apply for it from door to door or from office to office. That takes time and energy, and the chances are you won't even be listened to.

But you'll be listened to in the "Situations Wanted" column of this newspaper. Not by one man or one firm at a time. Hundreds of business men—employers—read the Classified columns. Your ad. in those columns, properly written, is sure of somebody's attention.

Just try it. Write a little Want ad. stating your qualifications. Your application for a position—for that's what the ad. will be—will go before a large audience of employers. You could not possibly reach that audience as inexpensively or as effectively any other way.

And perhaps YOUR opportunity is waiting for you in the Classified columns.

Of Interest to Women and the Home

The Housewife's Daily Economy Calendar

FRANCES MARSHALL

Stormy Day Work In the Kitchen.

When a rainy or snowy day, with no definite occupation planned for it, dawns spend a few hours preparing certain supplies that you can use for days and even weeks to come. These supplies will save money and time and will simplify your work on a busy day in the future.

Crack walnuts. Pick out the whole halves and put them in one glass jar to garnish salads or cakes. Put the broken pieces in another jar for nut and celery or Waldorf salad. Chop the odds and ends fine and keep them on hand for recipes calling for chopped nuts. Do the same thing with pecans. Shell some almonds, but don't blanch them, as they soon gather mould after they are blanched.

Shred codfish and chipped beef and put them in jars so that they will be ready to cream without trouble. Slice bacon and wrap it neatly in waxed paper, or else pack the slices in a glass jar.

Gather all bits of dried cheese—which should always be saved—together and grate them. Put this grated cheese in a bottle and cork it, ready to sprinkle over dishes prepared "au gratin." Grate dried bread and put that in a glass jar. Dry all stale crackers in the oven and roll them into fine crumbs to use in place of breadcrumbs for the outside of croquettes.

Get together all odds and ends of soap. Break them in bits and put them in a stoneware jar. To every quart of pieces add a quarter of a cupful of household ammonia and a quart of boiling wated. This mixture will form a sort of jelly-like soft soap which is useful for washing fine shirtwaists and table linen.

Fold piles of paper napkins to use with the fruit course at breakfast to save stains on the linen napkins and to use for impromptu feasts of an informal sort.

Cut squares of cheesecloth and put a teaspoonful of tea in each. Gather up the edges of the square and tie them securely. Put the little packages in an airtight tin box. When a single cupful of tea is wanted one of these can be dropped in a cupful of boiling water and removed as soon as the tea is strong enough.

Grate chocolate and mix it with sugar. Then when you want a quick cup of hot chocolate add some of this grated, sweetened chocolate to a cupful of milk, let it reach the boiling point and serve it. This must be kept in a cool, dry place.

Make some caramel and put it in a bottle to use for flavoring soups and sauces, ice cream and puddings and cakes.

All these things and many more can be prepared on a stormy, uneventful day to make work in the future easier.

Some Cookery Suggestions

MEXICAN PEPPER RECIPES.

THE Mexican housewife knows how to cook green peppers. Though Mexican food is generally highly seasoned, some of their recipes are well worth trying. The Mexicans have local names for these foods, but here English ones are given.

Savory Eggs.—Fry half a cupful of minced onion and green pepper in a little olive oil. When the onion is tender, but not brown, add four beaten eggs to which have been added three tablespoonfuls of cold water and half a cupful of tomato pulp.

Served With Sauce.

Peppers With Cheese.—Put six green peppers in the oven for a few minutes, then wipe off the outer skins with a cloth. Cut off the tops carefully, removing the seeds and veins; make a stuffing of cheese flavored with chopped onion, parsley and a few drops of lemon juice. Fill the peppers with this stuffing. Beat four eggs, whites and yolks separately; put together and thicken with a teaspoonful of flour. Dip the peppers in this batter and fry in hot olive oil until brown. Serve with tomato sauce.

Peppers With Macaroni.—Boil macaroni in salted water until tender, blanch in cold water and drain. Melt three tablespoonfuls of butter in a saucepan, add two tablespoonfuls of green pepper, chopped, and a minced onion. Cover and let cook for five minutes and then pour in gradually a small cupful of stock and a cupful of stewed and strained tomatoes. Season with salt and paprika. Reheat in this sauce and serve at once.

Stuffed With Eggs.

Stuffed Peppers.—Carefully wipe off the skins of the peppers with a soft cloth. Grate dry cheese and stuff them with this. Press the two sides together and fasten with wooden skewers. Take enough eggs to cover the peppers well. Beat the yolks and whites separately and then mix them. Put enough lard or oil in the frying pan to cover the peppers. Dip each into the egg, covering well, and then drop into the hot fat, pouring over them more of the egg while the frying peppers are turned. Serve with chili sauce.

Daddy's Bedtime Story—Little Punk-a-do And the Rainbow.

He Loved to Watch the Rainbow.

JACK and Evelyn had been playing "Indian" all day. They had not timed themselves very well, for it was at least half an hour before the time for daddy to get home to tell them his story and they had quite finished. You see, Jack had scalped Evelyn with his tomahawk in a furious battle. So when daddy came he found them sitting on the end of the bed looking very woebegone.

"Why, what's the trouble?" asked daddy. "Aren't you two children good friends? You look so sad and not at all like the very merry pair who usually greet me at night."

"It was this way, daddy," began Evelyn. "You see, we were playing 'Indian,' and Jack scalped me, so, as I was dead, I couldn't speak."

"So I see," said daddy laughingly. "And speaking of Indians reminds me of a visit I made one time to an Indian settlement. It was not far from the ocean, so they had plenty of fish, of which they are very fond. At mealtime they would squat anywhere at all, pull out a lobster or crab which they had hidden in their shawls or aprons, and then they'd eat with great satisfaction. The old Indian men always smoke long clay pipes after the meal is finished, and the little Indian children and the squaws, or mother Indians, with their babies, or papooses, held on their backs in shawls, gather around for the story telling. The Indians love stories, you know. The little Indian girls weave baskets out of straw and string, beads of all kinds and colors, which, when finished, they wind about their necks and wrists. They look very pretty with all the beads lending color to their dark complexions and black hair.

"The old Indian who told the story the time I was there was very interesting looking. He wore big, round gold earrings, and his hair was long.

"He talked between puffs of smoke, and as he talked he watched the clouds of smoke rising from his pipe, and this was his story.

"'In faroff days there lived a little Indian boy named Punk-a-Do, who had always longed to see just what a rainbow was like. He would stay out in a rainstorm so as not to miss a glimpse of any rainbow that might appear.

"'Little Punk-a-Do was without a mother and daddy. One day when a hard rainstorm had ended and it had begun to clear what should Punk-a-Do see but a chariot of a silver cloud hovering over him. A voice from within the cloud said: "Come, little Punk-a-Do; we will make you happy. Come and live with us in the rainbow." Off flew little Punk-a-Do in the chariot. So now, little ones, when you see the rainbow you will know that some of the bright colors are being made by the happiness of little Punk-a-Do, for only happiness and sunshine and brightness can live in the rainbow.'"

Practical Fashion Hints

By Alice Gibson

7267

No. 7267 is a one-piece nightgown to be slipped on over the head. It may be made with a round, square or V neck and may be hand embroidered as illustrated or trimmed with lace.

Cotton crepe in colors is one of the season's novelties for lingerie and is practical as well as attractive. It is soft in finish, launders easily and requires no ironing at all.

One of the economies for lingerie, intended for general wear, is to use linen tape instead of satin ribbons. It is dainty, launders perfectly, where ribbon has to be removed each time the garment is washed or it will get faded and stiff. This comes in all widths, never twists, ties and unties without knotting and will wear as long as the garment.

This gown may be made in size 36 with 3¾ yards of 36 inch material.

The pattern is cut in 4 sizes; 32 to 44.

This Is a Perfect Pattern.

Be sure to state right size, measuring over the fullest part of the bust for dimensions.

It may be obtained by filling out the coupon and enclosing 15 cents in stamps or coin to the Pattern Department of this paper.

MAGIC OF A MAGNET.

Makes a Chain Rigid Enough For a Man to Climb It.

A Berlin correspondent of the Scientific American describes an interesting experiment that was made at the works of one of the large German manufacturing firms with one of their lifting magnets.

A chain, fastened to the ground and carrying an iron ball at its free end, was raised to a vertical position by the approach of the great lifting magnet suspended from a crane.

The attraction of the magnet was so strong that the chain remained in a perfectly vertical position. A grown-up workman climbed up the chain without disturbing its rigidity in the least. The chain seemed to float in air. The magnetic pull on the ball was greater than the gravitational pull on the man.

This remarkable experiment shows the enormous power of attraction exerted by the lifting magnets that are used in iron and steel works to carry about iron material of every description. The magnets enable the operator to seize iron material at any point desired and convey it to any other point within the range of the crane. Incidentally the use of lifting magnets has greatly diminished the risk of accidents in the moving of heavy masses of iron.

Subtle Advertising.

A successful hotel manager pointed to the advertisement of a hotel at a fashionable resort. The advertisement read:

"Special rates to single men."

"The proprietor of that hotel," said he, "deserves to succeed. He lays in his advertisement a subtle trap for mothers with marriageable daughters. They read the advertisement and they conclude that, given lower rates at this hotel, single men will be plentiful. They therefore decide that there is the place undoubtedly to take their daughters."

Then, laughing, he concluded:

"These mothers quite correctly believe that as far as their daughters' chances of matrimony are concerned the more the marryer."—Washington Star.

BLUE EYED BABY GIRLS IN DEMAND

While Boy Waifs Go Begging For Foster Parents.

DEMAND EXCEEDS SUPPLY.

New York Charities Aid Association Swamped With Applications For Flaxen Haired Human Dolls—"Childless Women Want Them to Fuss Over and Bedeck With Ribbons."

Flaxen haired little girls have dimmed the glory of mere boys in popular favor, according to the New York State Charities Aid association. In all New York state and nearby communities it has been impossible to find homes for 100 orphaned boys now in the guardianship of the association.

On the other hand, little girls, especially those having "blue eyes and golden hair," cannot be gathered fast enough to meet the demand.

Elsewhere in the country the same situation exists.

"This discrimination in favor of the girl might be explained," said Miss Mary Vida Clark, acting superintendent of the New York State Charities association, recently, "by the fact that little girls are, I believe, generally considered easier to rear. Moreover, they give women something to dress up in ribbons and laces, something to fuss over—human dolls, so to speak. Then, again, little girls are more companionable. The women who seek to adopt children are generally those who never have had children of their own. They are lonely and want little girls, who become more and more attached companions of their mothers as they grow older, whereas boys branch out into fields and worlds of their own as they are old enough for companionship worthy the name.

Demand For Blue Eyed Baby Girls.

"We have a good many more than fifty children at present in charge, but the demand this year seems to be almost restricted to blue eyed baby girls. We haven't enough to fill all the orders. On the other hand we have more than 100 boys ranging in age from six to fourteen years, and we are almost unable to find homes for any of them. The boy seems to be unpopular, while the little girl grows constantly in favor."

"How about the men who figure in the adoptions?" Miss Clark was asked.

"Men usually like little girls better," she replied. "Fathers generally are fondest of their daughters. Thus, little flaxen haired, sapphire eyed fairies are in demand at both ends of the family.

"The men usually let the women carry on all the negotiations. They stay in the background and shiver and shake until the worst is over. Then they come in and make more fuss than anybody."

Two-year-old Children Favored.

There are numerous interesting facts to be learned from the association, which annually finds homes for about 250 little waifs. Here are some:

The association now has about 150 children awaiting homes.

It is not necessary to adopt a child. Most of them are sent out to permanent homes without legal adoption.

More than 100 of the children waiting are boys.

Under two years old is the popular age for adopting.

Families seeking to adopt or house children must submit to investigation.

Every social caste—or caste of wealth—is represented among the adopting parents. "From street car conductor to the millionaire or the college professor or the minister," as Miss Clark put it.

BRAIN GONE, LIVED A YEAR.

Doctor Had Treated Man a Year For What He Thought Was Slight Wound.

Before the Academy of Sciences in Paris recently Dr. Robinson reported a case in which life was sustained when a great part of the brain had been destroyed.

The case was that of a man sixty-two years old whom he had treated for a year for an apparently slight wound of the occiput.

During this time the patient showed no signs of brain trouble, but the autopsy revealed the presence of an abscess which had reduced the brain tissue to a mere shell.

Pool and Billiards In Schools.

A resolution providing for the installation in school basements of bowling alleys and pool and billiard rooms will be introduced before the new Cleveland (O.) board of education at its first meeting in January. Mrs. Arnold Green, board member, will be sponsor for the resolution.

EGGS USED AS MONEY.

Eggs are becoming so scarce in the mountainous sections of Arkansas that they are being used as a medium of exchange. Not only are they acceptable for payment at grocery stores and mercantile establishments, but at motion picture theaters. One egg admits a minor and two one adult.

14582

Centerpiece in Punched Work.

Punched work is very popular, partly because it is so easy to do and also on account of the beautiful lacy effect, produced by separating the threads of the material with a large sail-needle. These threads are bound tightly together in groups leaving the large holes.

The baskets, in pattern number 14582, should be developed in outline-stitch and punched work, while the flowers and leaves may be carried out in solid work or Italian relief-stitch. This design should be stamped on loosely woven round-thread linen, being careful to have the lines of dots running straight with the threads of the material.

This centerpiece is twenty-two inches in diameter, and the baskets are also appropriate for use on table-runners and pillow covers of white or colored linen or scrim.

This pattern will be supplied to readers of the Daily Press for fifteen cents.

"DACHS" MUST HAVE BEEN BROUGHT UP IN A BARN

IN THE SPORTING SPOTLIGHT

"MAC" SAYS

Everything looks alike to North Plainfield High School on the basketball court. Wonder if there is a better team of basketball players in captivity?

Some have the idea tucked up their sleeves that P. H. S. will be the first team to conquer the boroughites. Strange things have been known to happen.

Captain Hetfield and his men have been unusually successful in escaping publicity thus far. Haven't heard from the locals in a fortnight.

Wonder how the big lay-off will effect the Elks' pinners when they stage the revival meeting with Brunswick tonight?

Just as a little side issue the Brunswick knights have arranged a little banquet to celebrate the comeback occasion.

Bowling would be a great game for some of these ball players who disdain to train.

If Hope Chapel cops that City Championship next Saturday, Jack Martin says he will go to work (meaning baseball) with a determination to squelch Honus Wagner's record.

Jack better see all the title matches he can in Plainfield for he will never see one in "Beantown." Boston never was strong on the championship stuff until the Red Sox copped a pennant and then the occurrence was too great for the citizens to stand as shown by the relapse the team had last season.

Supervisor Batterson's action in donning a basketball suit and playing with a team of "amateurs" in the Plains Parish House Saturday night was a disgrace to the court sport as it is fostered at that place.

Plenty of good amateurs stood on the Parish House sidelines aching for an opportunity to get into the game and yet Batterson (a paid director), donned togs and played a guard position.

What has become of that soccer team that flourished here last season? The Scotchmen had a speedy eleven in 1912-13, but nothing has been heard of it this year.

During the short time the red ball was up for local skaters a number of hockey enthusiasts started the organization of a Plainfield team and if there is any more frozen water some good contests will be staged in the local ponds.

Coach Wardlaw, of the Leal School, is giving his baseball players regular drills in the Y. M. C. A. Wardlaw's plan is to make rather than develop ball players.

If there are many more shifts in that Y. M. C. A. lineup nobody will be able to recognize it. If it wasn't for Glover's old familiar countenance those who watched it last year would be unable to identify it this season.

And furthermore, "Cutey" is plenty big enough to be seen without a microscope.

LOCALS AT BRUNSWICK.

Captain Blatz and his Elk bowlers will go to New Brunswick tonight via special trolley to roll a league series with the antlered tribe of that place. Following the alley contest the Queen City pinners will be the guests of the home team at a vaudeville show and smoker.

PATERSON VS. ORANGE.

The Paterson and Orange bowling teams, of the Elks League, will meet tonight in a scheduled series on the Orange alleys.

LEVINSKY LOSES IN CLEVER BOUT WITH M'ALLISTER

Battling Levinsky, who has been making a show of heavyweights hereabouts, went up against a real clever man last night at the Garden A. C., in Manhattan, in the person of Bob McAllister, the sterling middleweight from California. The result was that Levinsky was outpointed by a goodly margin. His cleverness did not compare with the work that the Westerner put up. The affair went ten rounds and in the latter part Levinsky, appreciating that he was outpointed, resorted to slugging in an effort to win by landing a crushing blow. The rallies were met successfully by McAllister and he emerged an easy winner.

Levinsky's punch was a more dangerous one than the Westerner packed and when he landed he hurt Bob. He had a shade in a couple of rounds, once on ability to land telling blows, and in another instance by reason of McAllister apparently becoming tired and easing up.

WILL CHALLENGE WINNER.

It was announced by a member of the North Plainfield High School basketball team today that the boroughites are preparing to issue a challenge to the winner of the City Championship title on this side of the brook. In the event of the Hope Chapel outfit trimming the Y. M. C. A. aggregation in the second battle next Saturday night, the N. P. H. S. manager will probably issue a challenge to the churchboys immediately, one game to be played in the Hope gym and another in Saengerbund Hall.

TO MANAGE ORIOLES.

Baltimore, Jan. 6.—Otto Knabe, the second baseman of the Phillies, is the latest star to jump to the new Federal League. Late yesterday afternoon the former Quaker accepted terms to manage the Baltimore team, after a conference with the local magnates. His salary was not divulged, but it is believed that Knabe will draw down in the neighborhood of $10,000 a season.

P. H. S. PRACTICE.

Captain Hetfield, of the Plainfield High School basketball team, will put his men through a short practice in the High School gym tonight, in preparation for the game with Morristown High School tomorrow afternoon. Night practice at P. H. S. is an innovation but Captain Hetfield announced it because of the fact that the girls' team has the use of the gym this afternoon.

N. P. H. S. FRESHMEN DECIDE TO PLAY INDEPENDENTLY

Following the close of the North Plainfield High School Inter-Class Basketball League, the management of the Freshmen team, which was a contender in the race, has decided to play independent games for the remainder of the season. This class gets one or two periods every week in Saengerbund Hall and this time will be used to play the home games.

The first game will be played tomorrow afternoon, when the first year men will meet the Marathon A. C., which defeated them earlier in the season. For games with the Freshmen quintet address William Seidel at the High School.

BRUGGY WILL CATCH AGAIN.

Frank Bruggy, left fielder for the Plainfield baseball team during the Central New Jersey League championship race of last season and who played left field the greater part of the season for the Lawrence New England League club, will play behind the bat next season, according to latest arrangements. Before he began his league career Bruggy caught for the Bound Brook baseball team under Charlie Newhouse.

N. P. H. S. RECORD AT STAKE.

North Plainfield High School basketball players are carded to appear on the Passaic High School court tomorrow afternoon. Passaic has one of the strongest schoolboy basketball teams in the State and if the boroughites succeed in trouncing the home team on its large court, North Plainfield is certainly entitled to premier honors in this section of the State for the season.

CAPTAIN HALL INJURED.

Morris Hall, captain of the Scotch Plains Parish House second team, sustained a painful injury to his leg in the game played Saturday night, and as a result he will be out of the lineup for some time to come. Hall's suction sole shoes caused him to trip and in falling he tore several ligaments in his ankle.

BOUT POSTPONED.

The wrestling bout scheduled to be held in the Plainfield High School gymnasium yesterday afternoon between Morris Mann and Guy Snyder, two schoolboy catch-as-catch-can artists, was postponed indefinitely.

BARKS FROM DOGDOM.

The annual meeting of the Plainfield Kennel Club will be held in the Queen City Hotel tomorrow night at 8:30 o'clock. A full attendance of the members is desired.

PROPERLY HEATED BALL BURNS UP GOLF DISTANCES.

Appleton, Wis., Jan. 6.—Lawrence College Professor Lyle Spencer, who is also a golf devotee, has applied his scientific attainments to the problem of how to make a golf ball travel to its greatest possibilities over the frozen snowless ground. Moreover, he has solved the question.

A thermos bottle is carried by an extra caddy and by keeping the golf balls to summer warmth the normal resiliency is preserved and the gutty pellets are pounded in an eighteen hole match to distance never before achieved on the Appleton links. Drives almost equal to the world's record distances have been achieved by this method.

HARRY KIRCH WON FROM BIG FIELD

Mat Coon Second and Velard Third, in Two Standing Broad Jumps.

Harry Kirch, of the Orange team of the Y. M. C. A. boys' department Color League, won the weekly athletic event in the schedule of that organization, last night, copping first place in the two standing broad jumps with a mark of fifteen feet, ten inches. Mat Coon, of the Red team, was second, and C. Velard came in a good third.

TOO MUCH BASKETBALL IN BORO HIGH SCHOOL

Board of Directors of Class League Decides to Call Off Hostilities.

The board of directors of the North Plainfield High School class basketball league has decided to discontinue the league schedule for the rest of the season, owing to lack of interest and conditions. This game is run to the limit in the borough as there are two varsity teams, class teams and girls' teams.

In order to decide the championship of the school, for which purpose the league was organized, the deciding game between the Juniors and Sophomores will be played in Saengerbund Hall this afternoon at 4:15 o'clock. Each of these teams have defeated the Freshmen twice and have lost one game to each other. This puts them on an equal standing, with three victories and one defeat, and the play-off will give the title to the winner.

NORTH PLAINFIELD KENNEL CONTAINS AMERICA'S BEST ENGLISH SETTERS

Fired with the ambition to breed and own the very best strains of English setters in America, Mr. Abraham G. Hooley, a banker and broker of New York city, has at his beautiful home in North Plainfield, more than four hundred massive silver cups, pieces of plate and other trophies won by the many dogs that go to make up his Meadowview Kennels. Although he has devoted the best years of his life—thirty, to be exact—and a fortune to the accomplishment of this end, there is not a dog for sale in the Meadowview Kennels, and, moreover, not more than half a dozen of his beauties have been parted with for cash since he started in to establish his kennels.

In every essential Mr. Hooley is a sportsman with the loftiest ideals as to what constitutes sport. While his dogs have swept everything before them, wherever benched, they also have been equally successful in the field. There is not a dog in the kennels that is not fit and ready to take the field at a moment's notice, and many of them today are being shot over by some of the most celebrated guns now sojourning at the Southern preserves.

The reporter's visit to the Hooley home was made on a Sunday morning when Nature smiled her broadest. The dogs were all out for their airing and in a gale of spirits as their ubiquitous attendant "hied" them on. As we entered the side hallway, in reality a ideally commodious and sumptuously furnished living room, Miss Brightey, a dainty little Pomeranian, gracefully dropped from the window seat and barked her welcome. In a big chair a King Charles spaniel lay curled, his little ingrowing face wrinkling into a "smile" of greeting. On tables, mantels, stands, and here and there and everywhere stood superb examples of the silversmith's art—all trophies won by the Meadowview setters.

"Almost every piece of silver in the room," Mr. Hooley said, "is a prize won by my dogs. The trophies accumulated so rapidly that we stored our older and more valuable pieces in the vault, this you see, for sentimental reasons, being more in keeping with the spirit of my hobby."

In the library, on the second floor, more trophies were to be found, each as handsome and massive as those below stairs, but by ascending to the third floor and entering Mr. Hooley's den one came face to face with hundreds of objects which visibly manifested how really successful this man has been in the various contests he has entered. More than two hundred silver cups stood about on their ebony and finely chased bases, while every inch of hanging space on the walls was adorned with drawing, medallion or portrait of a prize winner. No less than one thousand ribbons and rosettes, championships and reserves filled a huge tray, and in the massive bookcase every volume reposing on its shelves has to do with the dog, and all by the world's recognized authorities.

The son of wealthy parents, Mr. Hooley's liking for dogs had its inception when his father upon his return from a visit to England imported a brace of fine setters. These dogs and their progeny became so renowned that the son determined to devote his leisure to perfecting the Belton strain in this country.

The first dog let out from the enclosure was Meadowview Bob Roy. He is an orange Belton and one of the handsomest dogs of his strain in the world today. He is big of bone and strength and agility are noted in his every move. His high, broad head denotes brains, while his sensitive and finely turned muzzle shows that he has a nose which is infallible when good work on quail, partridge or pheasant is required. Bob Roy is many times a champion—in fact, he might be designated a champion of champions, since he in his thirteen appearances in public swept every ribbon and rosette before him and two years in succession was rated the best dog in the New York show.

"He is as strong as a lion, as lithe as a tiger and as gentle as a lamb," Mr. Hooley said as he bent to stroke the glossy coat of the champion gazing with pleading and lustrous eyes into those of his master.

Bob Roy had no sooner been returned to his pen than the gate opened to permit Meadowview Rock to come forth and take his stand. This superb dog also is a champion of champions. He is a lemon Belton, shown a score of times, twice in New York, and always returned to his kennels with ribbon or trophy to his credit.

Leaping and playing about the pen, barking their eagerness to come forth to be "stood up" and stroked by the master they adore, were a score of others, among them Champion Meadowview Yale, a blue Belton of the purest type. His lines and head are as perfect as those of Bob Roy and Rock and to the eye of the novice an even handsomer dog, inasmuch as his seal, brown eyes are far more expressive and finer than those of lighter shades peculiar to the lemon and orange flecked dogs. The dog which Mr. Hooley lays more store by, however, is Champion Mallwyd Invader. He is an international champion, since he heads the list of all dogs of this strain in England and America.

The bitches occupy separate quarters and there are many rare specimens of the Beltons in their enclosure. The best of these, perhaps, are Wyoming Valley Maybelle and Meadowview Estlen. Both are "queens of the field" and are never really in their element until they are at work. Deodora Bobs and Meadowview Lady Bess also are fine field dogs and all have made excellent records in moor and vale.

When a dog fancier and exhibitor has one of his entries characterized as "the best dog in the show" he has just cause to seek his tailor and have his best buttons set forward a notch or two. Chest inflation is pardonable in such conditions. But when Champion Meadowview Rock, Champion Countess, Champion Meadowview Bob Roy and Champion Meadowview Yale each in turn was singled out by the judges in the respective shows they appeared at and crowned with the "best-dog-in-the-show" laurel wreath it is surprising that their owner didn't visit his hatter and at once order a larger block.

Others in this second pen visited, of which Mr. Hooley is intensely proud, were Lady Mallwyd, Champion Meadowview Beatrice, Meadowview Lady Frances and Champion Meadowview Vassar.

The big pen where the puppies romp was next in order, and these rollicking little rowdies, whose clumsy legs were almost as big as their bodies, were bordering on hysteria when Mr. Hooley and Walter, their guardian, entered the enclosure. There is no puppy as cunning and affectionate as a setter, and when one sees a whole group of them, each with the bluest of blue blood coursing through its veins, he awakens to the realization that the setter after all is the king of sporting dogs.

PRESERVING BRIDGES FROM HEAVY TRUCKS

State Law Provides Weight of Automobiles to Pass Over Bridges and Highways.

Apropos the general discussion of damage resulting to county road bridges through the travel of automobile trucks, and the reported movement to secure legislation to limit the tonnage of vehicles which is being advocated in Middlesex county, there is now a State law covering this matter, being an act to provide for the preservation of highways and bridges of the State.

This act among other things provides that no traction engine, trailer, motor or vehicle, except those exclusively running on rails or tracks, shall be operated upon or over a highway or bridge in this State, nor shall any object be moved over or upon a highway or bridge, upon wheels, rollers or otherwise, except those exclusively running on rails or tracks, in excess of a total weight of 25,000 pounds, this weight including that of the vehicle.

The law prohibits the operation of any vehicle which has flanges, ribs, clamps or other objects, attached to its wheels or made a part thereof which will injure or destroy the surface of the highway or bridge, nor shall any object or contrivance for moving heavy loads the weight of which resting upon the surface exceeds 800 pounds upon any inch in width of the tire, roller, wheel or other object supported upon the surface.

It is further provided by law that no steam traction engine, with or without trailers and no motor truck carrying a weight in excess of 8,000 pounds, including vehicle, shall be operated upon the highway or bridge at a greater speed than twelve miles an hour and an eight mile limit is placed on vehicles carrying a weight in excess of 12,000 pounds, nor greater than ten miles an hour when the vehicle is equipped with tires of other material than metal.

The State Road Commissioner or any county or municipal officer or board can permit the moving of extra heavy loads upon proper application. Such permits may be general or may limit the time and the particular highway or bridge. The authorities can limit the speed of vehicles passing over bridges to six miles an hour, provided notice is posted in a conspicuous place at each end of the bridge.

Violations of the law are punishable by a fine of not less than $10 nor more than $1,000 for each and every offense, said fines to be paid to the commissioner of motor vehicles for use on State highways or bridges when injured or damaged and into treasury of the county or municipality when any highway or bridge is injured which is under the care of such county or municipality. This law has been in effect since April 14, 1913.

THE PLAINFIELD THEATRE

Miss Annie Russel has successfully come forward in the role and capacity of actress-manager. Her own company, of which she is a member, called Annie Russell's Comedy Company, last season completed a brilliant engagement in New York where, at the 39th Street theatre, a repertoire of the classical English comedies has been played with artistic achievement and financial reward. This season, a brief road tour, South, has been arranged and the repertoire is to be Goldsmith's "She Stoops to Conquer" and Sheridan's "The Rivals." The Goldsmith piece will be the bill at the Plainfield theatre, Saturday night. The realization of Miss Russell's long cherished ideal represents her own capital and experience gained through years of faithful service in our theatres—a service that has touched practically and ideally the theatre's best traditions. The undertaking of the present organization was greatly encouraged by a number of New York men and women variously distinguished in artistic, social and public life, who endorsed her plans and generously subscribed to the series of performances. The success of the New York engagement has made it possible for Miss Russell to make the organization permanent, enlarging the repertoire, which later this season will include other classic plays, and, perhaps, some modern ones in harmony with the others now in the repertoire. Miss Russell begins modestly, but earnestly, in the matter of productions. She has aimed not for any stupendous effects, but rather an artistic expression of the period—colorful, quaint and in good taste. Studious consideration has been given to historical accuracy. The company was also selected with a knowledge of the requirements and demands of the old comedies. The cast includes besides Miss Russell, Oswald Yorke, Percival Stevens, Murray Kinnell, Fred W. Permain, Florliott Paget, Johnson Briscoe, Littledale Power, Henrietta Goodwin, Harold Maltzer and others.

LARGER THAN LICK TELESCOPE

Ottawa Observatory Instrument Will Set World Record.

EIGHTEEN MONTHS TO BUILD

Fifty Ton Engine of Science Is to Have a Disk Seventy-three Inches In Diameter—Tube So Big That an Automobile Could Be Driven Through It. A Marvel of Scientific Accuracy.

The Canadian government has awarded a contract to a Cleveland, O., company for the construction of what will be the largest telescope in the world. The new telescope will probably be set up in Ottawa and about eighteen months will be required to manufacture it and place it in position.

A rough idea of its size may be gained from noting that a full sized automobile could be readily driven through the tube. The company that will construct the telescope built the Lick telescope, finished in 1887, the object glass of which is thirty-six inches in diameter, and the Yerkes telescope, finished in 1893, which has a forty inch glass. These were the largest in the world.

"The great reflecting telescopes made by the English and by the French years ago," says Ambrose Swasey, a distinguished scientist, "served their purpose in the science of astronomy, but the development of astronomical photography introduced a new era.

Reflecting Telescopes.

"Progress, particularly in astrophysical and photographic lines, has been greatly advanced by the use of reflecting telescopes and especially by the work done with the sixty inch reflector at the Mount Wilson solar observatory, near Pasadena, Cal.

"Notable results have been obtained by the use of reflecting telescopes in later years, and this has stimulated a great interest in this type of instrument, such as is evidenced by the present contract.

"Even greater impetus will now be given by the action of the Canadian government in acquiring this splendid seventy-two inch instrument, which when finished will be the largest telescope yet constructed.

"This great engine of science, weighing fully fifty tons, resting upon massive piers of concrete, will have a tube thirty feet long and seven feet in diameter, which will weigh ten tons.

Seventy-three Inch Disk.

"At the lower end of the tube will be located the principal speculum, composed of a disk of glass seventy-three inches in diameter, ten inches in thickness and weighing approximately two tons.

"When used as a Cassegranian instrument a secondary convex reflector nineteen inches in diameter will be placed near the upper end of the tube for reflecting the rays back through a hole in the speculum to the great spectroscope attached to the lower end of the tube.

"As a Newtonian instrument a flat mirror will be provided for reflecting the cone of rays at right angles into the photographic apparatus at the upper edge of the tube.

"As a direct vision instrument both secondary mirrors will be removed, and appliances for visual, photographic and spectroscopic work will be attached at the prime focus.

"The tube and the declination and polar axes, with their attachments, weigh thirty-five tons, and so nicely is each part balanced and adjusted that the powerful driving clock revolves this immense weight with such accuracy and uniformity that the spider line in the eyepiece of the pointing telescope attached to the great tube can be kept exactly on the center of the star under observation."

TO FLY OVER SAHARA.

There May Be a French Mail Line by Air Across Great Desert.

The National Aerial league has completed plans for a flight of a flotilla of aeroplanes across the Sahara or Great desert. They will start from Oran, Algeria, and the final landing will be made at Timbuktu, French Sudan, a distance of 1,400 miles. Pyramids of stones will be placed at intervals to mark the route.

If the experiment proves successful the establishment of a regular air mail service will be considered.

Remarkable Progress In Porto Rico, Indicated by Report

WHEN our troops landed in Porto Rico in 1898 that island was practically unknown to the American public, and at that time the most optimistic could not have anticipated the spontaneous development which has actually taken place in the last fifteen years. This development, industrial, educational and otherwise, is shown in an interesting volume issued by the bureau of insular affairs containing the reports of the governor and other officials for the fiscal year 1913.

This report shows that since 1901 the total external commerce of the island has increased some fivefold, in round numbers the exports growing from eight and a half to forty-nine millions, the imports from less than nine to nearly thirty-seven millions, while the balance of trade, adverse in 1901 by a small amount, is now more than twelve millions annually in its favor. The island during the last year imported American merchandise at the rate of more than $100,000 for each working day.

Although sugar amounted to more than half the total exports, or $26,619,158, an increase made possible only by the influx of American capital and machinery, together with the exceptionally favorable underlying conditions, more interest attaches to the fact that Porto Rican coffee, of the excellence of which every native is proud, has shown a proportionately more rapid increase than sugar during the last five years, the exports for 1913 being

STREET SCENE IN SAN JUAN, PORTO RICO.

$8,511,316, an increase of 26 per cent over the preceding year. Proof that the foundation of a diversified agriculture has been laid is found in the increase of oranges, pineapples, grapefruit and other fruit from a total of $109,801 in 1901 to $2,377,762 in 1912 and $3,120,919 last year.

It is stated that in 1898 there was but one building in the islands especially erected for school purposes. The total enrollment in the public schools was but 26,000, and 80 per cent of the entire population was unable to read or write. A million souls with this high percentage of illiteracy were domiciled within 3,600 square miles, a population more dense than that of any part of the United States, except a few manufacturing districts.

Instead of one schoolhouse erected for that purpose, there are today 105 graded school buildings, many of which compare favorably with the better class of school buildings in the cities of the United States, and 264 rural school buildings. The school enrollment has increased to 161,785, and the general percentage of illiteracy has been reduced to 66 per cent.

No less than 190,000 cases of uncinariasis (hookworm) have been treated, from which approximately 60,000 complete cures have been effected. Steady progress is being made in improving the general health, as shown in the decrease in the death rate from 24.02 per thousand during the previous year to 22.35 per thousand.

An improvement in the general appearance and sanitary conditions in most of the municipalities is evident, while the development of public works is apparent in better streets, water supplies, sewer systems, hospitals and otherwise.

The finances of the Porto Rican government are reported to be in excellent shape, and as practically all of the property tax goes to the support of municipal governments and school boards the increase in assessed valuation from less than $80,000,000 in 1905 to $179,271,023 in 1913 has greatly improved the financial condition of the various towns. Besides, the legislature has provided means for municipal loans, so that in addition to the valuable local improvements made in recent years, applications from municipalities for loans for other public works aggregating some four and a half millions are now under consideration.

The public works undertaken by the insular government have resulted in a system of modern highways totaling 1,070 kilometers and in an irrigation system which will make 40,000 acres of semiarid fertile land, among the most productive and dependable in the island.

BIG EATERS GET KIDNEY TROUBLE

Take Salts at First Sign of Bladder Irritation or Backache.

The American men and women must guard constantly against kidney trouble, because we eat too much and all our food is rich. Our blood is filled with uric acid which the kidneys strive to filter out, they weaken from overwork, become sluggish; the eliminative tissues clog and the result is kidney troubles, bladder weakness and a general decline in health.

When your kidneys feel like lumps of lead; your back hurts or the urine is cloudy, full of sediment or you are obliged to seek relief two or three times during the night; if you suffer with sick headache or dizzy, nervous spells, acid stomach, or you have rheumatism when the weather is bad get from your pharmacist about four ounces of Jad Salts; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys will then act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for generations to flush and stimulate clogged kidneys; to neutralize the acids in the urine so it no longer is a source of irritation, thus ending bladder disorders.

Jad Salts is inexpensive; cannot injure, makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water beverage, and belongs in every home, because nobody can make a mistake by having a good kidney flushing any time.—Adv.

HEALTH BOARD'S YEAR REVIEWED

Exhaustive Reports Submitted on What Was Accomplished During 1913.

SUGGESTIONS MADE

How Sanitary Conditions May Be Improved — Expenses Approximately $10,000—Interesting Statistics.

The twenty-fifth annual report of the Plainfield Board of Health, which was presented to the Common Council, Monday night, is voluminous and covers a wide range of work in health department matters. It shows that there was but one death from diphtheria during the past year, and it is regretted that the father of the patient prohibited the use of antitoxin.

Dr. T. S. Davis, the president, in his introductory report, calls attention to the need of an adequate contagious disease hospital, claiming that the ward at the hospital is not adequate for the purpose. Attention is also directed to the need of a system of collection of garbage and ashes, and the condition of Green brook, where it runs through the city is also a cause for adverse comment. Dr. Davis says that a complete revision of the health code is being undertaken with a view to bringing it up-to-date.

The report of the treasurer, S. H. Voorhees, shows the receipts and expenditures for the year to be $9,920.-48.

Randolph Chandler, health inspector, states among other things, "that a matter which has frequently been apparent during the year has been the attempted use of the health department to square personal grudges. This has been heartily condemned. More than one complaint has been traced to a neighberhood feeling against an individual. Another bad practice has been that of complainants refusing to give their names, but, in accordance with a ruling of the Board, all such anonymous complaints are ignored. The course of complaints is considered confidentis except in cases where the complainants are willing to have their names used for purposes of prosecution.

"To recognize the fact that we must be constantly carrying on warfare against the fly pest, and that the chief value of such a campaign is to instruct and to awaken an interest in the public. This year, we will start the active work sooner and profit by some of the mistakes made last year. We are confident, however, that as a 'first effort,' the campaign was a success.

"The condition of our bakeries has been far from satisfactory and only a few have the required State license. A careful inspection was made of them all and copies of our reports sent to the Department of Labor. An inspector was sent out to go over the ground with us, orders were given and after repeated inspections in some cases, gratifying improvements have been achieved.

"The need of one or more public comfort stations has been demonstrated on more than one occasion and the Common Council should again be urged to make the necessary arrangements for the convenience of the floating population.

"Even at this late day we find that old world superstitions among the more ignorant classes cause a useless and serious drawback to the most efficient control of disease. I have in mind one case where a twisted cord of red and black worsted was supposed to so bewilder 'evil spirits' that they could not enter the system of the child. This is only one instance and in a supposedly civilized community.

"During the year there were 301 communicable diseases and 31 deaths. The number of scarlet fever cases was double the number reported the previous year. This increase may be attributed to the fact that ten cases occurred in two families, the disease spreading from one member to the other as the result of an unrecognized case in each family.

"Excellent work is being done in Plainfield through various channels in an attempt to prevent the spread of this disease and to reduce the mortality. The Anti-Tuberculosis League, which has employed a visiting nurse for several years, and this past year, established a clinic, and, in conjunction with the Board of Education, maintains an open-air school for children who are susceptible to tuberculosis; the CharityOrganization Society, the physicians, who give such willing service to the work, and the Board of Heath are all working to this end.

"The establishment of a tuberculosis sanitorium for Union county has helped to solve the question of a place to which to refer many cases which heretofore were a serious problem. The State Sanitorium at Glen Gardner will take only incipient cases, but the county institution is

MISS ELEANOR SPENCER WILL GIVE A RECITAL

It is claimed that Eleanor Spencer, the young American pianist, who appears in the Hartridge School Auditorium, tomorrow night, has been the soloist with nearly every great orchestra in the world. Even since she arrived in the United States a few months ago, there has been a strong request by the leading orchestras in this country for her services. Her recent appearance with the Boston Symphony Orchestra was one of the triumphs of the season. So great an impression did this young American artist make upon Dr. Much, the conductor, that she has been re-engaged to play at a number of the coming symphony recitals.

On Tuesday night, Miss Spencer was the soloist with the Russian Symphony Orchestra, in which she played the famous Rimsky Korsakow piano concerto. Miss Spencer has chosen a popular program, one that should appeal to all students of piano music.

Mr. Reimers is considered the most popular society tenor today. He has sung in all the courts of Europe, and since coming to America, his rectals in the Waldorf-Astoria, St. Regis and many fashionable Fifth avenue homes have been considered among the most notable society events of the season.

ENTERTAINED FRIENDS.

The Misses Edna and Olive Bird entertained a number of their friends at their home on East Front street, last night, where a program of games and music was enjoyed. Those present were the Misses Blanche Derry, Ruth Enander, Gertrude Enanader, Beatrice Tote, Florence Hallard, Sarah Howe, Edna Bird and Oliver Bird and Ralph Seals, Percy Bailey, Lester Duke, Stanley Reese, Charles Cregar, David Clarin, Raymond Tice and Burnett Howe.

BOARD OF TRADE TO HOLD DINNER

Committee Appointed to Arrange for Annual Event on February 23.

OFFICERS RE-ELECTED

President Jeffrey Advocates Annexation of North Plainfield to Union County—Organization Has 142 Members.

Preliminary arrangements for the annual dinner to be held on February 23, and the election of officers occupied the time of the Board of Trade at its meeting held last night in Coward's Hall. The old officers were all re-elected and aside from fixing a date a committee was appointed by President Jeffery to take charge of the dinner arrangements. It will be held in Knights of Columbus Hall, if that place is available, and the price was fixed at $2.50 a plate.

The officers re-elected were: William Jeffery, president; Herman Schwed, vice-president; Prof. A. S. Herr, second vice-president; William L. Saunders, third vice-president; A. E. Force, fourth vice-president; E. M. Laing, treasurer; Lamar Van Syckle, secretary, and Herman Schwed, J. V. E. Vanderhoef, A. S. Herr, Edmund Rushmore and Samuel Rothberg, trustees. The dinner committee will consist of Leslie R. Fort, chairman; William L. Saunders, Samuel Rothberg, Lamar Van Syckel, J. Henry Crane, Edward R. Hardingham, A. E. Force, E. M. Laing and Prof. A. S. Herr.

President Jeffrey briefly reviewed the work of the Board during 1913, and spoke of a number of things which it can turn its attention to in the new year. He condemned the condition of the raceway and Tier's Pond as unhealthy, and said the Board of Health should look into the matter. He spoke of the widening of Madison avenue, and suggested as a solution of the problem that the city purchase the entire Drier property, use what it wants and then sell the rest, and said that in his opinion the whole city should bear the expense of this widening as it opened up a street for the benefit of the general public. He advocated annexation of North Plainfield, saying that he belived that Mayor Stewart favored it down in his heart, and that he "believed and knows that Mayor Clarke approves of it." In the opinion of Mr. Jeffrey there should be a "calm, dignified and slow discussion of taxation."

It was reported that there is a balance of about $70 in the treasury and that the Board has 142 members of whom 118 have paid their 1913 dues. The next meeting will be held on the first Tuesday in February.

Y. M. C. A.'S BANQUET TO BE HELD JAN. 22

William D. Murray and Dr. Isaac J. Lansing Will Be the Speakers.

The annual meeting and banquet of the Young Men's Christian Association will be held at the association building Thursday night, January 22, at 7 o'clock, when directors will be chosen and reports for the year will be presented. After the business there will be an address by the president, William D. Murray and also by Dr. Isaac J. Lansing, of Ridgewood.

Dr. Lansing achieved a national reputation as a specialist in religious and social problems during the Men and Religion campaign of 1912, and he was regarded as the most efficient speaker in the campaign conducted by the Men and Religious Movement. Dr. Lansing's subject will be "The Basis of Business." Secretary Herbert E. Parker is now sending out invitations to the meeting to senior members and contributors.

MRS. PERCY H. STEWART CANCELS SOCIAL FUNCTIONS

Mrs. Percy Hamilton Stewart, of Watchung avenue, who had issued invitations to two "at homes" to be held on January 9 and 23, has been obliged to recall these invitations owing to the death of Daniel F. Ginna, which occurred yesterday afternoon. Mayor and Mrs. Stewart have been occupying the Ginna homestead on Watchung avenue, while their own home is undergoing extensive alterations, and she has cancelled the social functions arranged for the month.

NO CLUE AS YET TO BIG JEWEL BURGLARY

Police and Detectives Fail to Trace $15,000 Loot From Ackerman Home.

The local police and the Pinkerton Detective Agency operatives have been unable to find a clue to lead to the discovery of the thieves who got $15,000 worth of precious gems at the home of former State Senator Ernest R. Ackerman, on West Eighth street, on Saturday night. Police Chief Kiely has sent out thousands of circulars all over the country. These give a description of the diamonds, pearls and other articles of jewelry taken, together with a brief explanation of the circumstances of the burglary.

The work of the finger-print experts has been of no practical value. Supposed finger prints found in the room of Mrs. Ackerman, where the crook worked, were photographed and enlarged, but they proved to be only smudges. Other photographs were taken yesterday, but with the same result failing to be of any use to the police.

The burglary insurance company, which carried the risk on Mr. Ackerman's valuables, are making every possible effort to find the stolen jewels and the burglars, for the company will have to make good the loss of Mr. Ackerman.

TIMPSON BENEFITS BY MOTHER'S WILL

Local Man Bequeathed $20,000 and $50,000 Also Is Placed in Trust for Him.

Mrs. Mary H. Stiger, wife of William E. Stiger and mother of Lewis G. Timpson, of this city, who died on December 6 last, leaving between $75,000 and $100,000, by her will gave $50,000 to her husband in trust for Mr. Timpson, a son by a former marriage, who is to receive the income for life. In addition she bequeathed her son $20,000 outright.

Upon the death of Mr. Timpson, the principal is to be divided for his children. He also receives a life interest in the residence he now occupies on Hillside avenue, which will revert at his death to his children. Mr. Stiger receives all furniture and the residuary estate. A trust created by Mr. Timpson's father is left to him by his mother, who had a life interest in the principal $20,000.

Mrs. Stiger lived in Plainfield for several years, making her home at Truell Inn. She had a New York city residence and it was there where she died in December. She was an aunt to Edward M. and Laurens H. VanBuren, of Central avenue.

Walter S. Gibson Gets Big Legacy by Will of Aunt—Died in New England.

Walson S. Gibson, formerly of Plainfield, where he is well-known, but now assistant chief of the Passaic Fire Department, has just fallen heir to an estate valued at $80,000, through the death of his aunt, Mrs. Annie Gibson, of Newtonville, Mass. News of the "wind-fall" became known yesterday, when Mr. Gibson returned from Newtonville, where he had attended the funeral. Before leaving that place he was informed that his aunt had left him her vast estate. Mr. Gibson's two children, Beatrice and Francis, were also remembered in the will.

Upon his return to Passaic, Mr. Gibson informed his friends that his sudden riches would not change his plans to any extent, that he would stick to his job, which pays him $1,-500 a year. Mr. Gibson has been assistant chief of the Passaic department for several years and is well thought of by his townsmen.

The greater part of the estate left to Mr. Gibson is located at Johnson, Florida, where Mrs. Gibson lived for many years. It is mostly improved and has a growing value. Mr. Gibson was the favorite relative of his aunt.

WEDDED DESPITE THEIR OBJECTION

Miss Taylor Fled From Pitcher, N. Y., to Become Wife of Carlton W. Clark.

CEREMONY ON SUNDAY

North Carolina Man Met Fiancee Here and Knot Was Tied by Rev. Gabriel Reid Maguire—Her Father on New York Sun.

Notwithstanding opposition on the part of her parents, Miss Annie Laurie Taylor came to Plainfield from her home at Pitcher, N. Y., last Saturday, and on Sunday afternoon, was married to Carlton Wesley Clark, son of Mr. and Mrs. Harry R. Clark, of Terrill road, Fanwood. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Gabriel Reid Maguire, of the Park Avenue Baptist church, at the home of the bridegroom's parents, with only the members of the immediate family present to witness the ceremony.

Mr. Clark, who is a graduate of the University of Pennsylvania, is a constructing engineer and has been employed for some time at Salisbury, North Carolina. He recently came to Plainfield with the intention of being married, having written to his fiancee to meet him here. Mr. Clark received word from her that she would be in this city on Saturday.

Meeting a friend here he was accompanied to the health department where the necessary license was obtained, and arrangements were made with Mr. Maguire to perform the ceremony. Shortly after the arrival of the young woman here, Mr. Clark decided that it would be best to inform his bride-to-be parents of the intended marriage and therefore sent them a telegram inviting them to witness the ceremony, explaining that they would wait until the next day, giving them a chance to reach Plainfield. There being no reply the couple went ahead with their plans. After the ceremony, Mr. and Mrs. Clark left for Salisbury, where they will reside. The bridegroom's father is a newspaperman, being on the staff of The New York Sun.

Thomas O'Gorman, who has been employed for several years at police headquarters as driver for the patrol wagon and as general utility man, was appointed a special policeman on New Year's Day by Mayor Percy H. During the incumbency of Mayor G. W. V. Moy he declined to make O'Gorman even a special and no action was taken in the matter last year by Mayor Stewart. The officer is prevented from becoming a regular member of the department on account of his age.

DELAY ANNOUNCING WEDDING CEREMONY

Miss Kathryn Overland Became Mrs. Lewis A. Slater on April 12, 1913.

Miss Kathryn Overland, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Herman Overland, of West Fourth street, and Lewis A. Slater, of Hackettstown, were married on April 12, 1913, the ceremony being performed at New Market by Rev. T. E. Vassar, pastor of the Baptist church, that place. The announcement of the wedding, which was made today, came as a great surprise to the relatives and friends of the couple.

When questioned why the wedding was kept secret so long, Mrs. Slater said today, "Mr. Slater and I just went to the home of Dr. Vassar, after securing a license, and were married; that's all. I knew that if I told my parents of our plans they would want a big wedding and Lewis and I wanted it to be a quiet affair."

The bride, who has been known as Miss Overland, was employed in a laundry at Westfield for several years, and Mr. Slater took a position at the same place. It was a case of "love at first sight," according to the bride, and last April the couple decided to get married. Mr. and Mrs. Slater are now living at 106 Prospect street, Westfield.

Joost, president, was in the chair, yesterday, and she named committees on membership, publicity and finance to aid the committees which have been working since the organization was perfected. Encouraging letters received from various parts of the country showing the progress of the work were read by the president.

Isaac Sperling, pastor of the South Branch Reformed church. The bride wore a gown of white silk, trimmed with lace, and her sister, Miss Mabel Van Camp, who was bridesmaid, was gowned in blue chiffon, trimmed with white fur. Both carried bouquets of roses. Roy Hann acted as best man.

Many relatives and friends witnessed the marriage and enjoyed an elaborate wedding feast following. They came from Atlanta, Ga.; Chicago, New York, Brooklyn, Bridgeport, Trenton, German Valley, Tottenville, this city and the borough. On their return from a honeymoon, the greater part of which will be spent in Washington, D. C., the couple will reside in the borough.

ABRAMS' SUFFERS BIG WATER LOSS

Local Merchant's Shoe Store in New Brunswick Ruined by Water.

TOTAL LOSS $10,000

Biggest Fire in Years Rages for Three Hours With Six Fire Companies Fighting the Flames.—Discovered in Unoccupied Store.

A fire, the origin of which is a mystery, was discovered in the business section of New Brunswick, last night, and before the firemen had extinguished the blaze, after three hours of fighting, damage to the extent of $10,000 was reported by the department head. One of the chief losers is Morris Abrams, of this city, who conducts a shoe establishment next to the burned building. In order to reach the frame structure which was enveloped in flames when the firemen arrived on the scene, it was necessary to run three lines of hose through the Abrams shoe store and although the fire failed to touch the shoe store, the place was flooded from top to bottom when the three lines of hose burst almost simultaneously.

The heavy pressure streams flooded the store and the cashier's desk, which was located directly in front of one of the streams, was floated about the interior like a boat. The stock, consisting of hundreds of boxes of shoes and the fixtures were soaked by water and are a complete loss. Although the New Brunswick fire department places Mr. Abrams' loss at $2,000, the owner claims that it will reach $10,000. He is fully protected by insurance.

The fire was discovered by a passerby in the two-story frame building formerly occupied by Wolfson & Co., the clothiers, and when the firemen reached the scene the interior of the structure resembled a raging furnace. Little could be done to save the doomed building where the fire started and the firemen confined their efforts to checking the flames from spreading to the brick building owned by Abrams and the $300,000 structure on the other side. The latter building, which is almost entirely of frame structure, was separated from the burning store by an alley only six feet wide and the fact that the immense structure did not take fire is considered little more than miraculous by those who witnessed the blaze.

The damage to the building, which includes half a city block, consists only of charred walls on one side and slight water damage. The contents of this place which is used by a hardware firm, included a large store of dynamite and explosives, which if ignited would have resulted in a great catastrophe. It was stated this morning by New Brunswick authorities that had the larger building caught fire the entire center portion of the city would have probably been burned to the ground. The building where the fire originated is a total loss and the damage will reach $8,000. It is one of the landmarks in New Brunswick and will have to be entirely reconstructed. Mr. Abrams' store is one of the recent additions to the town and is of brick construction.

FIRE FIGHTING FORCE LIKELY TO BE INCREASED

Following out the suggestion of Mayor Percy H. Stewart, it is expected that the regular force of the paid fire department will be increased by at least three or four men this year. This will be made necessary by reason of the fact that the city has purchased an automobile fire engine, the delivery of which is expected about February 1.

Among those who have made applications for appointment and who have passed the necessary examination is Arthur Gunther, who it not only likely to be appointed but will probably be assigned as driver for the new engine. He has had experience in driving automobiles, having been employed as a chauffeur for a number of years by the late William Clark, of this city. The appointments are made by the Mayor upon the recommendation of Fire Chief T. O. Doane and the fire and building committee.

MO-JO White Chewing Gum

Talk No. 29

A NEW standard of comparison has been written:—

People now say, "As clean and as white as a MO-JO".

That means the superlative degree in cleanliness and whiteness—without a speck of dirt or adulteration.

MO-JO also means more than this—it means delightful, lasting flavor; something in every way different from any other chewing gum.

Try a MO-JO the next time you want chewing gum. Should the name slip your memory just ask for clean white gum.

BRITISH GROUSE HUNTERS.

No Business Is Allowed to Interfere With Their Sport.

The grouse hunting season in Britain opens on Aug. 12. On that day every Englishman and every Scot who makes any pretension to a standing in society goes gunning for two weeks at least. Nothing is allowed to stand in the way of this annual diversion. For a week or two preceding this outing business is of little consequence. Everything to receive any attention at all must relate in some way to guns and dogs. A year or so ago a New York man had occasion to go to London to meet a British financier to put the finishing touches to a matured business proposition. He arrived a couple of days before the 12th of August. The financier was not in his place of business. "No," said his chief clerk; "he has gone for the grouse shoot. He will not talk business with any one. I do not think he will see you at all, sir."

"But," said the New Yorker, "I have crossed the Atlantic for no other purpose than to see him. This business will not take more than half an hour of his time, and then I'm off for home again."

"I should advise against your going to his home, sir. He would not receive anybody at this time. He will attend to no business."

But the New Yorker thought differently. He went to the country home of the financier. A burly butler met him at the door. To him the New Yorker gave his card. It was promptly returned to him.

"The master," said the butler, "will see no one. He sets out for the grouse shooting tomorrow. He says to call, please, in a fortnight."

And the New Yorker was compelled to remain two weeks longer until the Englishman returned from his hunt, when the business was finished in twenty minutes.—Indianapolis News.

The Seven Wise Men.

The names and characteristic aphorisms of the seven wise men of ancient Greece are as follows: Solon of Athens, "Nothing in excess;" Theles of Miletus, "Suretyship brings ruin;" Pittacus of Mitylene, "Know thine opportunity;" Bias of Priene in Caria, "Too many workers spoil the work;" Chilon of Sparta, "Know thyself;" Cleobulus of Rhodes, "Moderation is the chief good," and Periander of Corinth, "Forethought in all things."

Father's Inconsistency.

Father will splash around in two feet of water and ruin a good suit of clothes to save articles in a stranger's house during a thirty cent fire. But if the pan under the icebox flows over he will go upstairs and wake mother so she can come down and mop it up.—Cincinnati Enquirer.

DANIEL F. GINNA.

Plainfield suffers a genuine loss in the death of Daniel F. Ginna. We say this advisedly for we in common with the residents of this splendid community fully appreciated his worth and his services to the municipality. Following in the footsteps of his distinguished father, Stephen A. Ginna, he served the public as a member of the Common Council and his civic pride and interest were always evident. He was a good public servant and a good citizen, a good father and a good husband. In every resepect he was admirable. Would that all our taxpayers were of the type of this model citiezn who has "crossed the bar" while in the prime of life. This newspaper extends its sympathy not alone to the bereaved family but to the whole community for he did real good while in the flesh.

HEALTH BOARD WORK.

What a great amount of work is done by the Board of Health in the course of a year may be learned by a persusal of the most comprehensive and satisfactory annual report for 1913 submitted to the Common Council on Monday night. Every phase of the work is covered in the detailed account of the year's doings and the document should be instructive to every taxpayer. It shows how well that department spends the share of money alloted to it.

The president, Dr. T. S. Davis, makes his report very brief but much to the point. He makes several recommendations. Chief among these is the familiar one advising that some sanitary system for the collection and disposal of garbage and ashes be inaugurated. Attempts have been made during the last twelve years to solve this problem, but nothing definitely has yet been accomplished. It is not unlikely, however, now that during the coming year the Common Council will take up the matter and bring about some satisfactory results.

Another suggestion of the president is that the city establish a hospital for the treatment of contagious diseases especially for the accommodation of such cases which for some reason cannot be properly cared for at private homes. The contagious ward at Muhlenberg Hospital, it is explained, is not available for the purpose as but one kind of disease can be treated at a time.

The report will soon be issued in pamphlet shape and the taxpayers will then have the opportunity of reading it in its complete form.

PROTECTING THE PUBLIC.

The New York Times has instituted an action against a New York retail dry goods house to recover $10,000 damages which it claims for the alleged insertion of advertising sheets in the folds of that newspaper. That is the most effective way of putting a stop to this unscrupulous practise which is confined to no particular section of the country, but is done wherever dishonest merchants are to be found. It is a fraud on the newspaper and a fraud on the public.

FIT FOR THE JOB.

Friends of Henry Liefke desire to see him appointed assessor for the Fourth ward and it is said to be quite likely that Mayor Stewart will gratify their wish. Mr. Liefke is well equipped for the place. He has a good knowledge of real estate values not only in that ward but throughout the city and moreover as he has retired from active business he could give all the time needed for a faithful and thorough discharge of the duties of the office.

Portrayed in print in his full regimentals as he presents his credentials to the court of Portugal as minister plenipotentiary and envoy extraordinary from the United States, our own "Tom" Birch, of Burlington, the bosom friend and champion of William Jennings Bryan, looks anything but what Thomas Jefferson would call an eighteen carat Democrat.

The Knights of Columbus have accomplished a great and praiseworthy achievement by raising half a million dollars for scholarships at Washington college. But that is but one instance of many things they are doing for their church and for its people.

There wouldn't be any such thing as a quarrel between capital and labor if manufacturers would emulate the example of the proprietor of the Ford Motor Company and share profits with their employes.

Mayor Stewart's tribute to Charles A. Reed for his services as corporation counsel, as mentioned in his annual message, was a well merited one.

A local real estate broker will be the contributing editor for Saturday's issue.

GOVERNOR GLYNN FOR MOST STRICT ECONOMY

(By Telegraph to The Daily Press.)

Albany, Jan. 7.—Governor Glynn's message, presented this afternoon to the New York State Legislature, is practically confined to the subject of finance. He prefaces his discussion of the situation by stating that the Legislature faces requests for $63,000,000 and that the indirect revenues for the coming year are estimated at $41,000,000.

While presenting the situation frankly as to necessities for retrenchment and for increase revenue, Governor Glynn asserts there is no need for pessimism. New York has been spending lavishly but its credit is unimpaired. There is cause for action, but not for alarm.

Governor Glynn suggests how expenses may be reduced and revenues increased.

Part of the funeral service was conducted in German. Vocal selections were rendered by Professor Thoms, Mrs. Dechschel, a sister of Mrs. Thoms, and Mrs. Thorn.

REINE AT PROCTOR'S

Reine will appear at Proctor's on Thursday and for the remainder of the week in his wonderful mystery act, being one of the best in vaudeville. "The Thirteen Girls in Blue," an extraordinary musical comedy act, will be one of the big offerings. This act is exciting, sensational and impressive. The Imperial Four, a quartet of real singers, is another attraction, together with Nelson and Millage, in a rip-roaring comedy skit, "Glass Put In." Hattie Timberg, a versatile, charming singing comedienne, and Odisa, a Japanese handwriting expert, complete the bill with a two-reel feature photo-play.

TWELFTH NIGHT PARTY.

Under the auspices of the young people of the Church of the Heavenly Rest, a Twelfth Night party was held in the Parish House, last night. The affair was arranged by Miss Elizabeth Forster and Miss Alice Forster. The program included the playing of games, singing of popular songs and the serving of refreshments. There were about seventy-five young people present.

IT IS A HABIT NOW TO ROB THIS PLACE

Burglars made their annual visit to the postoffice at Morris Plains, early yesterday and for the twelfth time the general store of D. M. Merchant, which contains the postoffice, was ransacked.

So often has the postoffice been robbed that Mr. Merchant keeps the office safe and the one in his store unlocked. He has signs on them telling of their unlocked condition and also giving the combination in case an employe has carelessly locked the safes without the postmaster's knowledge.

Seven safes in the place have been blown open with nitro-glycerine, so Merchant has evolved a system of handling his money and stamps. The former he banks at Morristown every day and the latter he gets from day to day in the Morristown postoffice.

The burglars yesterday forced open the rear door of the postoffice with tools taken from a blacksmith shop. Nothing was found in the safes but a few cents, but several dollars secreted by Mr. Kelsch, manager of the general store, was discovered in a box of stockings and was taken.

INVADER OF THE TRANSVAAL

The Once Famous Dr. Jameson Made Head of a South African Company.

Sir Leander Starr Jameson, doctor, pioneer, leader of the famous raid which prefaced the Boer war and premier of Cape Colony from 1904 to 1908, has found a fresh field for his energies as head of the Chartered Company of South Africa, which has millions of acres of grazing land that it plans to turn into ranches.

Jameson, as a young doctor, went to South Africa when he was told that his lungs could not stand the climate of England. At Cape Town he became the leading surgeon, and gossip credited him with an income of £10,000 a year. But he gave up his practice to ally himself with the empire builder, Cecil Rhodes. Alone and unarmed, Jameson traveled to the court of the powerful and dreaded Matabele chief, Lobengula, and gained from him concessions which meant enormous wealth for Rhodes' company. He had lived three months in Lobengula's kraal and cured the chief of gout. Subsequently Jameson paid another visit to Lobengula's capital at the head of a punitive expedition which defeated the Matabeles in two battles and added 750,000 square miles to the British possessions.

In 1896 came Jameson's filibustering invasion of the Transvaal, which ended in the capture of the leader, his being sent to England for trial, his sentence to penal servitude and his imprisonment for ten months. He was released after a breakdown in health. His own view of the raid was once given as follows:

"A revolution, to be justified, must be successful. Ours was not. I made a mistake, and I got fifteen months. I deserved fifteen years—for failure."

Jameson entered the Cape parliament in 1900. He was the author of important reforms, especially in the treatment of the Dutch after the Boer war. He was knighted in 1911.

CAMPBELL TO GET B. A. VAIL'S BERTH

Fielder Will Name a Hackensack Man for Circuit Court Judgeship.

There is to be no partisan politics injected into the courts of the State by Governor James F. Fielder. He will not only keep the Supreme Court free from any taint, but he is not going to follow the Republicans in the selecting of Circuit Court judges. Under the Republicans the Circuit Bench was made solidly Republican.

The news that partisanship is to be eliminated is contained in the definite announcement of Governor Fielder yesterday that he would rename Supreme Court Justice Thomas Whitaker Trenchard, of Trenton, for a full term of seven years. At the same time it was made known that the new Governor would rename Circuit Court Judge Frank T. Lloyd, of Camden, for a full term of seven years, and he would appoint Luther A. Campbell, of Hackensack, to succeed Circuit Court Judge Benjamin A. Vail, of Elizabeth.

The announcements came through Governor Taylor, who, at the request of Governor-elect Fielder, named Mr. Campbell ad interim, to serve from the expiration of Judge Vail's term, February 8, to February 20, when the new Governor wil be inaugurated. As Governor, Taylor cannot make an ad interim appointment for terms expiring in the last week of his administration, he made the announcement that it was Governor-elect Fielder's intention to name Trenchard, Lloyd and Campbell so there would not be delay in the administration of the courts.

POLES FOR NEW LIGHTS CONSIDERED TOO HIGH

It having been decided that the new electric light poles from which will be suspended the 350 candle power Tungsten lamps for the business section are too high, the Public Service Corporation will lessen the heighth by several inches. Tonight the icandescent lamps near Park and North avenues will be extinguished for the purpose of seeing how well the new lamp opposite the Frost building illumniates that corner.

The new material for changing the lighting system in the residential section is now on the road and is expected here every day. It will require but a short time to make a change from the present incandescent type to the new 60 candle power Tungstens. In the meantime the work of installing the new lamps in the business section is progressing rapidly.

My kidneys were in bad shape and I became all run down, in fact, was almost a physical wreck. Hearing of Doan's Kidney Pills, I got a supply and they made me feel like a different man. ADMINISTRATION OF RAILWAYS IS BECOMING MORE PRACTICAL

Old Order Is Changing In Railway Management.

From the Ranks Have Risen New Officials.

THE old order is changing in regard to the administration of railroads throughout the United States and is yielding to a new order more in adjustment with the spirit of the times. Individualism and the gratification of personal ambition for empire making are rapidly becoming things of the past in the railroad business.

A few years ago financiers like E. H. Harriman were battling with each other for possession of strategic lines in order to choke a competitor and build up their own power. Today railroad men are coming into authority who are operating their roads with the idea that they will get their reward if they serve the people.

Instead of trying to see how much money they can make with poor service and skillful finance juggling, they are making their money by good management and a study of the needs of the people.

One of the men belonging to the new order is Howard Elliott, chief executive officer of the New York, New Haven and Hartford and New England Transportation lines.

The new railroad men know more about railroads than they do about Wall street. They began down in the ranks and worked up to leadership without favoritism. Howard Elliott was a rodman when he entered the railroad service in 1880. From that time to the present he has been closely identified with the rails and steam whistle. Now, as a president after thirty-three years, there isn't anything about a railroad that his subordinates can tell him.

After years of hard work the Vanderbilts found it easier to let others manage their affairs, and, as a result, a live executive like W. C. Brown came to the helm of the New York Central, and he instituted a new era in the life of that road.

Brown rose from the ranks and was vice president and general manager of the Lake Shore and Michigan Southern railroad when he was selected as president of the New York Central. He brought with him Alfred H. Smith, who had served as general superintendent of the Lake Shore. Just recently Brown retired and Smith succeeded him as president of the New York Central.

Smith started in railroad service at the bottom, first as a messenger boy, then as a workman on a construction gang. He is another of the practical railroad men who are taking the control of American railroads from the Wall street financiers. Most of the great systems have embraced the worker and the hustler. The way to the presidency of a railroad formerly led through Wall street; now it leads through the construction gang, overalls and practical experience.

One of the railroads that has shown the effect of the dawn of the new era is the Southern Pacific, with its allied lines. When Harriman was still alive he maintained his offices in New York and from there manipulated his railroads in a mighty battle with James J. Hill of the Northern Pacific lines.

Harriman was not a railroad builder. Railroads to him were so many stocks on the market and so many lines on the map. Others built the roads. He acquired them in Wall street. He bought them because he was able to buy when others had to sell. He had imagination and could picture red line upon red line on a map of the United States, showing the ever growing Harriman system.

Then he died, and the heirs and other stockholders put in new men to take his place. Men were chosen from the railroad's own territory to take up the management. In Portland, Ore., J. D. Farrell was placed in charge of the Oregon Short Line. In Omaha A. L. Mohler took charge of the Union Pacific. In Houston, Tex., W. B. Scott was chosen chief of the Harriman lines. E. Randolph was given a chance to run the Southern Pacific of Mexico, operating from Tucson, Ariz. At San Francisco William Sproulle controls the Southern Pacific. Still greater directing heads bind the lines together, but the individual sections are operated from the territory the railroad serves and for the people it serves.

Family ties formerly played an important part in keeping incompetent men at the head of great railroads. They cut little figure now. Ability counts. Every new head of the Harriman lines is a man who has come from the ranks. Some learned their railroad alphabet throwing switches and ticking telegraph keys. Some learned it throwing coal into a firebox.

Mohler started as a rate clerk on the Northwestern. Sproulle was a traffic man under the old Southern Pacific regime and was later chief of transportation for the Guggenheim interests. He came to his present position from the presidency of the Wells-Fargo Express company.

When B. F. Bush became head of the Missouri Pacific the road had been deteriorating for years.

Up to a few years ago Bush was practically unknown in the railroad world, but his wonderful ability as a railroad man was soon discovered and his advancement was fast. Few men have risen as rapidly as he has. The first position he held in the railroad world was rodman on the Northern Pacific. After a few years he became identified with coal companies and soon became an authority on fuel. He was thus thoroughly equipped for his first position in the Gould system, which was as fuel agent. When George Gould bought the Western Maryland Bush was elected president of that road. After his executive ability had placed this road on a good earning basis he was placed in charge of the Missouri Pacific, where his excellent administration is being felt.

Another man who has learned the railroad business from the ground up, is Carl R. Gray, who started as a telegraph operator, and is now the president of the Hill interests.

A conspicuous example of the change from the rule of finance to that of railroad experience is shown in the new management of the Seaboard Air Line in the election of William J. Harahan to its presidency. He is a born railroad man, and the story is told of him that he learned his alphabet from a time table.

The rise of the new men to the leadership of the railroads is due to the attitude toward the road and toward the public. They consider themselves trustees of public property and conduct their business accordingly. Opposed to the aims of personal greed and ambition, this financial [illegible] take the part of a man [illegible] railroad, and they [illegible]

The Superiority of

The Pianola

Does not Mean a Higher Price

The Stroud Pianola
Price, $550
Low Monthly Payments

LET there be no misunderstanding regarding the price of the Pianola.

This instrument, notwithstanding its recognized supremacy, costs no more than must be paid elsewhere for a reliable player-piano.

The Aeolian Company, manufacturers of the Pianola, are the largest manufacturers of musical instruments in the world. The magnitude of this Company's building operations, and its enormous sales, enable it to build more economically and sell closer than any other house in the music industry.

Because it does both, because it gives greater actual value, dollar for dollar, in its instruments than can be obtained from any other source, this Company has achieved its unparalleled success.

This must be so. The superior quality of the Pianola is everywhere conceded, but quality alone is not enough. Quality may always be obtained at a price, and in all industries there are houses recognized for the quality of their goods, but seldom the largest houses of their kind.

Only when pre-eminent quality is coupled with an actual and recognized economy is there a phenomenal public response. No house in the music industry has ever had such a growth as the Aeolian Company. In America and every civilized country of the world its branches are the leading music stores.

Its success is no secret. To the intelligent purchaser it means but one thing—the Pianola is not only the supreme instrument of its kind upon the market, but represents the truest economy as well.

The Victor

The Victor Salon, at Aeolian Hall, is one of the largest and most completely appointed Victor stores in the world. Aeolian service insures Victor satisfaction. Victrolas from $15. Weekly or monthly payments if desired.

It is well to remember that player-pianos, so-called, are not Pianolas. The Pianola is made exclusively by The Aeolian Company, and is obtainable in the following models only—

The Steinway Pianola
The Steck Pianola The Wheelock Pianola
The Stuyvesant Pianola The Stroud Pianola

LEARNING A LANGUAGE.

It Is an Easier Task the Younger It Is Taken In Hand.

The time to learn a language is when you are young, the younger the better. We learn our own language as children. The older we grow the harder it is, because it means not merely learning by heart a great many words, not merely training the palate and tongue to produce different sounds, but adopting a new attitude of mind.

Nothing definite has been discovered as to the localization of faculties in the brain, therefore nothing certain is known, but it has always seemed to me and to others whom I have consulted that when you learn a new language you are exercising and developing a new piece of brain.

When you know several languages and change from one to another you seem definitely to change the piece of brain which actuates your tongue. You switch off one center and switch on to another.

You will always notice in yourself and others that there is a definite pause when the change of language is made. Now it becomes every year more difficult to awaken an unused part of the brain and bring it into active use, and to begin at twenty-three is late.—Atlantic

DRAIN OUT BLOOD, PURIFY, PUT BACK

Surgeons of Johns Hopkins Perform Marvelous Feat.

HEART ACTION UNDISTURBED

Every Drop of Fluid Removed From Body of a Dog and Run Through Fifty Foot Coil of Tubes—Mysterious Force, Not Weight or Convolutions, Gives Brain Power, Says Dr. Mellus.

Three doctors from Johns Hopkins university of Baltimore, by actual demonstration on a living animal, showed members of the Federation of American Societies For Experimental Biology, in session in Philadelphia, that it was possible to remove every drop of blood from a living animal, clean the blood of its impurities and return it to the animal without interrupting the heart beats.

The demonstration was made on a dog. The demonstrators were Professor J. J. Abel and two of his colleagues, Dr. L. G. Rountree and Dr. B. B. Turner, all of Johns Hopkins. In their experiment they had every drop of blood out of the dog's body and coursing through a coil of tubes whose connected length measured nearly fifty feet.

Onlookers Amazed.

Scientists who watched the demonstration in wonder saw the entire circulation of an animal going on in glass tubes outside the animal's body and blood propelled through the tubes by the action of the dog's heart, which never stopped beating while they watched it.

At the same time, by the use of a salt solution, through which the blood was coursing, the animal's blood was being purified of sugar, urea and all diffusable materials. By varying the solution and sending the blood through chemicals of different sorts, other kinds of poisons can be removed from the blood by the same process.

Professor Abel and his colleagues would venture no prediction as to a practical application of their method.

Scientists who witnessed the demonstration, however, did not conceal their enthusiasm over the channel of opportunity opened up by the Baltimore men.

"If this method of diffusion removes urea from the blood," said one, "it can be used as a cure for uraemia. By varying the chemical the same process can be used to remove acetone from the blood, the poison associated with nephritis."

May Remove Bichloride.

Dr. W. Salant, head of the federal public health service at Washington, made this comment:

"This apparatus is positively the newest thing for cleansing the blood. It is the most interesting thing in this convention. It may be possible, though I have not tested this machine, to remove bichloride of mercury from the blood."

Dr. A. J. Carlson of the University of Chicago demonstrated on himself the efficiency of a hunger testing machine, which is his own invention.

Dr. Carlson defined hunger as a sensation which arises in the stomach, while appetite, he explained, is a nervous phenomenon of the brain. He swallowed a small cigar shaped rubber balloon which had been fitted with long rubber tubes, inflated the balloon in his stomach through the tubes and then attached the latter to sensitized paper.

Hunger, he said, caused the muscles of the stomach to grip the balloon and drive out the air which registered the amount of hunger on the sensitized paper.

Upsets Old Brain Theories.

In a recent paper read before the American Physiological society of the University of Pennsylvania by Dr. E. Linden Mellus of Johns Hopkins university he contradicted the theory accepted by many scientists that the intellectual prowess of human beings depends to a large extent on the convolutions and size of the brain. His announcement was assumed to have opened up an entirely new field for scientific research.

"The theory that the weight of a brain has anything to do with its efficiency," Dr. Mellus said, "was of course exploded long ago. The later theory, generally accepted, that intricate convolutions were a sign of brain power or efficiency seems based rather on the desire for anatomic explanation than on any procurable facts. I have investigated countless brains of all classes of individuals, and I have yet to meet with anything that would bear out this theory."

The results of investigations, said the physician, convinced him that some mysterious force not yet found or defined and as strange as the nerve impulse itself animated the brain cells, changed their formation and their relations and thus made for or against mental efficiency regardless of the size, weight or outward appearance of the brain itself.

"DON'T whine about your lack of opportunity. There are opportunities for everyone who is able to convince the world by his industry that he is worthy of success."

—Abraham Lincoln.

Suppose you're out of a job. Want work, don't you? Anything, so it's honest. But you don't know just where to turn to get it, do you?

You can apply for it from door to door or from office to office. That takes time and energy, and the chances are you won't even be listened to.

But you'll be listened to in the "Situations Wanted" column of this newspaper. Not by one man or one firm at a time. Hundreds of business men—employers—read the Classified columns. Your ad. in those columns, properly written, is sure of somebody's attention.

Just try it. Write a little Want ad stating your qualifications. Your application for a position—for that's what the ad. will be—will go before a large audience of employers. You could not possibly reach that audience as inexpensively or as effectively any other way.

And perhaps YOUR opportunity is waiting for you in the Classified columns.

TREASURER'S REPORT OF THE CITY OF PLAINFIELD FOR 1911.

REGARDING TAXES.

Why There is An Increase in the Rate This Year.

Mayor Stewart has issued a statement which explains the increase in the tax rate for this year. The statement is as follows.

The city has various sources of revenue.

First—Direct taxation on real and personal property, and

Second—Receipts from licenses of various kinds, franchise taxes paid by public corporations, taxes received from steam railroads, fines collected for violations of ordinances, poll-tax and the like.

For the purposes of comparison of the amount of money coming into the city treasury and paid out during the fiscal year 1912 and the fiscal year 1913, the following figures will serve:

Year	Amount of Direct Tax Levy	Other Sources	Total
1913	$523,772	$45,500 (estimated)	$569,322
1912	443,897	43,039	486,936

Excess receipts 1913 over 1912 ..... $ 82,386

Now, what is the reason for this increase, who is responsible for it, and what becomes of it?

Certain items which go to make up the total tax budget are, under the laws governing tax matters, fixed by order of State and county authorities beyond any control of the city government. Other items pertain to the public schools, which are governed by State laws and which the city is compelled to support. Still other items, such as the payment of principal and interest on bonds issued in previous years, are entirely beyond any control by the present city government.

The increase in receipts for 1913 over 1912, as shown above, is $82,386.

Of this amount the following items fall within the obligatory class above described:

Increase in 1913 over 1912 in items beyond control of city government:

State school and county tax	$30,092
Public district school	12,503
Principal on school bonds	2,000
Interest on school bonds	7,015
Public Library	1,000
Increase cost of sewer maintenance	3,000
Police salaries, automatically increased by law, about	3,500
Brick pavement bonds	500
Interest on sewer bonds	2,155
Total	$61,765
Leaving out of total increase the balance for the expenditure of which the city government is responsible	$20,621

Now, what was the reason for this increase and what was the purpose of which it was expended?

The general public demanded that our street pavements should be improved and maintained in better condition and this necessitated an increased expenditure of about seven thousand dollars. A new fire engine was absolutely essential for the protection of our property and lives, and an increase of six thousand dollars for fire department purposes was unavoidable. Additional street lamps are constantly required as the city grows, and these increase the expense for street lights. As new tracts are opened and built up, extensions to macadamized portions of our streets are necessary, and while the property owners bear the larger portion of this expense, still the city's share is in the aggregate a considerable sum, increasing in 1913 several thousand dollars over 1912.

We are all proud of our city and desirous that it shall grow and prosper. We want better schools, better streets, better lights, increased police and fire protection, better protection for the public health, recreation centers, dental clinics, social center facilities, and other advantages enjoyed in other cities.

BUT—All these advantages cost money and must be paid for by the taxpayer. The cost of each may be small, but the agregate is not small and always appears in the tax bill.

It thus appears that out of a total increase in the amount of taxes, of in round figures $82,000, your city government is responsible for less than one-third.

In my judgment this one-third has been expended by your city authorities with wisdom and economy, and in no case has any increase been made except where absolutely required, or in response to well defined public demand.

PERCY H. STEWART, Mayor.

"Farming," Waiver, Discipline and Spring Training Injustices Are Remedied — Commission Grants Eleven Out of Sixteen Requests.

Peace, good will and harmony was the watchword at the long expected conference between the Baseball Players' Fraternity and the powers of organized baseball yesterday.

The National Commission and the National Association agreed to grant eleven of the seventeen requests of the fraternity and to take the other six under consideration with a probable suggested revision of the wording.

The most important request granted was that a ball player, after he had served ten years in the major leagues, will be given his unconditional release if no team in the majors desires his services.

The commission also granted a request which provides that every major league park shall be equipped with a blank wall, painted green, placed in centre field, in line with the pitchers' box and home plate of sufficient size to afford a background for a pitched ball. Dave Fultz, president of the Fraternity, who acted as spokesman for the ball players committee which met the commission in open session, said a background was wanting because injuries resulted when advertising signs and fans in the bleacher seats made it hard for the batter to see a pitched ball.

The commission agreed to grant requests providing that when a player is fined and suspended he shall be given written notice stating the amount of the fine, duration of suspension and the reasons therefore.

Besides the important requests granted, other demands were disposed of, as follows: The demand concerning the ten-day release clause was discussed at length and set aside for a later decision. The question of releases was also one of considerable discussion. The fraternity demanded that ten days' extra pay be granted to released players, and M. H. Sexton, speaking for the minors, stated that the class A leagues were heartily in favor of meeting this demand, but that the little leagues could not possibly live and grant the request. This section was also held for future discussion.

The commission granted the request pertaining to "farming out" of players. This means that players will not be "farmed out" at a reduced salary, and that contract figures will remain the same as at the original signing of the contract. This is considered quite a victory for the ball players.

It was granted that written notices should be sent to players when waivers have been asked on them. The players also won their fight concerning the formal and explicit notification as to transfer or releases. The demand as to "side agreements" was mutually accepted, and the clause asking that club owners furnish two sets of uniforms free of cost to players was also allowed.

Among the other demands allowed were the following: As to clubs paying players' expenses from home to training camps, as to contracts after forty-five days' probationary work, as to discrimination against Fraternity men, as to inter-league waivers.

The demand that after a request had been made for a waiver that said waiver could not be withdrawn caused considerable argument. Herrmann was against allowing such a demand and declared it was "not admissible." He was in favor of clubs abusing the privilege being fined, however, the player injured to get one-half of the amount of the fine.

It is likely that another meeting will be held to prepare the revised agreement which both sides are expected to accept.

Among those vitally interested in this action is Jack Martin, the local ball player who will shortly leave for Boston where he will club with the Braves. Martin is a member of the Players' Fraternity and has been watching with interest each movement of the organization. Eugene Lidgate, of Fanwood, will also become a member of the Fraternity at the opening of the coming season.

Queries, Comment and Answers

Sporting Editor:

Query—In what year were New York and Brooklyn consolidated and called "Greater New York?"—N. B.

Answer—In 1898.

Sporting Editor:

Query—What is a $30 note of 1778 worth?—H. T.

Answer—Your $30 note of the year 1778 can be had on the market for twenty cents or a quarter, in good condition; which means that you could hardly sell it for half that amount to dealers who needs must make a profit on the deal and may have to wait a mighty long time to make it.

Sporting Editor:

Query—My friend and I had an argument about sending cattle over to England or to Scotland; he says they send them from Philadelphia. I say they don't. I said they send them from New York. Which of us is right?—B. D. L.

Answer—There are three companies whose steamers ply between Philadelphia and London and Philadelphia and Glascow; in all ten vessels. Each of these carries cattle, and some of them also carry passengers. They sail two or three times every week.

Sporting Editor:

Query—What are the annual membership fees to the New York Athletic Club?—B. F. L.

Answer—A full fledged member pays $100 a year. This was recently reduced from $200.

GREAT COURT GAME AT PLAINS TONIGHT

St. Jame's Triangles, of Jersey City, to Appear on the Parish House Court.

Appearing for the first time in this section of the State, the St. James' Triangles, a basketball team entered in the Hudson River League, will play the Scotch Plains Parish House team on the latter's court tonight. The Triangles, hailing from Brooklyn, are considered one of the fastest combinations of court stars doing business in New Jersey and have several notable victories to their credit hung up at the expense of Metropolitan aggregations.

The fact that the visiting aggregation plays professional rules will add to the interest of the conflict as the Parish House boys will probably allow these regulations to predominate one half. The "Pro" regulations will give the followers of the sport some thrills that are rarely seen on courts in this section and the contest will probably be one of the best of the season at the Plains.

Captain Ricketts, of the Parish House five, will put his regulars against the visiting crew and hopes by playing defensive basketball to hold the score down to a low ebb and beat the visiting crew by a fast finish.

GLOVER ELECTED TO CAPTAIN TEAM

Veteran Member of Association Five Assumes New Duties at Once.

Myrton Glover, guard on the Y. M. C. A. basketball team, was chosen to succeed Albert Brynairski as captain of the aggregation at a meeting of the team held in the Association last night. Glover has been a member of the team since it was originally organized by Thomas Whitaker and on several occasions has acted as captain in the absence of the leader.

Glover assumed his new duties at once taking charge of the practice last night. He has been acting as captain since Brynairski resigned two weeks ago.

For the First Time This Season the Last Place Holders Take Two in a Row.

Orange bowlers, who are holding last place in the Elks' League, did their best work of the season last night on their home drives and succeeded in capturing two games out of three from the Paterson team. In the final deciding game the Orange bowlers were there for a total of 968, finishing 120 pins ahead. Orange started with 887, and this was enough to win by eighty-three pins. In the next game the home five dropped to 796, and lost by forty-five pins. Keaster was high for Orange with 233.

SCOUTS PLAN TO ORGANIZE LEAGUE

Basketball Enthusiasts in That Organization Active in Stirring Things up.

A movement has been started in Dunellen to effect the organization of a Boy Scout Basketball League to include the patrols of Plainfield, Dunellen and Scotch Plains, and the Dunellen basket tossers are planning to call a meeting in the near future when the subject of combining into an organization and drawing up a championship schedule will be discussed.

In the Scotch Plains Parish House the Scouts play basketball three or four times a week and the Dunellen players also practice frequently on the Dunellen court. In Plainfield there are numerous Scout patrols and it would be a comparatively easy matter to form a number of strong quintets to enter in the league.

Those interested in Scout work locally are willing to lend their aid in the formation of such a league and something definite will be decided upon during the coming week.

WITH THE BOXERS

Champion Johnny Coulon is to meet Young Sinnet, the Rock Island bantam, in Milwaukee this month.

Battling Levinsky and "Porky" Flynn will clash at Tom O'Rourke's club in New York on January 13.

During the past year the State of New York received $45,000 as its 5 per cent share of the receipts of the fight clubs.

Manager Jimmy Dime contemplates a trip to France, where he will try to match George Chip against Georges Carpentier.

Eddie Johnson of Denver, who has been boxing as a lightweight, has outgrown the division and joined the welterweights.

The four-flush stuff recently staged in Paris by the two Johnsons, Jack and Jim, came very near putting the boxing game on the fritz in the gay capital.

Where is Joe Eagan the New England lightweight? Joe's disappearance right after his defeat at the hands of Gilbert Gallant has caused his friends some anxiety.

It is said that Jim Driscoll, the former featherweight champion of England, cleaned up about $50,000 on the English race tracks during the past summer.

"Kid" McCoy is in Nice, France, where he hopes to arrange a clash with Georges Carpentier. McCoy was a wonder in his day, but it's a fat chance he has at the age of 41 to defeat the France champ.

COMMITTEE OF PLAYERS TO PURCHASE SWEATERS

Members of the Holy Cross football team held a meeting last night for the purpose of completing arrangements for the purchase of "rough-neck" sweaters which will be presented to the individual members of the eleven.

A committee composed of John Caulfield, Jack Ricketts, Jesse Mulford, Jack Fritts and William Coyle was selected to take charge of the matter and the gifts will probably be distributed during the coming week.

FULL QUOTA OF Y. M. C. A. PREPARE FOR HOPE GAME

A full quota of the members of the Y. M. C. A. basketball team was on hand for the mid-week practice in the Association "gym" last night and a stiff drill was run off in preparation for the second game to decide the City Championship in the Hope Chapel "gym" next Saturday night. Signal practice, passing and shooting constituted the bill-of-fare and a practice scrimmage with the second team wound up the evening's work.

Those present at the drill were Glover, Farmer, Moulton, Gavett and Townley. Another session has been ordered by Captain Glover for Thursday night.

BASEBALL NOTES

"Big Ed" Konetchy, the Pittsburgh first sacker, says he has two brothers who could "beat him all hollow" as ballplayers, only they fight shy of city life.

Luther H. ("Dummy") Taylor, the former Giant flinger, wants to be an umpire in the Central league. He says that he can conduct a game with signs so that players and spectators will understand.

Manager Miller Huggins is keen to land pitcher "Lefty" Tyler of the braves. With Sallee, Robinson and Tyler the Cardinals would have a trio of southpaws capable of holding the big stickers.

In the few years that Dan Howley has been in baseball he has played with Indianapolis, Grand Rapids, Utica, Cleveland, Portland, Ore., Philadelphia and Montreal. Next season [illegible] Oakland, Cal.

It is reported in Chicago that President Murphy of the Cubs has placed outfielder Frank Schulte on the market. Two years ago Schulte was presented with an automobile for being the most valuable player in the National league.

Guess those kids in the little red school house in Euclid township didn't enjoy themselves christmas. Acting as their Santa Claus was none other than the great Napoleon Lajoie, and the ever graceful Larry was some Kris Kingle, too.

N. P. H. S. SOPHS SHOW GOOD SPORTSMANSHIP

Because of the illness of one of the players on the Junior Class basketball team, the game between the Juniors and Sophomores, of the North Plainfield High School Interclass League, which was to be played yesterday afternoon in Saengerbund Hall, has been indefinitely postponed. This game is for the championship of the school and the Sophs willingly agreed to wait until their opponents could present their strongest lineup.

Hoyt Tomkinson is on the sick list and as he is one of the main point getters for the Juniors his presence will be needed. He will undoubtedly be back in school next week and the game will probably be played the latter part of the week.

N. P. H. S. GIRLS OUT FOR TO MAKE IT FIVE AND FOUR

After a recess of over three weeks the North Plainfield High School girls' basketball team will go to Cranford tomorrow afternoon and play the girls of that place for the second time this season.

The first meeting resulted in a victory for the boroughites and they are out after a second scrap. So far the team has won four and lost four games.

IF YOU HEED THESE DONT'S YOU WILL SOME DAY BE A PINNER.

Here are some "dont's" for those who are hurling the balls down the alleys:

Don't try to learn in a day.

Don't use too much speed at first.

Don't grip the ball too tight.

Don't loft the ball.

Don't play the sideball until you have mastered the centre delivery.

Don't swing the ball but once before delivering it.

Don't start with a jump; walk one and two steps.

Don't deliver the ball with the right foot in front.

Don't step on or over the foul line.

Don't think you can change the course of the ball after it has left your hand.

Don't expect a "strike" every time you hit the head pin.

Don't blame the pin boys if you get a split.

Don't throw away a "spare" because you think you are entitled to a "strike."

Don't think the other fellow has all the luck. Plug away; things will change.

Don't bend your back when delivering the ball. With your feet far apart and knees bent you can start the ball with little or no sound.

P. H. S. PRACTICE.

The first night practice held in the Plainfield High School gymnasium was conducted last night by Captain Andrew Hetfield, who put his men through a stiff drill in preparation for the game this afternoon with Morristown.

One Way to Keep Warm.

Most of us think that the question of keeping warm is a matter of putting on warm clothes and living in warm houses. We forget the heating qualities of food. As a matter of fact, there are certain dishes that are as good as a fur coat in keeping away chills that come on the cold days of winter. On a damp, cold day when you must be out try having a lunch of pea soup, made as follows:

Pea Soup.

Pick over two cupfuls of split peas and soak them in cold water over night. In the morning pour off the water and put the peas, with four quarts of cold water and half a pound of salt pork, over the fire. Simmer gently for six hours and then add an onion and some pepper and celery salt. Simmer an hour longer and strain. When it is done it should be evenly thick. If it is too thick add more water. When you desire to serve the soup, presumably at lunch the next day, heat it, add a tablespoonful of flour creamed with the same amount of butter, and cook slowly for half an hour.

Lentils.

Other dishes have great staying power and keep off the fatigue produced by cold and exertion and hunger to a remarkable degree.

The Hindoos have, from time out of mind, had an idea that lentils possessed a wonderful staying power. They were actually superstitious about it and always fed upon lentils before going out on a long journey. They even fed their beasts of burden lentil meal before undertaking a trying journey. And the Hindoos were right, too, for science has proved that lentils in various forms have a remarkable quality of sustaining strength and satisfying the cravings of the stomach.

Baked lentils are good. To prepare them soak a quart of them in cold water over night. In the morning put them over the fire in two quarts of fresh, cold water. When they reach the boiling point remove them from the water—they will rise to the top of the water—and put them in a bean pot or other earthen dish. Chop six ounces of salt pork and a small onion and put this in the center of the dish. Pour over all a quart of water, seasoned with salt and pepper. Bake in a slow oven for five hours. Keep the lentils moist all the time, adding water as it is necessary.

Other Heating Foods.

Hot cocoa or chocolate is a good cold weather food. Baked potatoes or potatoes in any other form are good. Bacon at breakfast is quite suitable for cold weather diets, and fat bacon added to fish increases its value as a cold weather dish.

Some Cookery Suggestions

CURRIED VEGETABLES.

CURRY powder may be used successfully in the cooking of vegetables. Although curried vegetables are less well known than curried meats, they are excellent. Palatable dishes may be made by currying cabbage, cauliflower, beans, spinach, green peas, vegetable marrow. The vegetables may be cooked separately or two or three of them together.

One way to curry vegetables is to cut them into shreds and fry in hot butter in which curry powder has been stirred. They are then lightly browned and covered with cream, milk or gravy.

Nutritious Viands.

Curried Tomatoes.—Cut half an onion very small and grate an apple with it. Then add a dessertspoonful of curry powder and a gill of thick gravy. Stir all the ingredients together and allow them to simmer for a few minutes. Add tomatoes as required and simmer slowly till cooled. Just before serving squeeze in a little lemon juice. Place the tomatoes on a hot dish, thicken the gravy and serve with them.

An East Indian Recipe.

Curried Potatoes.—Cut two large potatoes in cubes about an inch square, place in saucepan with one tablespoonful of melted butter. Season with salt, cayenne pepper and one teaspoonful of curry powder. Stir thoroughly. Then add one pint of hot water. Let cook till potatoes are well done, but not mushy. Leave enough liquid to form a gravy when they are served. If you like a milk sauce the way to make it is to put one-eighth of a cupful of milk in a bowl, add one-half of a cupful of cold water and blend in two tablespoonfuls of flour. Pour this over the potatoes and cook till quantity of liquid is reduced about one-half.

A Tempting Combination.

Curry of Mixed Vegetables.—Take three onions, half a dozen carrots, potatoes, a cupful of beans, a small vegetable marrow, cauliflower or any vegetables in season and also an apple. Cut all into even sized pieces. Fry these in a saucepan or casserole dish with some good beef dripping or butter. Add enough stock to cover them and stew until tender. Prepare a curry sauce by mixing a teaspoonful of curry powder, a teaspoonful of chutney and a teaspoonful of flour together and add to the saucepan. Allow the vegetables to simmer very gently in this for twenty minutes. Serve hot with a border of carefully boiled rice.

Daddy's Bedtime Story—The Race Between the Secretary Birds.

Mongo Got Quite a Bit Ahead.

"THE secretary birds had planned to have some field races," began daddy, "and the afternoon of the races had come. You know, the secretary birds have very, very long thin legs. Their legs are so thin that you can hardly see how it is they can support such big bodies, for the secretary birds have really fat bodies."

"Well, on the afternoon of the races they all entered, and you never saw such running in all your life! They simply went like the wind, but the chief race of all was between one bird named Sandy and one named Mongo. They were considered the fastest runners of all. They had raced often and often before and had always come in a tie. But this time Mongo had been practicing very hard and had been very careful not to eat anything to hurt his wind. Sandy had been practicing every day, too, but he thought it was absurd to give up things to eat. However, Mongo had always heard that all athletes were very careful of their eating, and, as he had never been able to beat Sandy yet, he was bound he would try everything he could so as to win.

"The prize was to be a fine, great, big snake which had been captured and killed a few days before the races were to take place."

"Do secretary birds eat snakes?" asked Evelyn.

"Yes," said daddy; "they practically live on them."

"I shouldn't think that would be nice food," added Evelyn.

"No; we don't think so," answered daddy, "but you know we eat bacon and like it, so probably the secretary birds think it is as funny for us to eat pigs as we do to hear of their eating snakes."

"No," said Evelyn thoughtfully, "I suppose not. They sound so horrid, though."

At that moment Jack, who was growing very impatient, not caring what the secretary birds ate, chimed in: "Daddy, please hurry and tell us who won the race. I can hardly wait to hear. I am sure Mongo did, though."

"No," said Evelyn; "I think Sandy did because he wasn't such an old fuss as Mongo."

"Well," continued daddy, "during the race all the secretary birds shrieked in their cackling voices: 'Go it; go it! Win, Mongo! Win, Sandy.'

"For a few moments Mongo got quite a bit ahead, but Sandy succeeded in catching up with him, and they passed by the goal side by side.

"It was a splendid race, but it showed that Mongo and Sandy were really absolutely evenly matched, so they gave a funny cackle, which meant a laugh, and each, taking an end of the prize, said, 'We'll all have a taste of the prize, as neither of us can win it.'

"So they all sat down to a very jolly supper party."

Practical Fashion Hints

By Alice Gibson

7823

The yoke is a favored feature of both tailored and dressy blouses this season.

This design (7823) may be made with or without the yoke. As illustrated the yoke is used and the waist is made of a flowered cotton crepe. This is one of the most practical materials for the business blouse as it launders well and requires no ironing. The softer silks, crepe de Chine, Habutai or pongee are also good blouse materials for the same reason.

In applying the yoke I have found it simpler to turn in the seam allowance, baste down and press flat before attaching to the waist. It is sure to be even if this is done. It is neater to use the French seam for soft materials; for heavy or wool fabrics the same may be bound with seam binding or narrow bias strips of the material.

There is a tuck on each shoulder in front to allow sufficient fullness to the waist, a full length sleeve with a deep cuff and a softly rolled collar. This design may be made in size 36 with 2 yards of 36 inch material. The pattern is cut in 5 sizes; 34 to 42.

This Is a Perfect Pattern.

Be sure to state right size, passing the tape over the fullest part of the bust for dimensions.

It may be obtained by filling out the coupon and enclosing 15 cents in stamps or coin to the Pattern Department of this paper.

Stylish Coats For Children.

For children from five to ten years of age plush and fur are much used for comfortable winter coats. The tiny toddler wears a coat of rose, blue or even black plush this season made on a little yoke, buttoned from neck to hips with plush covered buttons and edged at collar and cuffs with some kind of fur, preferably ermine.

The child a little older has a plush coat, too, but it is cut in a different fashion—that is, straight from shoulder to hem—with an attached collar of chinchilla or one of its many imitations.

For the girl of ten dark green, black and brown plush is used, and often the entire coat is edged with a narrow banding of skunk fur.

The coat illustrated is a dainty little model of gray blue zibeline, with collar, cuffs and low hanging belt of velvet in the same shade.

An Ironing Pad.

An economical and really excellent pad for cleaning and testing hot irons is made of several layers of heavy brown paper. This may be renewed each ironing day and is quite satisfactory. For a fine polish a little wax or paraffin should be used.

VOTES FOR WOMEN

Conducted by the Equal Suffrage League of Plainfield and North Plainfield.

WOMAN SUFFRAGE FROM A MAN'S VIEWPOINT.

Congressman Kent, of California, wrote an admirable article for the "Suffragist" in favor of Woman Suffrage. He said in part:

"I am often asked how Suffrage works in practice. It works just as sane and sensible people would expect it to work. In California, it has improved our conditions in all respects, and most visibly in the decency which has come about in elections. Women have not been anxious to force or to inaugurate women's policies. For this, they deserve our gratitude. Nothing could be worse than that a sex line should be drawn in politics. We feel that we shall never have to meet this issue.

"For twenty years I have been in the thick of political contention. I know the great game of practical politics from the suburbs to the stock yards, from the city to the thrashing crew in the field. There is nothing dirty about politics unless the cards are played with dirty hands. We have seen in California, with Woman Suffrage, the schoolhouse displace the saloon as political headquarters.

"With the ballot we confer upon our women, our partners and companions, an added appreciation of social responsibility, an ability to contribute directly to social welfare, a noble, a limitless opportunity for the exercise of that altruistic sense which they possess more fully than do men.

"As to those who oppose our ideals of society and of democracy—as these ideals appear in the adult Suffrage movement—I have never been able to comprehend the arguments of such of them as are disinterested and honest. I realize that many people are belated. Let us pray that they may soon catch up with progress. But there are many whose opposition bears the stigmata of vicious personal interest; the alcohol traffic, white slavery, much of the polite and useless and demoralized society are opposed to the emancipation of women. The alliances which are formed against adult Suffrage are surprising."

In closing he makes an appeal to the true Man Democrat: He asks: "You, whose mothers and wives are strong, able, loving women, have you never felt the thrill of real fellowship, have you never added to the tenderly loyal affection you feel for them as women, the handclasp which you give to the man who is your closest friend? You who have never enjoyed the privilege of going to the polls, our most sacred shrine, in company with your mother and your wife, as I have done, can not realize the supreme pleasure of sharing with your nearest and dearest the highest of privileges, that of full American citizenship."

Another masculine point of view in regard to Woman Suffrage comes all the way from India. At the United Provinces Social Conference in India, which took place a few weeks ago at Fyzabad, the address of the president, Dr. Tej Bahadur Sapru dealt with "disabilities based on birth and sex." He advocated education and equal rights for woman, and added:

"To achieve this end, we have first of all to educate ourselves into the right feeling, and, next, to educate her. As it is woman herself has become fond of the chains that we have plt round her feet, and there is no greater resistance than she herself offers when any attempt is made to liberate her."

HEALTH BOARD'S REVIEW

not limited in this way.

"The work of the Board has been confined mostly to the registering of cases, examination of sputum, furnishing written instructions and sputum cups and disinfection after deaths or removals. In addition, a system of subsequent reports has been started the past year, by means of which the Board keeps in touch with each individual case.

"The reporting of cases is compulsory by State law and local ordinance and the doctors are complying with the requirements very well. The increase in the number of cases reported is probably due to this fact and also because a number of cases have been discovered by means of the clinic. There was a total of 154 cases reported during the year.

"The inspection, testing and general supervision of the plumbing work in the city has been carried on as usual with extreme thoroughness. In accordance with the resolution, 31 men were examined this past year and 29 were favorably reported upon by the committee and the acceptance of their bonds recommended. There are at the present time, 52 dairies supplying cream, 227 dairies supplying milk and 8 creameries supplying milk. Dr. J. H. Carman reported the examination of 28 cases of communicable disease and 24 inspections in connection with other work.

"In the bacteriological department 404 cultures were examined during the year for general disease, 183 for diphtheria, 157 for tuberculosis, and by Mrs. Howard W. Boise."

Miss Harriet O. Mattison, registrar of vital statistics, advocates the filing of all records having to do with marriages, births and deaths with the health department. She says that efforts are being made to impress the importance of making proper returns promptly. During the year there was a total of 212 marriages, 538 births, 24 still-births and 311 deaths. The marriages represent a rate of 9.41 per thousand population. The birth rate was 25.22 and the still-birth rate was 1.0, while the death rate was 13.82.

A Practical Design for Embroidering a One-Piece Nightgown.

As hand-embroidered nightgowns are very expensive when bought ready to wear, they are a great luxury, except for the handy needle woman. They are not at all difficult to make at home and the embroidery stitches are so easy to do that it requires but a short while in which to complete the garment.

This wild-rose design may be embroidered in solid work, eyelets, outline and seed-stitch, on lawn, batiste, handkerchief linen, crepe de chine or China silk. Mercerized cotton should be used on cotton or linen material.

This design may be used with pattern number 14133, for a corset cover or chemise, and borders 14193 and 14133, which are two and four inches wide respectively. These borders may be used on the ruffles of the drawers and petticoat to make a complete set of underwear for a bride.

Pattern number 14463 includes transfers for stamping the front, back and two sleeves of a nightgown, to be slipped over the head. It comes in medium size only, and will be supplied to readers of the Daily Press for fifteen cents.

THE CIRCUS IS HERE!

Eight hundred Plainfield girls took advantage of the offer made a few months ago by the Plainfield Daily Press through which they secured the "Mother's darling and Nurse Marie" paper dolls. The Press was complimented on all sides for furnishing that delightful family, and because of the great interest, the publishers have been seeking some other equally attractive cut-out for the young people. We have found it in the most original and attractive article of the kind that has ever been put on the market.

DING-A-LING CIRCUS comes on a big sheet of linen, and contains ALL OF THE WELL KNOWN ANIMALS found in the menagerie of the big circus, ready to cut out and paste so that they will practically be indestructible. Then there is a CIRCUS CAGE, drawn by two horses, TWO CLOWNS, and last but not least, TWO DOLLS, a boy and a girl, which can be cut out, sewed together, and then stuffed, so that they will stand up and view the animals which will make a

PARADE THIRTY FEET LONG

if they are spaced a foot apart. There are admission tickets, a big banner with the name of the circus, and natural history lectures telling all about everyone of the animals in the circus.

HOW TO GET THE CIRCUS

Cut out the admission ticket which will be found in today's Plainfield Daily Press, and bring it with only 48 cents, the actual cost of handling and distribution, to the Daily Press office, and get the two dolls, the parade wagon, all the animals, printed in life-like colors on everlasting cloth, all the admission tickets, lectures, and other things which go to make this the most remarkable offer ever made to the young folks by a Plainfield newspaper.

FRILLS and FLOUNCES Contribute to Studied Carelessness

7990 Upward Drapery and Ruffled Tunic Emphasized.

Guimpe of Oriental Net with Girdle Tunic

8049 Bolero Bodice with Jabot Overskirt

8084 Deep Folded Girdle A New Effect

WHEN straight breadths of materials were joined and gathered full into a band around the waist before corsets were highly developed and when shawls were the shapeless protectors from the elements, dressmakers were not high priced attachés of the family or the high priestesses in a French Mecca, to whose shrine would-be fashionable women journeyed.

The wrap of to-day, the inevitable kimono blouse and the beruffled skirts of Paris models that make women envious, careless though they seem, are the studied conceits of leading French designers. The Poiret tunic and the Premet bustle were the forerunners of frills and flounces of the modish gowns of mid-winter. Lines that a few months ago must extend from belt to hem are now broken with one or more cross lines of an overdress or a drapery. The fuller some of these are the better, says Paris. So it appears in some of the models shown to-day, as the last word in artistic costuming for daytime occasions. Skirts remain narrow at the foot, ranging from one and one-quarter to one and three-quarters wide on the bottom, but curving out below the hips, with additional or peg-top fullness brought in at the belt.

Ruffled Tunics Vie With Drapery.

Model 7990 combines three of the style features, any one of which will stamp the newness of a gown of to-day. It has the peg-top skirt, with the upper fullness folded in a double box plait in the front and also in the middle back. The graduated plaited tunic is of chiffon, matching the soft brocaded crepe de Chine in a rich petunia shade. Then the girdle adds its fullness at the waist line, drooping on either hip to follow the contour of the tunic. This is one of the many little points which you will notice in the latest model gowns. Such tricks, as it were, of the best modistes are the secret of the beauty to be found in the present odd types of gowns. You will see, too, in this model that the lines of the yoke seams extend from the vest to the underarm seam, with the same drooping line of both the belt and the girdle. The amateur might easily adjust these three lines at warring angles without warning or an exact pattern. No. 7990 will give the same effect in other materials, and it is admired for combining two widely different fabrics. This pattern is cut in six sizes from 34 to 44. It is 15 cents.

Jersey silk or Jersey woolen top skirts are the favored kinds with fashionable women this season, as they take up so little space and do not wrinkle. In the latter particular American women are even more fastidious than their French sisters. Paris shops are showing a plentiful variety of Roman stripe silk petticoats. Striped satins are also being similarly used.

Next to Jersey weaves, crepe de Chine petticoats are admired, in as much as the women of fashion and full pocketbooks are wearing crepe de Chine lingerie in preference to muslin and nainsook. Pink underwear, including corsets, is a fad that still holds. As for Italian silk undergarments, it is claimed that the colors are liked better than white because the latter is liable to turn yellow with careless laundering.

Colors as gay as those of the proverbial peacock will continue to display themselves if the fashion makers do not suddenly change their color preferences. Toyklo is a rich, dark, greenish blue shade, which dyers of foreign fabrics are using. It is a strong background for the yellow and orange tones which swell the list of Oriental saffrons and sand shades. Oriole is a gay burnt orange, intended both for trimming and high lights in millinery. The color is one sparingly used now with fine effect. One hears of Czarina green and foxglove purple, wild rose pink and rust brown. The pink spots of color indicate the coming popular tint for early spring.

One of innumerable fittings of fancy handbags is a double end purse made of the lining material with a pocket at either end for jewels or small coins. This is attached by a fine chain to the inside rim of the bag. Other pockets are like secret drawers. A complete miniature toilet outfit also is included in these compact accessories.

ORIENTAL NET GUIMPE WITH GIRDLE TUNIC.

GUIMPES have hardly less importance in the wardrobe of the grown woman than in that of the child of to-day, when soft laces and net are worn in the front of most every kind of dress or fancy blouse. The guimpe is often the final decorative note. One of the latest conceits for it combines a sleeveless upper portion with a side plaited tunic of satin and a wide, soft girdle of black velvet lined with satin. The front vest portion of the artistic guimpe illustrated has exquisite Oriental embroidery in colors on a cream white net. The oval motifs are joined with gold and silver threads. The frill is of finely plaited net, made to stand up in the back by means of a new support of delicate white composition ribs on a base wire.

This fascinating costume accessory is designed to add variety to gowns or suits which have a bolero jacket or a fancy blouse without a fastened vest. This style of tunic, whether a part of the gown or a separate adjunct, promises to become more and more fashionable as the spring season approaches. There are kaleidoscopic variations of the embroidery effects possible in the colors, which are combined with white or ecru grounds. Batiste embroideries, which are returning to favor, show besides the color decorations other designs worked out with colored threads in novel French effects. Soft pastel colorings are continued and will be spoken of—for a time, at least—as "sweet pea" shades.

Flowered silks and plain, soft taffeta make effective tunics of the same style as the one described.

FRENCH EMBROIDERIES ON BABIES' BIBS.

DAINTY and suitable embroidery on infants' clothing is fashionable, though it makes ready-made garments too expensive for many who would like to have them. A fancy bib in one with a deep yoke and belt like No. 14562 is a beautiful accessory for occasional dress-up for babies. The embroidery is a design which can be quickly worked in feather stitch and French dots. It becomes elaborate when finished with a border of Irish crochet lace.

This model is one of a group of patterns for yokes and bibs, there being two of each kind in the set. Lawn or handkerchief linen is suitable for the bibs, while the simple neck scalloping and decorations of forget-me-nots may be done on the finished frocks of cambric or nainsook. Valenciennes lace is soft and pretty for the neck and edges of sleeves or for the fancy yoke instead of Irish lace. The pattern, including four designs, is 15 cents.

Emb. 14562 Fancy Bib with French Dots and Feather Stitching

BOLERO effects and bolero jackets proper stand out on some of the newest models of the French couturiers and are being worn on smart afternoon costumes, especially the later styles chosen for afternoon card parties and matinees. They are jaunty adjuncts of filmy lace and net blouses, serving their purpose in relating a skirt to the gown as a whole and making it much more becoming to many wearers than the dress which has a dividing line of color at the belt. Finely plaited chiffon forms the front and the full sleeves, whose frill of net corresponds with the Medici collar in the neck. The high collar is still tabooed.

The skirt of this dress, No. 8049, is cut in three pieces and has a two-piece tunic, with the interesting jabot draping at the left side. A striking effect is had in the contrast of the lining of the jabot, when one cares to introduce decided color effects. The original gown pictured here is developed in old blue satin, with pale pink chiffon blouse and the bolero facing of velvet matching the satin.

A very beautiful line of spring fabrics are coming in printed designs in eolienne material of plain ground. Persian designs are shown in dull rich colorings, to be used as this model suggests, with the fancy fabric for the overskirt. The vogue of combining two or more materials is a welcome one for the sake of economy when one has a gown of last season to make over. Frequently the dress of a few seasons back has in it breadths enough to make over in some such up-to-date and attractive way as this. Pattern No. 8049 can be made up with six yards of wide material, such as wool poplin, eponge or double width crepe de Chine.

IN many effective costumes the inevitable sash or girdle of fashion's present decree appears to be an afterthought, judging from the odd way it is often adjusted. The deep folded sash in model No. 8084 gives this impression. It is not, however, carelessly put on the handsome velvet gown, but is draped to give folds and lines following the direction of the outline of the flounce below it. A tapestry surplice vest gives color contrast.

Hammered Copper Chafing Dish for "Little Suppers"

SEEN IN THE SHOPS.

CUT glass flower holders in the shape of Marie Antoinette baskets are shown in sizes from four to five inches across the opening to twelve inches. They make most attractive centre-pieces for the dining table or for a tea "spread."

Japanese gardens centrepieces composed of dwarf pines and other tresses, with hills of moss, minature lakes, etc., are a popular form of nature decoration for the home. They are designed on the principle of the formal Japanese garden and are veritable gems of Eastern art.

Among expensive jewelry trifles, chiefly interesting because of their novelty and artistic beauty, are gold cigarette holders for smokers of the fair sex. A delicate gold tweezer, with a ring to slip over the finger and a clasp for the cigarette, has a monkey slide with diamond eyes. A novelty mechanical box has a bird that stoops and lifts a single cigarette from inside when one presses a button.

HOUSEHOLD HINTS.

CHAFING dishes, perhaps more favored for little supper parties than other occasions nowadays, have developed from their exclusive utilitarian purpose, along with other culinary utensils, to one of artistic novelty and interest as well. The chafing dish in the picture has a clay casserole with long handle, and a cover, support and lamp of hammered copper. The designer's imagination stretched only a little from the appetizing "rarebit" to "rabbits" for the original decoration. The accompanying hot water boiler is of shimmering copper.

Kitchen Scissors.

Scissors will cut some foods better than a knife. Grape fruit and oranges can be easily prepared for serving in the skins by cutting the pulp close to the rind and also cutting out the tough fibres around the seeds. A pair of large size manicure scissors with curved blades follow the curve of the round fruits. Other scissors are practical for cutting some fancy shapes in fruits or vegetables for decoration. Green peppers, for instance, can be shredded with straight scissors or cut into leaves like holly, with red peppers for holly berries.

Panel Curtain Device.

How not to muss panel lace sash curtains when the windows of sleeping rooms are opened at night has been a problem of many particular housewives. About halfway up the lower half of the curtain sew a small dress hook on either edge of the curtain and one in the middle, if there is heavy lace or strong material at that point. Beside the small ring screwed into the wood rod of the window shade for the pull cord screw a smilar ring into each end of the rod, where it will not be noticed. Catch the dress hooks into the three corresponding rings on the window shade and roll the latter up as high as it is desired to have the window open. The screw rings can be put into the window jamb if preferred.

"CURLED celery" frequently appears on hotel menus. It is none other than white celery in its natural state, with coarse fibres removed and made to curl up by standing in a pan of ice water for at least half an hour before serving. The pieces may be sit lengthwise. Celery becomes very crisp and tender when prepared in this way.

Chicken Souffle.

Chicken souffle is made of one cupful of chopped cooked chicken, one teaspoonful of parsley and the beaten yolks of three eggs added to sufficient white sauce made in the usual way. When cold fold the beaten whites of the eggs and bake in ramekins until the mixture puffs and browns.

Fish au Gratin.

Make a cream sauce by heating two cupfuls of milk, thicken with cornstarch and a teaspoonful of butter, a pinch of salt or a pinch of pepper. Pick any kind of cold fish and stir it into the cream sauce, then turn into an earthen dish, grate a little cheese over the top and put into the oven until the fish is thoroughly heated.

Egg Cutlets.

Work two teaspoonfuls of butter until creamy, add four tablespoonfuls of bread flour and stir until well blended. Then pour on gradually while stirring constantly one cupful of milk, and boil five minutes while continuing the stirring. Add eight hard boiled eggs cut in coarse pieces, one teaspoonful of salt, one-half teaspoonful of paprika, three-fourths of a teaspoonful of finely grated onion, one tablespoonful of finely chopped parsley and a few gratings of nutmeg. Cool and shape in the form of cutlets. Dip in flour, egg and crumbs, and fry in deep fat.

Patterns for designs shown on this page can be obtained from any agency for LADIES' HOME JOURNAL PATTERNS.

WORK DURING YR. AT PLAYGROUNDS

Fourth Annual Report of Commission Shows Playgrounds Grow Popular.

MORE MONEY NEEDED

Total Attendance Including Parker Field For Less Than Three Months 62,426—Will Be Kept Open Longer This Year.

The fourth annual report of the Board of Playground Commissioners which was submitted to the Common Council, Monday night, shows that with the balance on hand a year ago the interests on deposits and the appropriation by the Common Council, there was a total of $3,019.12, all of which was expended for the work. An additional report of J. Hervey Doane, treasurer of a special fund, shows a balance on hand of $197.85. The total receipts in the special fund were $490.85.

At Parker Field between June 23 and September 6 there was a grand total of 27,718, of whom 2,673 used the tennis courts, 3,482 the gymnasium apparatus, 5,374 the baseball diamond, 496 the track, 843 the grove, while 14,850 were spectators. The grand total attendance at both the school playgrounds and Parker Field was 62,426.

Including spectators at the baseball games played on Saturday afternoons and the attendance at the open-air concerts held at Parker Field Sunday afternoons of July and August, there was a total attendance of not less than 80,000. Herbert E. Parker, secretary of the commission, which comprises George P. Mellick, president; H. W. Marshall, J. Hervey Doane, R. A. Claybrook and George L. Babcock, prepared an interesting report, a part of which follows:

"At the school playgrounds, seesaws, slides, swings, sand-boxes, occupation-work, stories, games engage the small children in developing activity; at Parker Field, competitive games, systematic gymnastic work, tennis, baseball, track work furnish wholesome body-building exercise for older boys and girls.

"Additions to equipments made during the past season included two new shower baths, the cost of which was met by funds given to the Board of Playground Commissioners by the Courier-News Publishing Company, various contributions having been made to the Courier-News by citizens interested in this benefit to the public. C. H. Frost personally contributed an additional amount, making it possible to complete the shower baths. Further improvements in Parker Field were made, consisting of a new dressing room, the building of a roof over one of the bleachers at the field, the construction of two pairs of concrete steps leading from the track to the grove, the construction of two new tennis courts and installation of swings and rustic seats under the trees.

"The season at both the School Playgrounds and Parker Field might well be lengthened to extend to November 15, the grounds being open, of course, only in the afternoon after school begins. In East Orange, where playground development has reached a very high degree of efficiency, September, October and early November show a splendid attendance, September being the banner month of the season. Further, new playgrounds should be opened for the children of the East End and for the colored children of West Third and West Fourth streets.

"Favorable action upon the recommendations would involve a largely increased appropriation, but in view of the great value of the city of the results obtainable, a consideration which has prompted the granting of an appropriation averaging $4,900 per year for the past three years for the same purpose in East Orange, a city where conditions are very similar to those in Plainfield, such action on behalf of our city would seem to be fully warranted.

"The Commission has on file a detailed report of G. W. Wriston, supervisor of Parker Field for the summer season of 1913. From careful consideration of this, it is the opinion of the Board of Playground Commissioners that the benefits offered Plainfield youth at this recreation field, is of very great importance."

PROBABLE NOMINEES FOR ASSESSORSHIPS

Mulford, Ivins, MacLaughlin and Liefke Likely Ones—Appointment Jan. 19.

Mayor Percy H. Stewart, it is expected, will make known his appointments for the new Board of Assessors at the meeting of the Common Council on Monday night, January 19. He held a conference with the members of the Common Council, Monday night, to discuss candidates, and it is understood all the members will be new appointees.

Those who are in close touch with the situation say that in the First ward the selection is between Armstrong Mulford, who is now serving on the Mayor's special assessment commission, and Thomas Hughes, who a year ago was elected a member of the small Board of Freeholders, but did not serve. Mr. Mulford is a Republican and Mr. Hughes a Democrat.

DeWitt C. Ivins is slated for appointment in the Second ward to succeed Asa F. Randolph, who has removed to the Third ward, while John G. McLaughlin, who together with Mr. Ivins is also a member of the assessment commission, is talked of for a place on the board. It seems to be the belief that Henry Liefke will be named in the Fourth ward.

The appointment of Messrs. Mulford, Ivins, McLaughlin and Liefke would divide the Board politically, two Republicans and two Democrats. All four are well informed as to property values and the first named who are now engaged in revising the assessments of the city would appear to be particularly fitted for the jobs.

CAMPBELL'S DUTIES BEGIIN ON JANUARY 19

Newly-appointed Judge Was Counsel for Small Board in Fight Against Ousting.

Luther A. Campbell, of Hackensack, who was appointed by Acting Governor Taylor to succeed Judge Vail on the Circuit Court bench in Bergen county, will enter upon the duties of his new position in the Elizabeth court on Monday, January 19. His ascension to the bench at that time will be his first judicial experience.

Judge Campbell is a son of former Prosecutor Campbell, of Bergen county, and he also has a brother who is an attorney. Judge Campbell sprang into State prominence last year during the contest between the large and small Boards of Freeholders in different counties of the State, including Bergen county. The Bergen county board was Republican, and although he is a Democrat, he was County Attorney under the large board for a number of years. His sympathies being with the smaller board, he resigned from the position and championed the cause of the small board until the courts decided against it. He was not reinstated.

When there was to be a Judge of the Bergen Court of Common Pleas appointed, Judge Campbell was a candidate, but the present incumbent, Judge Seufert, was named. The loss of the two positions at the hands of the Democrats was considered as placing him in line for the appointment given him yesterday.

MRS. MARY E. GIBBS DIES; AGED SEVENTY YEARS

Gibbs, formerly of Scotch Plains, died of paralysis of the brain suddenly at her home, 10 West Twenty-seventh street, West Eighth Street station, Bayonne, yesterday. PLANNING TO HOLD JOINT BENCH SHOW

The Plainfield Kennel Club Also Considers Idea of a Club House.

The annual meeting of the Plainfield Kennel Club was held at the Queen City Hotel last evening with a goodly attendance of members. Report of the officers and committees were received and thoroughly discussed. The treasurer's report showed the club to be in a flourishing condition. Reporting for the committee on joint show, the president, Edmund L. Mackenzie, read communications from three or four clubs in the State, among them the Newark and the Jersey City organizations, expressing a willingness to co-operate with the Plainfield Kennel Club in holding a joint show during the year at some central point such as Elizabeth, where the facilities for holding an indoor exhibition are exceptional. The committee was authorized to call a meeting of representatives of different clubs throughout the State, at the New York show, at which time the plan of a joint state show will be fully discussed and details worked out.

The question of interesting the members during the year between shows was talked over, and it was suggested, among other things, that if a club house were obtained the members would have a place of meeting throughout the year, and, at the same time, a place where the club could hold local indoor exhibits of different classes of dogs. This suggestion met with considerable favor and it was decided to look over the situation and ascertain what suitable quarters could be rented for, and further discussion of the matter will be had at the next meeting of the Board of Trustees.

The election of officers resulted as follows: President, Edmund L. Mackenzie; vice-president, A. C. Wilmerding; secretary, H. A. Robinson; treasurer, Edward F. Feickert.

The members were enthusiastic over the prospects for the coming year, especially in regard to the outlook of holding a large show to be participated in by the various Kennel Clubs throughout the State.

PARK AVE. BAPTISTS TO HOLD A REVIVAL

Raise $1,000 to Pay for New Boiler Installed in the Church Edifice.

The first Wednesday of the New Year was observed at the Park Avenue Baptist church at the close of the mid-week prayer meeting, last night, when following an informal business session and conference a social time was enjoyed. Rev. Gabriel Reid Maguire, the pastor, presented plans for holding revival services and they were approved. One of the Sunday-school classes volunteered to finance the campaign.

George Place, chairman of the board of trustees, reminded those present that a new boiler had been installed in the church at an expense together with other incidentals of about $1,000. Almost this entire sum was raised last night, the members and friends giving from one penny to $100. An incident especially pleasing was the presentation of a small tin boiler containing 100 silver dollars, the gift of the Volunteer Bible Class.

The Volunteer Bible Class also provided refreshments during the social hour which followed. Both pastor and people were pleased that the church was able to begin the New Year with all bills met and after the friends who were not present are heard from hope to have a good balance in the treasury.

SOON WILL START TO BUILD SEWER

Joint Commission Expects to Have Construction Work Begun in the Spring.

REPORTS PRESENTED

Chairman Clay Names Milne, Blatz and Ryan as Committee to Decide Upon An Engineer—Do Not Fear Piscataway Twp. Opposition.

The joint sanitary sewage commission, comprising representatives of Plainfield, North Plainfield and Dunellen, held its monthly meeting in the Common Council rooms on North avenue, last night. George S. Clay, president of the Plainfield Council, who is the permanent chairman of the committee, presided.

With the exception of Juan A. Babcock, all of the members of the Common Council from this city were present, together with Mayor Robert Clark, Jr., and Councilmen Alex Milne, Julius J. Stahl and U. G. Tingley, of North Plainfield, and Mayor E. B. Latham and the representatives of the Dunellen Council, and Charles M. Dolliver, of the borough, who is permanent clerk of the commission.

This was the first meeting of the commission since organization, and naturally the new members of the various Councils desired to attend and become familiar with what has and is to be done. The committee on securing a permanent place of meeting, of which Councilman Francis J. Blatz was chairman, recommended that the Plainfield Council rooms were the most convenient and in the future all meetings of the commission will be held at that place.

The committee on site for the proposed sewage disposal works, of which former Councilman C. C. Randolph was chairman, reported progress, explaining that it expected to have a definite report at the next meeting. The question of appointing an engineer to supervise and take charge of the construction work of the proposed joint sewer, was discussed, and Mr. Milne offered a resolution, which was adopted, authorizing the appointment of a committee of three to inquire into the matter and report, and also the manner of procedure in undertaking the work contemplated by the joint sewer contract.

Mr. Clay named the following as members of that committee: Alex Milne, of North Plainfield; Francis J. Blatz, of Plainfield, and Mr. Ryan, of Dunellen. The meeting then adjourned to meet Wednesday night, February 4.

It seemed to be the opinion of those present that substantial progress is being made with the joint sewage proposition and that it will be possible to begin operations early in the spring. In view of the attitude of the State Board of Health it is not believed that any opposition that the residents of Piscataway township may make will avail for the Board has approved the plans as well as the site chosen for the disposal works.

BROTHER-IN-LAW STABBED HIM, FRANK LISS SAYS

While on his way to a woodshed in the rear of his home at 512 West Fourth street shortly after 7 o'clock last night, Frank Liss, according to the story he told the police, was attacked and stabbed about the face and neck, by John Pakos, 19 years old, his brother-in-law. Pakos was arrested about noon today, charged with atrocious assault and battery. He will be arraigned tomorrow morning before City Judge DeMeza.

The prisoner told the police that he and Liss had fought over a family matter, while the complainant alleges he was attacked without cause. Although the latter's face and neck show that the skin had been cut many times, Pakos claims the injuries were caused by nails which protruded from the shed around which the two grappled.

TO DISCONTINUE ENROLLMENT.

HER HEARTLESS SON GETS TERM IN JAIL

Colored Youth Gives Undertaker Policy Saying Mother Died and Gets Money.

Thomas Johnson, colored, of 131 Madison avenue, was given a sixty days' sentence in the county jail, when arraigned before City Judge W. G. DeMeza, this morning, for swindling William Page, a colored undertaker of Plainfield avenue. Johnson was short of cash and he planned to raise a few dollars on a $50 insurance policy which his mother carries on her life.

Securing the policy, unbeknown to his mother, Johnson called on the undertaker, explaining that she had died and that he wanted him to take charge of the funeral arrangements. He then displayed the insurance policy, and asked Mr. Page if he could let him have a few dollars to cover incidental expenses, such as notifying relatives, etc. The undertaker feeling that the policy was sufficient security advanced the money and then proceeded to the home of Johnson.

Upon his arrival there he was greeted cordially by Mrs. Johnson, who expressed some surprise at the call. Mr. Page was too much overcome with surprise to say a word for a few minutes, for he had fully expected to find the woman dead. He then explained the circumstances and then followed the arrest of Johnson.

MRS. R. H. HOOD TO GET DIVORCE

Charges of Marital Misconduct With Dorothy Hoyt Basis for a Decree.

AN OPINION IS FILED

ice Chancellor Stevens Reviews Testimony Damaging to Wealthy Local Man in Advising That Marriage Bond Be Severed.

Newark, Jan. 8.—Vice Chancellor Stevens, today, filed an opinion in which he holds that the charges of marital misconduct made against Richard Haden Hood, a retired civil engineer of Plainfield and New York, by Mrs. Frances Sparks Hood, of 541 Stelle avenue, Plainfield, are fully proven and advises a decree in her favor.

In giving his opinion, Vice Chancellor Stevens pointed out that Mr. Hood and Miss Dorothy Hoyt, the co-respondent named in the action, who now resides in England, frequently planned to deceive Mrs. Hood regarding their close friendship. He also referred to the fact that Miss Hoyt was adopted at the age of one year, lived abroad part of the time, coming here after the death of her father, that she was educated in a French Convent and in Germany and Switzerland.

The opinion further cites that in 1912, when Miss Hoyt was 19 years of age and Mr. Hood was 44 years of age, she seemed to be "thoroughly versed in the affairs of the world," that in April, 1912, she took her first automobile ride with Mr. Hood, and subsequent frequent rides without permission, and that by the end of June the friendship of the couple was so marked that Mrs. Field protested.

The vice chancellor further remarks that there was a clandestine correspondence and it was particularly significant that there was a decline of Mr. Hood's affection for his wife and a growing intimacy with Miss Hoyt. He took her to the theatre and allowed her to wear a highly prized ring, and gave her the privilege of playing golf at his club with others in his absence.

Continuing, the Vice Chancellor says: "I allude to the subject here for the reason that in this class of cases growing coldness toward the wife is a usual concommitant of a growing passion for someone else."

The opinion further states that Mrs. Field followed up her remonstrance over Miss Hoyt's actions with Mr. Hood, by taking her to Plattsburg, N. Y., where they spent several weeks. While there Miss Hoyt wrote to Mr. Hood, and the Vice Chancellor adds that Mrs. Hood secured the torn letter, pieced it together, and this proved to be an important link in the testimony.

It is further set forth that before going to Plattsburg, Mr. Hood proposed a Canadian trip to Miss Hoyt, and called attention to the cryptic letter in which Miss Hoyt said "the trip is off, etc." Mrs. Field then sent Miss Hoyt to England to visit friends at Brighton, she sailing on the Kron Princesse Cecille on September 10, and that Mr. Hood was a passenger on the same steamer, calling attention to the fact that Miss Hoyt cabled her friends in Italian that her departure was delayed, the purpose being to allow her to spend a week in London with Mr. Hood, the testimony showing that the couple stopped at the same hotel in London, preparations being made in advance.

The Vice Chancellor also referred to incidents on the trip to Europe, as shown by the testimony, showing how Miss Hoyt visited Mr. Hood's stateroom at night, partly disrobed, for the purpose of giving him her jewelry for safe-keeping.

It is expected that a decision will be given soon in the case of the property rights, in which Mr. Hood is seeking to recover the home on Stelle avenue, which he gave to his wife.

ANTI-SUFFRAGE MEETING.

The one topic of discussion in both the pro and anti-suffrage ranks in Plainfield is the meeting which is to be held tomorrow night at the Y. M. C. A. Hall under the auspices of the local branch of the Associaion Opposed to Women's Suffrage. Mrs. A. T. George, conceded to be the strongest woman speaker in the anti-suffrage cause, will address the gathering, this being one of fourteen meetings which she is speaking at this year. She speaks tonight in Aeolian Hall, in New York city.

MR. VANDERHOEF OBJECTS.

He scored the way in which public money is being being used, as he alleged, by the Board of Health suggesting that the Board of Trade bring the matter before the Common Council. The complaint was referred to the public affairs committee.

It was also asserted that no adequate returns had been made to the county of fines collected, and it was voted to investigate this matter. The sewer on Gaston avenue was reported topped up, and Nicholas Boyer was granted a contract to clean this out at a cost of $150.

MARRIED TAXED ON JOINT INCOME

Husbands Made Responsible For Their Wives.

SINGLE PERSONS FAVORED.

Those With $3,000 a Year Save $20 More Than if Wedded—Mooted Point Settled and the Whole Question of Liability Made Clear by the Most Recent Set of Regulations.

Single persons who have an income of $3,000 a year will save $20 a year more than they would if married, according to a new set of income tax regulations issued by William H. Osborn, United States commissioner of internal revenue. A clause in the regulations makes the husband, in the case of a married woman, personally responsible for filing returns for himself and her.

Men and women who have incomes exceeding $3,000 annually will lose $20 a year by getting married. If unmarried, exemption will total $6,000; if married and living together they will get but $4,000 exemption. They must pay 1 per cent tax on $2,000 additional.

This decision came after nearly two months' consideration and interpretation of the income tax law. At first it was thought that where a husband and wife both had incomes liable to the tax the exemption should be $7,000, the double exemption for single persons and the additional $1,000 for married persons.

An Explicit Declaration.

"Every single person," say the regulations drafted by the commissioner of internal revenue, "and every married person not living with husband or wife in the sense below defined who has a net income exceeding $3,000 per annum is liable to pay the normal income tax under this law, but in making return for such tax may claim an exemption of $3,000 from the total net income.

"Husband and wife living together are entitled to an exemption of $4,000 only from the aggregate net income of both, which may be deducted in making the return of such aggregate income for taxation. However, when the husband and wife are separated and living permanently apart from each other each shall be entitled to the exemption of $3,000.

"If the husband and wife, not living apart, have separate estates the income from both may be made on one return, but the amount of income of each and the full name and address of both must be shown in such return.

"The husband, as the head and legal representative of the household and general custodian of its income, should make and render the return of the aggregate income of himself and wife, and for the purpose of levying the income tax it is assumed that he can ascertain the total amount of said income.

Wife May Make Return.

"If a wife has a separate estate, managed by herself as her own separate property, and receives an income of more than $3,000 she may make return of her own income, and if the husband has other net income, making the aggregate of both incomes more than $4,000, the wife's return should be attached to the return of her husband, or his income should be included in her return, in order that a deduction of $4,000 may be made from the aggregate of both incomes. The tax in such case, however, will be imposed only upon so much of the aggregate income of both as shall exceed $4,000.

"If either husband or wife separately has an income equal to or in excess of $3,000 a return of annual net income is required under the law, and such return must include the income of both, and in such case the return must be made, even though the combined income of both be less than $4,000.

"If the aggregate net income of both exceeds $4,000 an annual return of their combined incomes must be made in the manner stated, although neither one separately has an income of $3,000 per annum. They are jointly and separately liable for such return and for the payment of the tax.

"The single or married status of the person claiming the specific exemption shall be determined as of the time of claiming such exemption, if such claim be made within the year for which return is made, otherwise the status at the close of the year."

MUNICIPAL GRAFT IN CHINA.

Thrives There as In the United States, Sociologists Are Told.

Graft and rascality in municipal government thrive in China as well as in the United States, and it should not be hard for Americans to understand Chinese politics, according to Charles R. Henderson of the University of Chicago, who addressed the closing session of the American Sociological society.

Mr. Henderson returned recently from an extensive study of social conditions in China. He is optimistic of the Chinese as a people and says they will be greatly improved by their intercourse with those of America. This intercourse is bound to grow through trade, education, travel, missions and diplomacy. Many Chinese are looking longingly toward California, and thousands would come if they were assured of a two acre farm.

Annie Russel, In "She Stoops to Conquer," at the Plainfield Theatre, Saturday Night.

THE PLAINFIELD THEATRE

Annie Russell's Comedy Company will play an engagement at the Plainfield theatre, Saturday night, with "She Stoops to Conquer," Oliver Goldsmith's famous classic of which Dr. Johnson wrote: "I know of no comedy for many years that has so much exhilerated an audience or answered so much the great end of comedy in making an audience merry." What Dr. Johnson wrote of the play in the eighteenth century is true of it today. Of all recent revivals of classic comedies, not excepting Shakespeare, "She Stoops to Conquer" seems to be the best liked by all classes of playgoers. It was used by Annie Russell's Comedy Company for the initial piece of their repertoire and was played by them for nine very profitable weeks. Annie Russell is seen as the quaint and attractive Kate Hardcastle; Oswald Yorke, for years a member of the famous Benson Company of England, as the young Marlowe. Tony Lumpkin will be played by Percival Stevens. Others in the company are Fred Permain, Murray Kinnell, Ffolliott Paget, Henrietta Goodwin and twenty others. Miss Russell will take the exquisitely quaint part of Kate Hardcastle, a veritable pastel of the eighteenth century; Oswald Yorke will be seen as Charles Surface. It is not necessary to recommend "She Stoops to Conquer" on the ground of great educational value, for there is a much better recommendation in the jolly good fun of it. The enduring vitality of this stage classic lies in its true and faithful depiction of human character.

AUTOPSY ON AUTO VICTIM.

Elizabeth, Jan. 8.—Assistant County Physician R. T. Munger and Dr. N. A. Shangle, of this city, performed an autopsy at Martin's morgue on the body of John Fitzpatrick, who was struck in Rahway avenue by an automobile in charge of William Field. The result of the autopsy has not been announced. Field furnished $1,500 bail on a charge of involuntary manslaughter in Common Pleas Court Tuesday, a surety company going his bond. It is believed, however, that there will be no further prosecution, as spectators say the crash was unavoidable.

GLASS OF SALTS CLEANS KIDNEYS

If Your Back Hurts or Bladder Bothers You, Drink Lots of Water.

When your kidneys hurt and your back feels sore, don't get scared and proceed to load your stomach with a lot of drugs that excite the kidneys and irritate the entire urinary tract. Keep your kidneys clean like you keep your bowels clean, by flushing them with a mild, harmless salts which removes the body's urinous waste and stimulates them to their normal activity. The function of the kidneys is to filter the blood. In 24 hours they strain from it 500 grains of acid and waste, so we can readily understand the vital importance of keeping the kidneys active.

Drink lots of water—you can't drink too much; also get from any pharmacist about four ounces of Jad Salts; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast each morning for a few days and your kidneys will act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia and has been used for generations to clean and stimulate clogged kidneys; also to neutralize the acids in urine so it no longer is a source of irritation, thus ending bladder weakness.

Jad Salts is inexpensive; cannot injure; makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink which everyone should take now and then to keep their kidneys clean and active. Try this, also keep up the water drinking, and no doubt you will wonder what became of your kidney trouble and backache.—Adv.

THE BOROUGH'S SALVATION.

About a year ago, the North Plainfield Council went on record as opposed to agitation at that time for the annexation of North Plainfield to Union county. But as a distinguished mayor of Philadelphia once opined, "things are different now," and the authorities and people of North Plainfield as a rule favor secession from Somerset county. There is ample justification for their opinion on this question. The borough has been and always will be the "goat" while in that county. It has and shall "pay the fiddler." It must "pony up" the taxes and get none of the deserts due it.

The other night at the Board of Trade meeting, President Jeffery voiced the opinion that it was time that North Plainfield came into its own by getting into Union county. The only mistake he made was as to the day and date. It was time more than a decade ago when a campaign was waged to get the borough out of its troubles by getting it out of Somerset county. "Times change and men with them" and it has come to pass that many zealous opponents of the plan have changed front and are now earnest advocates of secession. "There's a reason." When you hit a man's pocketbook you hit a vital spot. The purses of the North Plainfield taxpayers have been given a hard blow and most unjustly so. As we say they are "the goats"—the sooner they organize to get out of Somerset and to get into Union the better it will be for all their interests.

During the coming year the best work that the Board of Trade can do is to agitate annexation.

There are always two sides to a question and this applies to the agitation for "votes for women." The reasons why the ballot should not be granted "the weaker sex," as she sees them, will be told by Mrs. A. T. George, of Massachusetts, at the Y. W. C. A. on Friday night and her discourse should prove instructive. All women are invited to be present.

Those cynics who profess to believe that a minister will always accept a call that pays him better will have to explain why Rev. Dr. Russell H. Conwell, of Philadelphia, who speaks at the Park Avenue Baptist church here on Tuesday night, yesterday declined to become pastor of a New York church, where his salary would be $5,000 greater.

Health Officer Chandler in his annual report calls attention to the fact that complaints of an anonymous nature are contiunally being received by that deperatment. People who do that sort of thing should learn that no one should be expected to pay any attention to anonymous communications.

We presume that every taxpayer read the annual report of that very capable and very valuable official, City Treasurer William F. Arnold, published yesterday. It told how every dollar of the city's money was spent in 1913.

Luther A. Campbell, of Hackensack, has been appointed to succeed Benjamin A. Vall on the Circuit Court bench and the question uppermost in the minds of Union county lawyers is, who is Luther A. Campbell?

South Carolina man claims Woodrow Wilson is the greatest living American, but the records show that more than four millions of people award that honor to one Theodore Roosevelt.

The Board of Trade has very wisely re-elected William Jeffery as president. He is a "live wire" and to him is due the credit of making that body a power in the community.

Cornell has the mumps—newspaper headline.

Nothing unusual for college men to get all swelled up.

Aren't the new and larger lights being placed on the poles in the business section rather too high?

Feb. 23—put that down as the date when you will attend the Board of Trade banquet.

ELKDOM'S BIG KEY ONCE AGAIN STOLEN

FELLOW-WORKERS SEE MAN KILLED ON ELIZABETH RAILS

Elizabeth, Jan. 8.—Frederick Teetsel, thirty years old, an employe in the needle department of the Singer factory, was killed in sight of scores of his fellow-workers Tuesday night on the Central Railroad tracks near the factory. He had just left work. Many shouted to Teetsel as he proceeded to cross the tracks to the north side of the factory, in order to be sure of a seat on a train about to start for Bayonne. He was tossed by an express under the trucks of the Bayonne train and was killed instantly.

PROTECT THE BOYS.

("Fighting Modern Evils that Destroy Our Homes," by Fred S. Miller, The L. W. Walter Co., Chicago, 480 pp., 32 illus., $1.50.)

By E. M. SCOTT.

How shall we protect our boys? This question has arisen repeatedly for it is the chief anxiety of the mother who sends her son from the country where life is comparatively innocent and pure, to the city where temptations lurk on every hand. In "Fighting Modern Evils," Mr. Miller has written a book which should be in the hands of every youth who starts out in the world to seek his fortune. In this work Mr. Miller has exposed not only the evils of divorce and lax marriage laws and sentiment, but has turned the searchlight of exposure on the perils of the city dance halls, the midnight evils of the saloon and the perils that confront girls in the business world.

Among the modern evils the author has classed divorce, lax marriage sentiment, foreign religious organizations that have so frequently been exposed in the newspapers, and intemperance. He has abundant facts at his command and has arranged them so that they speak with telling effect. Students of such matters will find much of value in "Modern Evils" and for the average reader there is narrative matter that will be equally interesting and effective. "The Child of Divorce" is a chapter in this interesting work in which the young daughter of a divorced and remarried mother tells of her sufferings. The great evil of divorce is thus shown to be the pain and wrong it inflicts on innocent children. Another of these narratives is "The Story of the Worthingtons," a tale of unholy love.

SAGE TEA KEEPS YOUR HAIR DARK

When Mixed With Sulphur It Brings Back Its Lustre and Abundance.

Gray hair, however handsome, denotes advancing age. We all know the advantages of a youthful appearance. Your hair is your charm. It makes or mars the face. When it fades, turns gray and looks dry, wispy and scraggly, just a few applications of Sage Tea and Sulphur enhances its appearance a hundred-fold.

Don't stay gray! Look young! Either prepare the tonic at home or get from any drug store a 50 cent bottle of "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Hair Remedy." Thousands of folks recommend this ready-to-use preparation, because it darkens the hair beautifully and removes dandruff, stops scalp itching and falling hair; besides, no one can possibly tell, as it darkens so naturally and evenly. You moisten a sponge or soft brush with it, drawing this through the hair, taking one small strand at a time. By morning the gray hair disappears; after another application or two, its natural color is restored and it becomes thick, glossy and lustrous, and you appear years younger.—Adv.

MOROS PAINTED IN THEIR TRUE COLORS BY DEAN WORCESTER

A Little Understood People. Yielding to Civilization, Wild as They Are.

Our Fearless Island Wards More Worthy of Help Than Generally Supposed.

DEAN C. WORCESTER, former secretary of the interior of the Philippine government, at a complimentary dinner given W. Cameron Forbes, former governor general of the islands, by the Philippine society and the Harmony Club of America, in New York, delivered an address of absorbing interest.

"Of the varied assortment of problems the United States acquired when it acquired the islands," said Mr. Worcester, "some have already been solved, some are in process of solution, some we have as yet hardly attacked. The Moro problem belongs in the second of these classes. I take special pleasure in speaking to you of that problem," said the speaker, "because the Harmony Club of America is taking a lively interest in promoting the welfare of the little known and even less understood Moros.

"The word Moro is a Spanish term meaning Moor. It was applied by the Spaniards to the group of peoples inhabiting the extreme southern portion of the Philippine archipelago because they are Mohammedans.

Distinct From Filipinos.

"Partly by friendly persuasion, partly by force of arms, they gained adherents to their faith, cementing them firmly together into a group of peoples which rapidly became sharply distinct from any other group in the Philippine islands and has retained its fundamental peculiarities up to the present moment. These peoples I shall hereafter refer to as 'the Moros.' Being Mohammedans, they were, of course, polygamists. They were also pirates and hunters and keepers of slaves. Like most Mohammedans, they believed in propagating their faith by the sword and put their views on this subject into effect as soon as their steadily and rapidly growing strength made it possible for them to do so.

MORO MOTHER AND CHILD.

"It was not until the fall of 1887, when General Juan Arolas took Maibun, the stronghold of the sultan, that the Spaniards were able to establish a semblance of control over the unruly Moro inhabitants of Jolo. It happens that I myself visited the island three days after Maibun was taken. It fairly swarmed with armed men who were seeking revenge for their recent losses. The Spaniards had withdrawn within their fortified town.

"When I left the Philippines in 1898 the Spaniards had not as yet succeeded in getting a foothold in the Lake Lanao district, but they did this at a later time.

"Outside of the island of Jolo the Moros showed themselves very friendly toward my American companions and myself during our sojourn in their territory in Spanish days.

Beginning of Moro Problem.

"With the downfall of Spanish sovereignty their old hostility toward the Filipinos again burst into flame. In the province of Misamis they promptly began to attack the Filipino towns. In general, throughout southern and western Mindanao those Filipinos who did not promptly make their escape were murdered or enslaved.

"From that day to this we have had a very real Moro problem on our hands. Our newly acquired Mohammedan wards were rather disposed to be friendly toward us at the outset, but unfortunately it was necessary for us quite promptly to do things which tended to arouse hostility. We could not recognize the pretensions of the sultan of Jolo to sovereign or territorial rights nor could we tolerate slavery.

"It was inevitable that armed combats should occur as a result of such conditions, and occur they did, with the result that the Moros soon learned to entertain a wholesome respect for the American soldier. With the lapse of years we have succeeded in rapidly improving conditions in many parts of the Moro territory. In some regions we have succeeded in winning the good will of the chief and of the common people as well. In other regions, such as the Lanao district and in the island of Jolo, we have not only failed to win the good will of the bulk of the Moros, but have aroused bitter hostility on the part of many of them.

"My personal experience in dealing with the people of this tribe has been limited to the island of Palawan, one of the five so called special government provinces, which came under my executive control. The Moros of this island were for the most part renegades. They had no intention of submitting to our control.

Troublesome Chief Tumai.

"At the outset we made little headway with them. When some constabulary soldiers journeying along the west coast of Palawan in a sailboat went ashore, leaving two sentries to guard their arms, their Moro boatmen treacherously murdered the sentries and sailed away with the rifles and turned them over to a dato named Tumai. The provincial governor, Lieutenant E. W. Miller, and the captain of the constabulary company concerned, with a force of constabulary soldiers, promptly attacked Tumai's town, drove him out of it, followed him into the mountains, where he sought refuge, attacked him again and recovered nearly all of the guns. Tumai promised to behave, but with the lapse of time grew troublesome, and later, when Governor Miller landed to hunt near his place, surrounded him with a strong force of armed men. The governor narrowly escaped losing his life.

"Availing himself of his right under the law to compel members of non-Christian tribes to take up their residence at a designated place if such a course became necessary to the proper maintenance of law and order, Governor Miller then ordered Tumai to take his people and settle among the comparatively friendly Moros along the east coast. This Tumai promised to do within a couple of weeks, but he failed to keep his promise. On his way back to the provincial capital Governor Miller was drowned.

"When I visited Tumai's country a few weeks later in company with a newly appointed governor the Moros mistook me and my party for Governor Miller and a squad of soldiers and prepared to ambush us. When they discovered their mistake it was too late for them to readjust their plans, but they attacked nevertheless, and for the first and last time in my eighteen years of dealing with Philippine wild tribes I was forced to allow my escort to fire. After the resulting unpleasantness eleven Moros, who had been disarmed and compelled to sit down during the fight, were set at liberty after having their weapons returned to them and were directed to inform Tumai, who was not himself present, as to what had occurred and to direct him to come to the east coast and explain the conduct of his people. Tumai started to come, but two other recalcitrant chiefs advised him to fight the Americans, and he decided to do so.

"The soldiers sent at my request to bring him to time had strict orders not to fire except in self defense, with the result that it took longer to get Tumai than would otherwise have been the case. Ultimately all of the Moros on the west coast were transferred to sanitary sites on the east coast. They were given building materials and assisted to erect new houses and were furnished abundant food meanwhile.

A Surprising Demonstration.

"The policy of assisting these people was steadily adhered to, and a year later when I visited my quondam enemies I was carried ashore in a chair over which had been thrown a piece of purple brocade, while two strapping warriors contended with each other for the honor of protecting my delicate complexion from the sun with huge umbrellas. A dancing pavilion had been erected near the beach, and, wonder of wonders, the wives of the principal Moros were there awaiting our arrival. Hadji Mohammed, one of the ranking chiefs, had told them that women elsewhere in the world were becoming progressive and that the Moro women should follow their example. The poor creatures were frightened almost to death and kept their faces covered for the most part, occasionally stealing furtive glances at us, evidently half enjoying and half frightened over their new privileges.

"Finally, to our great amazement, the Moro chiefs themselves sat down with us at a dinner given in our honor and ate from the same dishes with us. So far as I know, this occurrence was unprecedented. A Mohammedan may not eat with a Christian, nor may he use dishes which a Christian has defiled.

"On this occasion I found that Dato Tumai had built for himself with his own hands the largest and best house at Bonabona and was cultivating a larger piece of land than was any other Moro on the islands and setting a good example to the people. All in all, it seems that our plans for the betterment of the Moros at Palawan are beginning to bear fruit.

"It is my personal opinion that the lack of uniformity observable in the results obtained in dealing with the people in the different parts of the Moro province is chiefly due to the frequent changes which have been made in the men through whom governmental control has been exercised. Heretofore the district governors have almost invariably been army officers or constabulary officers. The Moro knows nothing of policies, but understands individuals uncommonly well, and in dealing with him the personal equation is of vital importance.

"Mind you, I do not mean to suggest that the way to deal with wild men is to throw kisses at them. They sometimes transgress recklessly, and they sometimes need to be punished with severity, but it is fundamentally necessary to success that when they have had enough and show a willingness to do the right thing they should be trusted and encouraged to keep their word. Troops must still be kept in the Moro country, but they should not be sent into the field except in case of some real necessity.

TYPICAL MORO WARRIOR.

A People Worth Developing.

"It is my firm belief that in the Moros we have excellent material on which to build. I have known one of these indomitable fighters, with both legs broken and his body pierced repeatedly by rifle bullets, to drag himself forward by his hands, holding his creese between his teeth, in the hope of getting near enough the enemy to strike one more blow for the prophet. We are accustomed, in speaking of backward peoples, to call such courage fanatical, and I feel that I myself have offended in this regard. If an American were to display such splendid valor in fighting for his country or his God we should call it indomitable.

"My own experience in dealing with primitive tribes has not been small, and I want to say to you that I would a thousand times rather undertake to better the condition of a race of determined fighters who take a hand in shaping their own destiny than seek to help the people of a broken spirited, discouraged tribe who fold their hands and leave their fate to divine Providence."

It is into this wild region which Dean C. Worcester so graphically describes that Mrs. Lorillard Spencer, a wealthy New York woman, and Miss Virginia Young, for many years deaconess of St. George's Protestant Episcopal church, New York, have gone in the hope of there planting the doctrine of Christianity.

HUCKLEBERRY FINN AND TINY TIM FIGHT IT OUT.

The respective merits of Charles Dickens and Mark Twain led to a fight in New York between two small boys, Louis Mangle of Water street and Abraham Hershlein of Cherry street, in which Hershlein was stabbed four times in the thigh.

News Films of the Passing Show

A dozen hens carried into an abandoned mine near Pineville, Ky., by outlaws supplied fresh food and balked a posse.

Coroner Peter N. Hoffman of Chicago made a New Year's resolution to "save 1,000 lives in 1914." Through a public safety campaign he expects to lessen the number of Chicago accidents.

The mother-in-law is held up as a maligned person by Chicago's court of domestic relations. Only 6 per cent of the divorce and other marital cases brought before the court in 1913 could be blamed on her.

Two sons of A. J. Porter of International Falls, Minn., attend a school eight miles away and ride that distance each day, leaving home at 6 o'clock and getting back not much before that hour at night.

FAMOUS ARMY AND NAVY OFFICERS WILL RETIRE.

The New Year to Be Marked by Many Important Changes.

Seventeen of the best known officers of the army, the navy and the marine corps will retire from active service, under the age limit, in 1914.

Of the naval retirements the most important are those of Rear Admirals William H. Southerland, Charles E. Vreeland, Vincendon L. Cottman, Reginald F. Nicholson and William N. Little, Pay Director William W. Galt and Medical Director Frank Anderson. Admiral Nicholson is commander in chief of the Asiatic fleet, but is soon to relinquish that command to Rear Admiral Thomas B. Howard.

Admirals Southerland and Vreeland are both members of the naval general board, of which board Admiral Dewey is the president, while Admiral Cottman is commandant of the Puget sound navy yard. Admiral Little is on duty as inspector of the government ship construction work at the Fore River (Mass.) yards. Medical director Anderson is president of the naval examining board in Washington, and Pay Director Galt is at the head of the pay department at the navy yard in Norfolk, Va.

When Major General William P. Biddle, the commandant of the marine corps, leaves the service, the president will have the naming of his successor. In the army the best known of the officers who will retire is Major General William W. Wotherspoon. The brigadiers who will retire will be George Andrews, who is the adjutant general, and Ramsay D. Potts, the commanding officer at Vancouver barracks. The colonels who retire under the age limit are John T. Van Orsdale, Seventeenth infantry; Colonel Alfred C. Sharpe, instructor of the Ohio national guard; Colonel Frank West, Second cavalry; Charles A. P. Hatfield, Thirteenth cavalry, and Colonel Henry P. Kingsbury of the inspector general's department in Washington.

DIES TO HELP SCIENCE.

Will of Suicide Asks Surgeons to Seek Cause For Criminal Bent.

Bequeathing his body to surgery that dissection might indicate why his life had been directed toward crime, John Kowinski, better known as Kelter, of 1053 Washington boulevard, Chicago, leaped from the eighteenth floor of the Masonic temple and was crushed to death on the "safety screen" nine floors below.

His object appears to have been missed, for the body was so crushed that its use for dissection is undesirable, surgeons state.

The man left what be termed a "life confession," which referred to twenty-six months in prison and an unwillingness to prolong life by robbery, which Kelter termed his profession, and a will authorizing the American College of Surgeons, Rush Medical college and the Jenner Medical college to dissect the body "in order that it may be discovered how such types were produced, by heredity or environment or a combination of both, trying to aid in alleviating others from their suffering."

LITTLE TALKS BY THE WANT AD MAN

Copyright, 1913, The Int. Syndicate, Baltimore.

No. 47.

LOOKING for board? There are two ways of finding it. Way 1: Tramp around town until you're ready to drop. Way 2: Read the "Boarding" column on the Classified page.

Surely, among the places advertised you can find some place agreeable to you as to location, terms, etc.

And when you see that place advertised, you can go straight to it. You save time, temper, fatigue, energy and perhaps carfare.

At various times you will find advertised rooms with table board, rooms without board, board without rooms, board in private families, in hotels, in boarding houses; single rooms or en suite; with steam heat and without it; on car lines and off them.

You will find just about what you want. The cost to you will be the few minutes consumed in reading the "Boarding" ads.

Pretty handy department to have around when you need it.

Children and Economy.

A spirit of extravagance is abroad today which has both its bad and good sides. The old-fashioned miser is rare—the sort who kept his or her money tied up in a stocking; and that is a good thing. People are willing to spend more for the preservation of their own and others' health and comfort than they used to be willing to spend, and that is another good thing.

One of the bad sides of this spirit of extravagance is the wastefulness and actual disregard for values of children.

The children can hardly be blamed. It is small wonder that a child pulls his toys to pieces and even throws them away or burns them when he hears his mother say to a friend:

"Yes, of course those stone blocks do cost something, but Johnny gets so much happiness from throwing them in the brook that I haven't the heart to stop him." Or perhaps she says: "Yes, I know Jane shouldn't tear that Irish lace on her frock, but I hate to trouble her happiness with thoughts about clothes."

Inexpensive Happiness.

We all of us agree with Jane's mother and with Johnny's that children should not be made unhappy when we can help it. But children are quite as happy when they are not extravagant as when they are.

Johnny would have quite as much fun throwing stones from the garden into the brook as he has throwing stone blocks; and small Jane would be happier in a frock trimmed with cheaper lace or trimmed with no lace at all.

And later on, when Johnny and Jane began to grow up and had to take their place in the world, perhaps had to earn their place, they would bless their mothers for teaching them to get happiness without extravagance.

The lesson taught to children should be of wider scope than this. It should also show them the real value of things. They should learn to handle expensive things without destroying them and they should learn the value of these things.

But for their everyday, happy playtime they should be unhampered with things that cost so much money that they breed the spirit of extravagance.

Practical Fashion Hints

By Alice Gibson

7968

The peg-top is by far the most popular skirt model this season. It gives the modish wide waist and hip and does not make one look short and cut off as would at first be inferred. The lines are long and the folds are laid in gracefully about the waist.

No 7968 is a four-piece model with a slightly raised waist-line and a broad lapped seam down the center front and back.

The thick, light weight wool materials, velours, duvetyns and velveteens lend themselves very well to this style of draping.

With a skirt of this description it is well to make all the necessary changes, in fact completely finish the upper part of the skirt before turning the hem. I have found that much trouble is saved if after turning up and basting the hem it is pressed flat before stitching on the machine (if this is done) or hemming by hand. For a hand finished hem I find the short cat stitch practical and neat. This skirt will require for size 24 2⅞ yards of 42 inch material.

The pattern is cut in 5 sizes: 22 to 30.

This Is a Perfect Pattern.

Be sure to state right size, passing the tape tightly around the smallest part of the waist and loosely around the widest part of the hips.

It may be obtained by filling out the coupon and enclosing 15 cents in stamps or coin to the Pattern Department of this paper.

Two Eggless Recipes.

Cabbage or Salad Dressing.—Melt in a double boiler one generous tablespoonful of butter. Add to it one tablespoonful of flour, one teaspoonful of sugar, one-half teaspoonful of made mustard, three dashes of paprika, one-quarter teaspoonful of salt, white pepper to taste. When these are well blended add slowly, stirring constantly to avoid lumps, one-half pint of boiling water and three drops of Worcestershire sauce. Continue stirring until thick. Cook five minutes; if too thick put in a little more water. Should the dressing be for cold slaw pour it while hot over finely shredded cabbage; if for salads use when cold.

Surprise Molasses Cake.—Put into a deep agate pan one-half pint of baking molasses, two generous tablespoonfuls of sweet lard, the grated rind of one orange, one-quarter teaspoonful of salt and one small teaspoonful of baking soda. Put these on the fire for two minutes to melt; remove, beat for two minutes; pour in one gill of boiling water, stir up and add one pint good measure of sifted flour, beat long enough to remove lumps. Grease twelve large muffin pans and put in batter, which will seem thin; bake twenty minutes in a brisk oven; take care that it does not burn.

Homemade Kitchen Cupboard.

A good many small kitchens have not enough cupboard space, and the housekeeper often wishes it were possible to make a small cupboard at home. To do so purchase from your grocer a cracker box with a hinged cover, put on strong hinges in place of tin ones and a fastener for front of the door, stand the box on end and put two shelves, leaving space on top shelf for spices in boxes. Have the middle shelf just deep enough for tapioca, cornstarch, raisins, cereals, etc. That will leave the bottom shelf quite deep. You can put jars in for rice, split peas, etc. Don't have shelves come quite to the edge of the box. Put the hook on the inside of door for a cookbook. Put hooks on outside of closet for scissors, can opener, etc. Paint the outside of closet or cover with oilcloth.

MEATS EN CASSEROLE.

DINNER MENU.
Oyster Soup With Crackers.
Beef en Casserole.
Stuffed Baked Potatoes.
Creamed Beets.
Vegetable Salad.
Lemon Pie.
Coffee.

WHEN considering ways to economize let your thoughts turn thriftily to the casserole dish, for in it cuts of meat so tough that they cannot be cooked to advantage in other ways may be served in tender and appetizing forms.

Nice For Luncheon.

Lambs' Hearts en Casserole.—After cleaning the hearts stuff them with breadcrumbs, a little parsley, thyme and onion juice and brown them in bacon fat or dripping. Place in the casserole with enough brown gravy to cover, add a chopped tomato, a few green peas, a sliced carrot and a small diced cucumber. Cook in a slow oven about an hour.

A Savory Viand.

Pigeon en Casserole.—Take two pigeons, one-half pound bacon, one-half pound beefsteak, salt and pepper, one onion stuck with two cloves, one-quarter teaspoonful nutmeg, one blade mace, one carrot and turnip with boiling water to cover. Divide the pigeons in halves, cut up the bacon and beef, place the vegetables in the bottom of a casserole dish and the pigeons, beef and bacon on top. Add the seasonings and pour over the boiling water to cover. Allow to stew for one and a half hours. Thicken the gravy with a teaspoonful of flour and water.

Making Beef Tender.

Beef en Casserole.—Take two pounds shinbone, two cupfuls carrots, one-half cupful onion, one cupful celery, one teaspoonful salt, one-eighth teaspoonful white pepper and one tablespoonful flour. Cut the meat from the bone in small pieces and remove the marrow from the bone. Put part of the marrow into the bottom of a casserole, then half the meat, half the vegetables, the rest of the meat, seasoning and the marrow over top. Cover and put in a hot oven twenty minutes. Then add one cupful boiling water, cover, reduce the heat and let bake slowly two and one-half hours, or until tender. Once or twice water must be added. When the meat is tender add the flour, which has been mixed with a little cold water.

Daddy's Bedtime Story—The Rescue Of the Canary Bird.

She Watched the Bird With a Smile.

"I AM going to tell you a really true story," said daddy, "something which happened today. I was walking along a rather poor part of the city when I saw a number of children gathered in a group in a little side yard of a tenement house. The children were screaming to one boy: 'Oh, catch him! Don't let the awful cat get him!'"

"Oh, was it a bird?" asked Jack eagerly.

"Yes," replied daddy; "it was a bird, but not just the usual kind of bird that is seen around city streets, for only the sparrows like the noise of a city. Most birds like the woods and the country, where they can have homes in the trees and can sing all day long.

"But this was a tame yellow canary who had flown out of an open window to pick up some goodie he saw on the ground, and a cat was after him."

"Did they get him from the cat?" asked Evelyn eagerly, for she was devoted to animals and perhaps especially to birds.

"Yes," answered daddy; "the little boy succeeded in rescuing him, but the poor canary had been so frightened that his little heart was beating, oh, so fast, and the children were afraid he was not going to live.

"They all followed the little boy who had caught the canary just in time into the tenement house. The cat had knocked several feathers from the bird's tail.

"Another child told me the canary belonged to a little girl who lived in the tenement. He asked me to follow, too, for he said that the little girl had trouble with her back and had to lie flat all the time. She loved visitors, for so much of the time she was lonely. Her mother was poor and out all day sewing, so the little girl's chief companion was the canary, who would sing for hours and hours. He seemed to know he must keep her cheered up.

"So along I went too. We climbed some stairs until we came to a dingy room where on a cot by the window lay a little girl about eight years old. She had big dark eyes, and when I saw her her cheeks were bright red from all the excitement.

"All her friends had gathered around, each giving her a special description of how the bird had been rescued. She was smiling with joy and watching the bird, who was now busily engaged nibbling at a little piece of apple which had been given him. Before long he began to sing, oh, so joyously, for he knew he was once more back in his happy home where he would take good care to stay in the future.

"I told the little girl of my Jack and Evelyn, and she said she wanted to see you both. Shall we all go to see her and her little bird some day?"

"We'd love to!" cried Jack and Evelyn delightedly.

Rose is the name of the smiling little lady in the picture. Not satisfied with just an ordinary photograph, she posed with her face close up against a mirror so that two portraits were made at one snap of the camera. In fact, it is a double faced girl that we see. Not by any means is Rose two faced, however. She is honesty and simplicity itself. It is only on very rare occasions that she wears any other than a sweetly smiling expression. Sometimes—we are glad to say that it happens very seldom—when things don't go just right she has just a little bit of a frown on her face. But that quickly goes, and Rose is smiling again. Her full name is Rose Murphy, and she lives in Brooklyn. Rose is just three years old.

A Little Girl's Composition.

There was once a little girl who wished to write a composition. At least she didn't wish to, but she could not help it, because her teacher said a composition was to be written. The little girl got out all her pencils and sharpened them carefully and ruled neat margins down the side of her paper and then gave a great deep sigh and looked out of the window.

"I don't know what to write about," she said, just as you and every other child has said a hundred times. And her mother said, "Write about what you see."

"I see the willow tree," said the little girl, "but I can't write much about that. Well, perhaps I can start with it."

So she looked hard at the willow tree and wrote a line about how she loved it because she had always climbed in it ever since the beginning of time. And she wrote another line or two about how bright the leaves looked where the sun touched them and how gray they looked in the shadow, and then she told how the wind made them sway like long fringe. And she told about how dark the trunk was back of the leaves, and how it bumped out curiously in places where straight willow stalks shot up, and about the grasses that grew around the foot. And she was just finishing a description of how it looked in the rain when her mother, who had gone out, came back and asked how the composition was getting on.

"Why, it is all done," said the little girl. "And I don't think I'll ever be afraid of compositions any more. Next time I'll write about the apple tree."

The Blue Grotto.

The Blue grotto is a famous cave on the island of Capri, near Naples. It is about 170 feet long, 100 wide and 40 high, and is reached from the sea by a narrow arch in the limestone cliff. The water within resembles, according to one eyewitness, "liquid sapphire" and glitters with a pale blue light.

Walls and roof of the Blue grotto are ultramarine in color.

The general blue tone of the place is said to be caused by the reflection of the sun's rays in passing through the water in the cave.

The opening of the grotto is so exceedingly small that the light which enters must first pass through the waters.

A stay of at least twenty minutes is necessary to accustom oneself to the light in the Blue grotto.

Dunderberg.

The word means "thunder mountain" and is the name of a mountain on the Hudson river at the entrance to the Highlands, opposite to Anthony's Nose. According to a legend, the mountain was in the keeping of a "little bulbous bottomed Dutch goblin in trunk hose and a sugar loaf hat." He had charge of the thunderstorms in the vicinity, and in consequence the skippers for a long time lowered their peaks while passing Dunderberg. Washington Irving says, "It was observed that all such as paid this tribute of respect were suffered to pass unmolested."

A Riddle.

(Try to guess me before you look at the answer.)

I'm round though not quite as round as a ball
I grow on a tree or not at all.
My head is yellow; my cheeks are pink.
You'd like a bite of me, I think.

MABEL'S CHITCHAT

The Self Satisfied Woman and Her Long Suffering Public.

TOO MUCH EGO BAD DISEASE.

A Real Live Poet and a Word About His Charming Personality—The Fascination That Lies In a Low Pitched Musical Speaking Voice.

Dear Elsa—I have just been talking to one of the most self satisfied women it has ever been my misfortune to meet. This visitor of mine is so perfectly delighted with everything she does and says and has and is so sure of herself that one feels like giving her a good shake to get some of the smugness out of her system.

Always to feel contented with oneself must indeed be a pleasant sensation for the person concerned, but it surely is an affliction for the rest of mankind.

Now, dear, don't misunderstand me and jump to the conclusion that I consider all self assured people to be suffering from an enlargement of the cranium. But you will admit that this exaggerated complacency is a very common form of the diseased ego.

Not long ago I read somewhere that education would broaden a narrow mind, but there was no remedy for a swelled head. Certainly some philosopher said that. It sounds like one of Pudd'nhead Wilson's sage remarks, but possibly I read it on the calendar you sent me Christmas. How I do love the calendar that doles out wisdom by the day, just enough for one to digest well!

To come back to my text, the man who makes himself heard, whether one wants to listen to him or not, may be a bore, but none the less one admires in an irritated way his very persistence and his ability to gain one's attention. But we women don't feel the same tolerance for one of our own sex who "butts in" on every occasion, in and out of season. We dub her just plain rude or "nervy," and very often both epithets are used.

But I do think a certain amount of worldly assurance the best asset in this life. It makes a person more agreeable, more sought after and more appreciated. Any one who can act well his part in the give and take of social affairs is bound to be more popular than the shy, self effacing person. The beautiful, flowerlike, modest type "born to blush unseen"—where is she nowadays? Surely she's not in evidence in this most rushing of all rushing centuries.

But, talking of people, I saw a real person yesterday, Alfred Noyes, the English poet. My ideas of the physical appearance of a bard were all knocked in the head by this short haired, muscular, wholesome, outdoors looking young man who was as genuine and true in his outlook upon life as in appearance. And this is one of the reasons why his verse and personality are so popular in this country among young persons, especially men.

Margaret D.'s son, a senior at Yale, told me when he was home for the holidays that "Alfred Noyes and his poetry" was the theme for the prize essay in English this year at the university.

He—Alfred Noyes, I mean—reads exquisitely, and as I heard him talk about "Tennyson" he had a fine opportunity in the verse of this great master to exercise his talent. After he had recited "Crossing the Bar" there was hardly a dry eye in the room. But I must stop making such a noise about Alfred, otherwise you'll think me a bore.

Speaking of voices, how seldom one hears the sweet, low affair of fiction! The other day several women and myself were talking about a certain debutante who despite her lack of good looks was carrying all before her in the social world.

"What I like about her," said a man who joined us, "is her voice. It reminds me of the purring of a cat." His simile was correct. The girl's voice was very low pitched and came from the back of her throat in a soft, husky sound, and its fascination was undeniable.

I am going to be very learned and tell you what Rochefoucauld says about the voice: "There is more eloquence in the tones of the voice than in the choice of words." And I do think he proclaims a real truth.

A delightful story of a speaking voice was told to me recently, a voice that could not be bought for gold. It belonged to a hardworking little servant, a chambermaid in a great house, whose speaking voice was so wonderfully sweet as to provoke comment by all who heard her talk.

Her mistress particularly admired its quality and one day sent for the girl to come and speak to the teacher who was giving her daughter elocution lessons.

"There," she said, "I want you to teach my daughter to speak like that." "Alas, madam," the teacher responded sadly, "that is impossible. No man can teach that. Those are neither chest nor throat notes. They come from the heart."

Now, I am tiring you, Elsa, dear, in the most heartless manner with this twaddle, so goodby, ma cherie. Devotedly. MABEL.

A Delicious Omelet.

The secret of an especially delicious omelet served in a certain home came to light the other day. More yolks than whites are used, and a little rich cream goes in when it is to be plain or is to be seasoned with cheese.

Old English Alphabet, Suitable for Marking Gifts.

An initial or monogram embroidered on an article not only makes it attractive, but gives a personal touch which is greatly appreciated, and yet, requires such a short time to embroider, that it may be done at the last minute.

This old English alphabet may be used for marking many pretty things *for your friends. They come in one-*inch, two-inch and three-inch sizes. A complete alphabet of any one size in a pattern.

The one-inch letters are appropriate for use on guest-towels, small bags, underwear, doilies, tray-cloths and platter-cloths as well as fancy articles. The two-inch sizes are for marking large towels, centerpieces, sideboard-covers and bureau-scarfs, and the three-inch size, for luncheon cloths, tea-cloths, pillow-cases or shams, bath towels and bags.

Although solid work is the usual method employed in developing these initials, they may be carried out in rope-stitch or outline and seed-stitch.

The placing of an initial on small linens is determined largely by the shape and finish of the particular piece. On square centerpieces and plate-doilies, the letters are usually placed in one corner, while on round linens, they are stamped in the center, or near the edge; on a bureau-scarf, they may be at one end, or two inches from the hem at the center of the scarf. Pillow-cases should be marked at the center of or an end, two inches from the hem or scallops. Towels, if finished with hemstitching, may be worked one inch from the top of the hem.

Pattern number 14140, will be supplied to readers of the Daily Press for ten cents.

North Plainfield High School Met Waterloo on Passaic Court Yesterday.

RIVALS RAN AWAY

Final Score 36 to 13—Visiting Clan Never Had a Lookin With Speedy Passaic Scrappers—Defeat Follows Long String of Wins.

The North Plainfield High School basketball team met its first defeat at Passaic yesterday afternoon when the High School team of that place won a decisive victory by the score of 36 to 13. Although the home team tallied many times and the final score was large, the game was of an interesting nature being fast and featured by many fouls. The local boys were not in the running at any stage of the game and the exceedingly large court made their showing even worse.

Passaic drew first blood and scored two field goals in quick succession, while "Husky" Love dropped a foul for North Plainfield. For a long time the score remained 4 to 1 and then the home team played with signals to perfection. To the crowd, overhead and underfoot, shots were nothing out of the ordinary and they hardly stirred when Walker scored a beautiful shot while facing his opponents' basket. The home team also played "protection rules" which allowed a player many privileges that the "Canadians" considered fouls and this accounted for many free shots. For the local team Dunning was the only one to secure a field goal in this period and Love secured three points from the foul line. The half ended 23 to 5.

In the second half the boroughites were erratic and missed many free shots that would have increased their end of the score. The local center scored first in this half but the home team again and again worked the ball the whole length of the floor for a basket. Love scored a field goal and two more fouls in this half and Abrams played a fine defensive game at guard. All of the home team men figured in the scoring except Schutting. McLean and Walker each rang up a half dozen field goals. Banks also tallied a pair.

Newark bowlers, who dropped three games in a row on the Jersey City team's alleys last night, have fallen from first place in the Elks' League, the Hudson county quintet now occupying the position formerly occupied by the Newark experts. The New Brunswick team is also threatening the Newarks, being only one game each way behind.

There was some classy pinning and excellent competition last night in Jersey City. The Jersey City five started with 910 and finished fifty-one pins ahead. In the next encounter the home five dropped to 888, but the visitors failed to take advantage of the opportunity and a score of 852 was insufficient by thirty-six pins. In the last game the Newarks did their best work with a score of 901.

The Jersey City five, however, also rolled its best and tallied 953. Conie Leick did some fine pinning for the Newarkers in the last game, coming through for a mark of 236. He had an average of 201-2 for the match. Corydon did sensational work at anchor for the home five, rolling 236 and 201. His average was 202. Russell was there for 219. The scores:

Boro Freshies Might Better Have Lined up Against Original Opponents.

Because only four of their players appeared on the scene, the Marathon A. C. basketball team, which was to play the North Plainfield High School Freshmen team in Saengerbund Hall, yesterday afternoon, could not take the floor. The Freshies then took on the Sophomores and were walloped by the score of 68 to 16.

The first half ended 34 to 13 and the second period was worse than the first, the Freshmen being able to do nothing to break up the passing and shooting of their opponents. Martin McDonough, playing guard for the Sophs, hung up a total of thirteen field goals during the game. This equals the school record for individual score this year made by a first team man. John Dawe, the midget forward of the winners, scored a half dozen of the two point class, while Doty tallied one-half of the Freshmen's total score.

IF YOU HEED THESE DONT'S YOU WILL SOME DAY BE A PINNER.

Don't exert yourself. Take it easy. A slow, accurate ball is better than a swift wild one.

Don't quit bowling on account of a sore finger. You have other fingers on the same hand.

Don't roll the ball down the alley when there is a ball in the pit.

Don't use a whole grip if you have a small hand, or too narrow for a big hand.

Don't use chalk on your shoes. It not only cracks the leather, but leaves the runway in bad condition for whoever follows you.

Don't expect alleys owners to change everything to suit you. There are others to satisfy.

Don't be superstitious—thirteen is a better start than twelve.

Don't think it necessary to be a Sandow. Many lightweights bowl well.

Don't bring suit against the publisher if you find your score or average printed wrong. It is possible some one else has made the mistake.

Don't get discouraged—you can learn.

Don't tell anyone what you are going to do. Wait till after the game and tell them what you did do.

To those who are just beginning to take up the sport it might be said that if all these "dont's" are obeyed they will be good bowlers—after they have practiced assiduously for about five or ten years.

Arberg, the "Fiery Finn," Throwing With Crotch Hold

THE wrestling of Arberg, the big Finland champion, has been attracting wide attention. That he will prove a dangerous opponent for Gotch, Dr. Roller, Zbysco or any other of the big fellows is admitted by experts that have seen him work. In the illustration Arberg is shown throwing an opponent by means of a crotch hold.

He stands almost six feet in height, weighs over 200 pounds and has been termed the "Fiery Finn" owing to his very aggressive tactics.

NETHERWOOD LOST BY POOR SHOOTING

Scotch Plains Seconds Won Close Encounter on Parish House Court.

In a game of basketball in which the visiting five lost many chances of winning through bad shooting, the Netherwoods were defeated on the Scotch Plains Parish House court last night by the second team of that place by a score of 29 to 22. They were beaten by the same team last Saturday by nearly the same score—28 to 21.

Coughlan starred for Netherwood on the defensive as well as in the shooting line. Marston excelled in the shooting for the Plains, garnering ten points with K. Saunders, Hall and G. Saunders tied at six apiece.

NECCOS TROUNCED BY GRACE CHURCH

Schoolboy Quintet No Match for Fast Traveling Church Boys.

The Grace Church boys' basketball team walloped the Necco Five, of the Plainfield High School, to the tune of 45 to 16 on the church court last night, leading the way from start to finish and putting the ball through the ring at regular intervals. A total of twenty-two field goals went to the victors.

Fast team work and a number of sensational shots from difficult angles gave the Grace quintet the verdict. Many substitutes were used by the church captain after his team had totaled up a winning lead and the game was interrupted frequently for the reception of new material.

"PRO" TEAM CALLS OFF ENGAGEMENT

St. James' Triangles Will Probably Not Appear in Scotch Plains This Year.

Supervisor William Batterson, of the Scotch Plains Parish House, added another postponement to his long string last night, when the St. James Triangles failed to put in an appearance for their scheduled game with the 'Plains crew. Manager Marston, of the Parish House five, scouted around Plainfield and North Plainfield in an endeavor to secure a substitute after he was informed by the St. James' manager that the Jersey City team would be unable to play, but his efforts were futile and the large crowd of basketball followers who were present at the 'Plains rendezvous anticipating a contest, went away disappointed.

No less than a dozen cancellations have been received by Batterson during the present season and time after time the fans who went to the Parish House in anticipation of seeing a first team game have had to be content with watching the performance of the second squad, which has been more lucky in its bookings. Last night the second string men played a fine exhibition with the Netherwood team and this furnished some entertainment for those who went to the 'Plains expecting to see the leaguers perform.

It seems improbable that the St James' crew will appear at the Parish house at all as this team has its time pretty well filled up with league engagements and a trip to the 'Plains would be a needlessness expenditure, as the guarantee they would receive for playing in this section would not be sufficient to pay the players' salaries.

P. H. S. HAD MANY CHANCES TO WIN

Final Punch Was Missing, However, and the Morristown Five Won Out.

The Plainfield High School boys' basketball team played its first game on the home court yesterday afternoon and suffered defeat at the hands of the Morristown High School quintet by the score of 31 to 24. The game was fast and exciting throughout, although the Plainfield boys' team-work was inferior to that of the visitors. When the whistle blew ending the first half the Morristown team led by the score of 18 to 12.

With the beginning of the second half the team work of the locals grew better and at one time the score was 22 to 20 in Morristown's favor, but Plainfield was not strong enough to overcome its opponent's lead and the game ended with Morristown on top, 31 to 24.

CHALLENGERS GAVE UP THREE MATCHES

Watchung Council Pinners Dispose of Somerset County Rivals.

Following a challenge issued by Somerset Council, No. 1432, of Somerville, the bowling team of that lodge and of the Watchung Council, Knights of Columbus, of this city, met on the local alleys last night and the Plainfielders hung up three scalps in quick succession. Excellent pinning in all three contests, one of which soared to 910 was responsible for the Plainfielders' verdict. George Taylor was high man for the evening with a marke of 214 established in the second game, while the visitors had a trio of double centuries credited to Wall, McCartney and Stack.

FRANK RBUGGY IS IN A SLUMP WITH 1221 POINTS

Frank Bruggy, left fielder for the Plainfield baseball team last season, who is playing with the Gloversville team in the New York State Basketball League, has fallen off considerably in the shooting department during the last few games.

A short time ago Bruggy was up with the leaders, holding down second place in the individual standings, but now he has sunk to twenty-fourth place. He has been a participant in thirty-three games in which he has totaled 1,221 points. Not so bad at that.

SCOTCH PLAINS GIRLS' GAME HAS BEEN CANCELLED

Another cancellation for Scotch Plains basketball teams was announced this morning, when it was learned that the girls' team engagement scheduled for tomorrow night with the Angora Five, of Newark, has been called off.

NO RETURN GAME.

Following the drubbing experienced at Passaic yesterday afternoon, by the North Plainfield High School basketball team, Manager VanMater, of the boroughites, was reluctant to sign up a return match with the speedy conquerors and it is not likely that the Passaic quintet will appear at Saengerbund Hall this season.

HARNESS HORSE GAME IMPROVES

Trotting and Pacing Aided by the Thoroughbred Decline.

STRIKING RACES OF 1913.

Analysis of Doings of the Last Season Shows High Class Performances, Especially by Young Horses—A Promising Outlook For 1914—Notes of the Turf.

There has been a marked increase in light harness sport during the last three or four years, and the present indications point to a speedy return to its former popularity. With the temporary abandonment of thoroughbred racing, there was a return to the trotter and pacer. Several new tracks were put into operation during the past year, and the attendance at the grand circuit meetings showed a marked improvement. Not only have the number of meetings increased, but the breed of horses is improving, and this was demonstrated by the number of new records established last summer.

The recent sales show that the interest is not confined to professional racing, as many of the horses bought will be used for amateur purposes. There was a great demand for horses, especially fast ones, and the unusually high average obtained makes it certain that the revival has come to stay.

There was a general uniformity of time made on the grand circuit tracks last season, and, while Uhlan's mark was not approached, the records made by the two and three year olds lead to the conclusion that many of the existing marks are in danger of being lowered this year. The list of entries for the futurity events and the promises of support from the owners of trotters and pacers indicate a successful season in 1914.

Liberal Purses at Country Fairs.

The Metropolitan tracks will be kept busy next summer, and many race meetings are planned. The great country fairs are splendid auxiliaries for light harness racing, and the liberal purses offered do much to bring out good horses.

The National Trotting association has kept up its praiseworthy efforts to keep the races clean. The severe punishment meted out to offenders has contributed to the general welfare of light harness sport, and with a continuation of these efforts, together with the support of the sport loving public, the year 1914 should be the greatest in trotting history.

The sensational performances by young trotters furnished an interesting feature for followers of the light harness sport during the past season. The grand circuit racing was of the highest class and furnished many wonderful performances by trotters and pacers of all ages, but the breeders of light harness horses were particularly enthusiastic over the way the young trotters smashed records.

A world's record was hung up by Peter Volo, by Peter the Great, which placed the two-year-old record for trotters at 2 minutes 4¼ seconds. Previous to this performance the record for two-year-old trotters was 2 minutes 7¾ seconds, made by Native Belle, by Moko, in 1909.

Fast Mile by Young Trotter.

The fastest mile by a three-year-old trotter was the 2 minute 5¾ seconds by Don Chenault, a son of Peter O'Donna, and while this was a full second behind the world's record made by Colorado E., by The Bondsman, in 1910, it is considered a great performance and stamped Don Chenault as a very promising candidate for the stallion championship.

In the four-year-old division the mile in 2 minutes 6¼ seconds by Rhythmell, a filly by Rhythmic, was the fastest of the year for trotters at that age. The world's record is 2 minutes 4¾ seconds, held by Joan, b. f., by Directum Spier, made in 1910.

Although the year 1913 produced several fast trotting colts, the world's record for trotting stallions was not molested. The Harvester, b. c., by Walnut Hall, set this mark at 2:01 in an exhibition against time in 1910, and the best he could do in an attempt to beat this record in 1911 was 2:03, also against time. In 1912 Billy Burke, by Silent Brook, set the season's record at 2:03¼ in a race, and this year the honors for the fastest time for stallions is divided by Anvil, b. h., by St. Valient Vincent, and Lord Dewey, b. h., by Admiral Dewey, both trotting in 2:03¾. Anvil's mile was trotted in a race and Lord Dewey's against time.

Durfee's Able Work.

Will Durfee has given seven trotters records of 2:10 or better. These are Helen Stiles, 2:06¾; Mauriceo, 3, 2:07¾; Carlokin, 2:07½; Zomalto, 2:08¼; Alba loma, 2:09; Del Coronado, 2:09½, and Doc Book, 2:10. He has also marked the sidewheelers, Copa de Oro, 2:01 and Don Pronto, 2:02¼.

John R. Thompson of Chicago, owner of Solon Grattan, 2:09½; Azoff 2:14¼, and other fast ones, was the leading winner in the light horse classes at the last horse show held in Chicago. In the competition he got six firsts, two seconds and two thirds. Pabst stock farm of Milwaukee, Wis., was his strongest competitor.

Dan McEwan, the well known Canadian trainer, who brought out The Eel, 2:02¼, and many other fast pacing performers, was quite seriously injured recently at Queen's park, London, Ont. A horse which was jogging reared and fell back, catching the reinsman underneath and injuring him so severely that it will be necessary for him to be confined to his home for some time.

New Brunswick, Jan. 8.—A double funeral will be held tomorrow from 23 Bayard street, when services will be held for Charles W. Dodge and his sister-in-law, Miss Orpha Pyott. Rev. J. Morgan Read will officiate.

Mr. Dodge, who for thirty years was a foreman in the metal department at the Consolidated Fruit Jar Works, died at St. Peter's Hospital, Monday night, from pneumonia, having been ill but six days. The news of his death so shocked Miss Pyott that she passed away Tuesday. All had lived at the same address.

BOROUGH LOSES; TO TAKE APPEAL

State Board Decides Against North Plainfield as to Assessment Reduction.

SCORES COUNTY BOARD

Its Minutes Incomplete and Chaotic—Borough Asked Rebate of $912,003 Because of Alleged Over-Assessment for 1912.

Trenton, Jan. 9.—The State Board of Equalization of Taxes handed down a decision today dismissing the appeal of the Mayor and Council of the Borough of North Plainfield from the action of the Somerset County Board of Taxation in refusing to allow a deduction of $912,003 from the total valuation of the taxable property in the Borough of North Plainfield for the year 1913. It was claimed by the North Plainfield authorities that the sum named was the amount of ratables represented by a reduction made in the assessments of their taxing district for the year 1912, and that, therefore, the refusal to allow this reduction wrs in direct contravention of State law.

In dismissing the appeal and thus sustaining the action of the Somerset County Tax Board, the State Tax Board says:

"In the light of the clearly established facts, we have not the least doubt that this appeal should be dismissed. The statute relied upon by the petitioners is not, as we understand it, intended to provide a new method of equalization among taxing districts. Its purpose is merely to afford a means whereby municipalities may recoup actual losses which occur whenever a taxing district, as a result of successful appeals for reductions of assessments, receives in taxes less than the amount used as a basis for the apportionment of its State school and county tax."

The total valuation of real and personal property in North Plainfield for 1912 was $4,983,625. The North Plainfield assessor claimed that in pursuance of the judgment of the County Board, he reduced the assessment for 1913 about 18 per cent. His valuations were afterward increased by the County Board, so that the ratables of the borough for 1913 as finally fixed, were $4,334,000. The borough authorities insisted that they were entitled to the full reduction of $912,003.

The State Tax Board says that it had considerable difficulty in determining just what had been done by the County Board owing to the fact that the minutes of the latter were incomplete and chaotic.

The memorandum of the State Board in announcing its decision follows:

"It is claimed by the petitioners that the sum named is the amount of ratables represented by a reduction made in the assessments of their taxing district for the year 1912, and that, therefore, the refusal to allow the deduction applied for was in direct contravention of the statute applicable to the situation.

"Chapter 37, of the Laws of 1910, as amended by Chapter 188, of the Laws of 1912, provides that 'it shall be the duty of the County Board of Taxation in apportioning the amount of money to be raised in the various taxing districts for State, State school or county purposes * * * to deduct from the total valuations of each taxing district, * * * an amount equal to the ratables of the preceding year or years, of such district represented by the reduction or all reductions made in the assessments of such district subsequent to the appoprtionment of the preceding year or years, in consequence of any appeal or appeals to the County Board of Taxation, or to the State Board of Equalization of Taxes, or by the State Board of Assessors * * * or by reason of the decision of any court * * *.'

"The purpose of this legislation was to provide a means by which a taxing district might be reimbursed for payments made to the State school and county funds, upon valuations which, subsequent to the fixing of their apportionment, were reduced on appeal. It was to remedy this condition, that the Act of 1910 was passed. The petitions in the case under consideration, seek to take advantage of the benefit of that statute."

The report then reviews the action of the County Board, which as has been told in the Daily Press, rendered a judgment which was "manifestly framed to carry into effect the provisions of a resolution recorded in the minutes of the meeting of the County Board held November 2, 1912. The minutes of that meeting do not show that the resolution was passed, or that any action was taken with respect thereto. The minutes of a meeting held on November 30, 1912, containing the following entry: 'After the reading of the North Plainfield appeal, the matter was open for discussion. There being no objections from other boroughs or townships, the appeal was passed unanimously.'

SCHWARTZ RECEIVES A SALARY INCREASE

County Sealer Resigns and is Reappointed—Will Get $1,500 a Year.

Elizabeth, Jan. 9.—The Board of Freeholders reappointed Augustus W. Schwartz as sealer of weights and measures for another term yesterday and increased his salary from $1,200 to $1,500. No action was taken on the office of a county physician, as it was explained that Dr. Frank Westcott's term does not expire for a year.

The tentative budget was fixed at $549,100.48. Committee appointments showed few changes over those of last year, but the seven Democrats were given choice positions.

The Board of Managers of Bonle Burn Sanitorium asked that the Board take up the matter of collecting $10,000 from the State, which is due to that institution. It was referred to the Sanitorium commitee. The matter of fixing stated salaries for election officers was referred by the Board to the county attorney and its election committee.

W. M. MAXIM SUPT. OF BIBLE SCHOOL

Park Avenue Baptist Sunday School Now Has 348 Members.

The election of officers, together with the presentation of reports were the features of the annual meeting of the Bible School of the Park Avenue Baptist church, last night. Acting Superintendent Willard M. Maxim presided. The reports from the officers and heads of various committees showed the school to be in excellent condition.

The present membership, including cradle roll and home department, is 348, of whom 36 are in the intermediate department and using the International graded lessons, under the direction of Mrs. W. S. Lowry, superintendent. The report of the general treasurer, Joseph M. Hawkins, was encouraging, showing a balance on hand.

The report of Mr. Maxim, treasurer of the benevolent fund, also showed a balance, after the school had contributed liberally to the following objects: Baptist Home, New Jersey Sunday-school Association, Muhlenberg Hospital, Baptist State Convention, Chapel Car work, American Baptist Missionary Union, missionary barrel and the Plainfield Day Nursery.

It was voted to have hereafter at every session of the school a five-minute talk on missions and missionary work under the direction of Mrs. Gabriel Reid Maguire, who was elected missionary superintendent. It was also decided to hold a general conference of officers and teachers at the close of the prayer meeting the first Wednesday night in each month, when matters of interest to the school will be discussed, problems solved and encouragement extended to add to the efficiency of all the departments.

The secretary of the school was directed to convey in writing to Miss Elmira C. Runyon, former superintendent of the elementary department, the appreciation of the school for years of loyal service. Miss Runyon has been greatly missed since leaving Plainfield to take up a course of systematic study in a Philadelphia training school.

Praiseworthy mention was made of the orchestra under the leadership of Arthur Mosher, and it was unanimously voted to continue this feature. The school feels especially fortunate in securing William N. Runyon as leader of singing in the school. Following the report of the nominating committee these officers were elected:

Superintendent, Willard M. Maxim; associate superintendent, George E. Hall; secretary, Charles VanWinkle; assistant secretary, Howard R. Palmer; treasurer of the general fund, Joseph M. Hawkins, who has served the school for twenty-five years in this capacity; treasurer of the benevolent fund, Harry G. Thompson; superintendent intermediate department, Mrs. Wheaton S. Lowry; superintendent elementary department, Mrs. Harry C. Runyon; superintendent of the home department, Mrs. D. M. Runyon; pianist, Mrs. John Manley; temperance secretary, Mrs. Lottie Udell; librarian, E. Frank Vail; blackboard artist, Charles VanWinkle; leader of orchestra, Arthur S. Mosher.

The work of the school is made pleasant because of the spirit and harmony in every department, and the outlook for the year is most promising.

MONTHLY MEETING.

PURGATORIO THEME OF REV. DR. HERRING

Vital Truths of Second Part of Divine Comedy Are Pointed Out.

Rev. Dr. Charles E. Herring, of the First Presbyterian church, gave the second of his series of lectures on "Dante's Divine Comedy," in Vincent chapel of the First M. E. church, yesterday afternoon, before an appreciative audience. The lecture yesterday was devoted to the "Purgatorio," and Dr. Herring gave a clear and comprehensive exposition of his subject. Among other things, he said:

"Dante has been called the 'Poet of the Triumphant Life,' for this reason, that his divine comedy not only speaks of the Inferno but of the 'Purgatorio' and the 'Paradiso.' These three poems present a personal experience. 'The Inferno' is the dark cavern within a man; 'The Purgatorio' the struggle with personal sinfulness; 'The Paradiso' the spiritual disposition of mind that results from the struggle.

"Here are some of vital truths to which Dante has given utterance in this second part of the Divine Comedy:

"Dante, having reached the centre of gravity in the 'Inferno,' pants with hard drawn breath to rise above it. The meaning of Dante is that long habits of personal sinfulness weaken a man's moral strength. The poet then tells us that every step forward lessens the gravitating power of sin.

"Virgil, the symbol of reason, leads him out of the pit, teaching us that conversion is a reasonable thing.

"Dante realizes that reason alone is not a sufficient guide, for in the story Lucia, the symbol of God's grace, steps in to do what Virgil is unable to do. Yet Dante must work out his own salvation.

"At the foot of Mount Purgatory, the poet is guided with a Pliant Reed, which is beautiful in its symbolism. As the waters dash against it and it bends graciously, so when the waters of affliction and pain beat upon Dante's soul, he must learn to bear them graciously for they are for the development of his character, to fit him for the heavenly disposition of mind, represented by the 'Paradiso.'

"The great need of man is not to be delivered from pain but from sin. Dante, therefore, willed to remain on the terraces of suffering. Purgatory is a process rather than a place. The process consists in virtuous habits, and in centering the mind on great ideals of goodness.

"The process is a continuous one. A man's one aim in this life should be to strip himself of the 'slough that lets not God be manifest unto him.'"

JOINT INSTALLATION OF PATRIOTIC ORDER

Washington Camp, No. 1, Patriotic Order of America, at its regular business meeting, yesterday, received one proposition for membership and made arrangements for the joint installation of its officers with those of the Patriotic Order Sons of America on Thursday, January 15, in the hall in the Coward building. This will be public and friends of the two lodges are invited.

The national officers will be present and National Secretary George W. Smith, assisted by the National conductor, Miss Hannah Myers, of Camp 8, Jersey City, will install the officers of the P. O. of A. State officers will install the officers of the other lodge. A social time with refreshments will follow.

WEST DUNELLEN WRECK JUST FIFTEEN YEARS AGO

Fifteen years ago today at 1 o'clock in the afternoon there occurred the West Dunellen wreck on the Lehigh Valley Railroad, when some twenty or more people were killed and a large number were injured. The wrecked train was an excursion, carrying people from the mining districts of Pennsylvania, chiefly in the vicinity Hazelton, who were on their way to New York on a sight-seeing trip for a couple of days.

The excursion train ran into a local passenger train with disastrous results the wreck being about one of the worst in the history of the Lehigh Valley Railroad.

INSTALLED OFFICERS.

Mrs. Andrew McDowell, of Washington Camp, P. O. of A., of this city, who is district president for Union county, assisted District President Mrs. William Wilson, of Bayonne, install the officers-elect of Camp No. 8, of Jersey City, Wednesday night, when that camp celebrated its sixteenth anniversary. Mrs. George Passmore, of the local camp, also attended. A banquet was held during the evening.

SMALLEY HEADS COMMERCE BODY

Former Mayor Chosen President of Chamber to Succeed George L. Babcock.

NEW HEADQUARTERS

Room to Be Kept Open As Bureau of Information—Paul H. Burns Is Made Honorary Member—To Liven up Meetings.

Former Mayor Newton B. Smalley was chosen to succeed George L. Babcock as president of the Chamber of Commerce at the annual meeting last night and immediately upon taking the chair acquainted the members with his policies, declaring that the meetings during the coming year will be made interesting by an injection of humor which he guarantees to supply in large proportions. Mr. Smalley stated that the reason citizens cannot be induced to attend meetings of this nature is because the sessions are not made interesting.

These other officers were elected: First vice-president, Lloyd L. Osborne; second vice-president, Peter McDonough; secretary, J. J. Varley; assistant secretary, George M. Clarke; treasurer, D. W. Littell. The Board of Directors for the coming year is composed of Charles H. Hand, James C. Hansen, M. D. O'Keefe, Stanley E. Gunnison, Daniel Dugan, John Green, C. A. Repp, Henry N. MacMenimen, J. E. Curtis and W. S. Angleman. Mr. Repp was selected as representative to the National Chamber of Commerce. W. S. Angleman was reappointed as counsel.

Secretary Varley reported that the present membership of the body hovered around the century mark and suggestions were given by a number of members for boosting the number now on the roster. As a step to this end the committee on dues reported that it had reduced the annual fees from $10 to $5 to take effect at once. Mr. Repp, who is president of the Vitaphone Company, offered the services of the force of stenographers employed by the company he represented to assist Mr. Varley in stenographic work during the coming year.

Since the Chamber was organized it has been holding meetings in the Boice-Runyon building on Park avenue and the increasing membership of the body makes large quarters imperative. A committee selected to make arrangements for new quarters reported that a room of sufficient size had been leased in the Babcock Building and the next meeting of the organization will be held there. It is planned to keep the Chamber of Commerce rooms open during the day time for the purpose of supplying information for those who seek it and Mr. Clarke, who has an office adjoining the Chamber headquarters and who is assistant secretary of the body, has offered to supply desired information at all times.

In recognition of the work he accomplished as an active member and secretary of the Chamber of Commerce, P. H. Burns, who recently removed to Brooklyn, was made an honorary member of the local civic association. A special meeting will be held on Thursday, January 22 to prepare for the regular monthly meeting in February when a number of special features will be added in an effort to increase the membership role.

CONSENT TO REVOKE A DEED OF TRUST

By Vice Chancellor's Order Mrs. Hartwell Recovers Control of Her Property.

Litigation that promised to prove both vexatious and costly, instituted by Mrs. Mary E. Hartwell, of Somerville, against her son and two sons-in-law, to compel the revocation of a trust deed, has been settled out of court.

Mrs. Hartwell is the widow of U. U. Hartwell, who was a well known coal operator. Mr. Hartwell, when he died, in March, 1912, left his entire estate in trust for the benefit of Mrs. Hartwell, naming his son, Swan Hartwell, of Boston, and two sons-in-law, Rufus B. Sprague, also of Boston, and Joseph J. Carter, of Elizabeth, as executors and trustees, the will giving to Mrs. Hartwell the entire income of the estate for life. The estate, it is said, consisted of about $85,000 worth of personalty and approximately $45,000 worth of realty.

Mrs. Hartwell shortly after her husband's death conceived the idea of having her own separate estate administered by the same three trustees and accordingly signed a trust deed by which she turned over to them about $65,000 worth of personalty. She owned besides not far from $40,000 worth of realty.

Eventually, however, Mrs. Hartwell repented of having put her personal estate out of her control, and it came about that in the fall of 1912 she caused a bill to be filed in chancery, through Hugh K. Gaston, of Somerville, for the revocation of the trust.

In due course the trustees, through McCarter & English, filed an answer and the case was being gotten ready for trial when the litigants, advised by their respective attorneys, resolved upon the wiser course of settling their differences out of court.

As a result Vice Chancellor Stevens has now signed a consent decree by the terms of which Trustees Hartwell and Sprague, Mr. Carter having died meanwhile, will turn back to Mrs. Hartwell her estate.

A. E. FORCE PRESENTED WITH A HANDSOME DESK

A. E. Force, of The White Store, was given a pleasant surprise this morning, when shortly after reaching his place of business, H. R. In presenting the desk, Mr. High expressed the best wishes of the employes for the continued success of the firm and prosperity of Mr. Force. The latter was so completely surprised that he scarcely knew what to say. He finally recovered from his surprise and then took occasion to thank one and all for the beautiful gift, expressing the hope that the good feeling which had always existed between employes and employer would continue.

CLUBS AND POLITICS LECTURER'S SUBJECT

J. L. Honigman, of New York, Addressed Heavenly Rest Church Men's Club.

One of the best addresses delivered to date in the course of lectures planned for the Men's Association of the Heavenly Rest church was given last night by J. L. Honigman, of New York, who took for his subject, "Clubs and Politics." Mr. Honigman outlined the history of the club and fraternity movement from the time it originated among the Greeks and told how men met and discussed current topics in the day of the French Revolution, explaining the good done by organized bodies even in the days when government was lax and topics of discussion few.

The speaker ascribed the corruption existing in many parts of the county and in numerous municipalities at the present time to the lack of interest on the part of the citizen in the government of the town, state and country. He stated that this corruption could be overcome by bringing about a mutual interest in civic affairs and individual study made by the resident himself. Advocating the establishment of public meeting centres, Mr. Honigman outlined the good that can be done by bringing men together to discuss the topics of the day.

Burnett Brodziak will be the next speaker for the Men's Association and will deliver a talk on "First Aid to the Injured," Thursday night, January 22.

WIFE MAY KEEP THE REAL ESTATE

Mrs. Richard H. Hood's Title to Costly Residence Absolutely Legal.

DIVORCE AFTERMATH

Erring Husband Had Been Awarded Personalty, But Wife Gets Order Preventing Its Removal Pending Alimony Decree.

Newark, Jan. 9.—Vice Chancellor Stevens today handed down an opinion advising the dismissal of the action brought by Richard Haden Hood to compel his wife, Mrs. Frances Sparks Hood, to convey to him the property, No. 541 Stelle avenue, the title for which had been conveyed by him. He held that she possessed an absolutely legal title and that the deed showed no resultant trust on Mrs. Hood's part in favor of her husband. The estate, a show place in Plainfield, was purchased for about $50,000, but it worth much more than that. Hood, himself, had testified that he had spent over $50,000 in improvements to the house and grounds.

The decision closely follows the one given by Vice Chancellor Stevens, yesterday, in which he filed an opinion holding that the charges of marital misconduct made against Mr. Hood were fully proven and advised a decree in favor of Mrs. Hood, which, of course, means that the Chancellor will grant the decree of divorce as recommended by Vice Chancellor Stevens. Dorothy Hoyt was named as co-respondent.

There were in all three separate actions, the third one being that of Mr. Hood to recover his personal property. The decision in that case was in his favor, but Mrs. Hood immediately secured from the court a restraining order preventing her husband from removing the goods until the divorce matter was settled and permanent alimony was allowed. The question of alimony will be announced with the decision of the Chancellor.

The youths had with them with pairs of linemen's spurs and several carried razors. In Fanwood, it is alleged by the police, they looted the wagon of a Fanwood baker, and while climbing poles and causing a disturbance in the vicinity of the water works, were noticed by John Schenck, an employe.

"THAT IS NO GOOD AT ALL."

What It Meant When Used by the Italian Postal Official.

"A postoffice order was awaiting me in the postoffice of a small Italian village," writes a correspondent of the Cologne Gazette. "I could see the pleasant little document lying on the counter, so I gave my name and asked for the money.

"The official, however, remarked that that wouldn't do. 'Ah,' thought I, 'he wants some proof of identity,' so I rummaged among my papers and fetched out my military service paper.

"'That is no good at all,' said the official, 'because'— But after the 'because' he stuck. The words refused to come out, and he merely assumed an icy official demeanor. 'Ah,' thought I, 'he can't read the German of my service paper,' so I went away and dragged in my innkeeper, and he swore with a mighty oath that I was so and so.

"'That is no good at all,' was all the man behind the counter vouchsafed, though he said it with a smile. So I hurried back to the inn and fetched further proofs of my identity—a passport, an authenticated copy of a certificate of nationality and finally even a letter from an Italian relative. Surely the postoffice man would be able to read them.

"'That is no good at all,' he said, with another of his pleasant smiles, after he had read them, adding that he was very, very sorry. Naturally I got angry at this and abused him as well as a limited acquaintance with foreign terms of abuse would permit.

"'That is no good at all,' he said, with another of his smiles, as he rattled the shutter across the pigeon hole. Next morning I returned to the charge only to see the shutter fly across again. The day after the same thing happened. But on the third day I brought the burgomaster with me. I came prepared to have it out with the Italian postoffice. What was my astonishment when I saw the clerk waiting for me behind the open shutter, with a handful of small coins, which he counted out to me, winding up with a fascinating smile as he said, 'Don't you see, yesterday and the day before I hadn't enough money.'"

MYSTERY OF LEPROSY.

And the Treatment, Its Victims Received in the Middle Ages.

Why leprosy occurs in certain places and not in others is one of the mysteries of medicine. In the early centuries of the Christian era it spread all over Europe. Every city had its leper house. For no cause that any one can assign it began to disappear early in the sixteenth century, and Europe soon numbered its empty lazarettos by thousands. Climate has no influence on the disease, for when it left the most of Europe it persisted in Norway, Iceland, Spain and the islands of the Mediterranean. In Asia it is to be found from India to Siberia, and no part of Africa is free from it.

That leprosy can be planted in new territory is shown most pointedly in the terrible experience of Hawaii, which was free from the disease until about 1850, when the Chinese brought it there. Now Molokai is a name to make men shudder.

In the middle ages it was the custom to consider a man dead whenever he was found to have leprosy. His heirs divided his property, a funeral service was said for him and a shovelful of earth thrown after him as he walked to his living grave in the leper house. The world is kinder now, but knows no treatment for this scourge which is much more effective.—St. Louis Republic.

A Fair Jury.

In a suit some years ago between father and son before an Indiana justice of the peace the sextet comprising the jury came in after three hours' deliberation with the following impartial verdict: "We, the jury, agree to find judgment for neither plaintiff nor defendant and find that each pay half the costs." It is said the verdict struck every one as being so unusually fair that even the parties to the action were satisfied.—Case and Comment.

Both Were Riding to Lose.

A story of "pulling." A dying jockey commending his son to the gods that govern racing added as a parting monition: "Never talk, my boy. I talked once too often. I was riding a match with J., and we were neck and neck. 'You needn't ride so hard,' I said; 'I'm not going to win.' 'Oh, aren't you?' he said, whereupon he fell off his horse, and I had to win."—London Nation.

Sure!

It was the third day at sea, and the Boston man who sat next to the Chicago man in the diner of the steamer was sick and irritable.

"Why do you bolt your food in that manner?" asked the Boston man as he watched the Chicago man eat.

"To keep it down," replied the Chicago man.—St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

Norway's Climate.

The average length of life is greater in Norway than in any other country. This is attributed to the fact that the temperature is cool and uniform throughout the year.

An Old Story.

"Did that palmist tell you the truth about yourself?"

"Yes, but my wife has been doing that for years."—Birmingham Age-Herald.

Signs.

"Do you believe in signs?"

"Certainly, when they are to let people know what business you are in."—Baltimore American.

BOROUGH TO TAKE APPEAL

The judgment is dated the same day, namely, November 30th. Since the copy of this judgment that was first produced did not come from the office of the County Board, and the secretary of that Board testified that he was unable to find such a judgment in the files of the Board, and inasmuch as the whole proceeding appeared to be involved in confusion and obscurity, we decided to inquire at length into the entire transaction, including the matter of notice to the other taxing districts of Somerset county, affected by the action of the County Board. This action was so extraordinary that we felt it our duty to investigate the matter from its inception.

"The secretary of the County Board upon being recalled at the final hearing, testified that upon a further search made jointly with the former clerk of the Board, he had found the original judgment, and also the original petition filed with the County Board, and upon which the said judgment was based. There is therefore no doubt of the bona fides of this judgment, and the only question remaining is whether it gives to the petitioner a status that brings the Borough of North Plainfield within the purview of the Act of 1910.

"The proceedings before the County Board were initiated by a petition in which it was alleged that the real and personal property in the Borough of North Plainfield had been assessed for the year 1912 at its true value, and that the property in the other taxing districts of Somerset county were assessed at less than true value. The prayer of the petition is that 'to the assessment of the said taxing districts of Somerset county, other than the Borough of North Plainfield, for the year 1912, be added such sum or amount as shall seem equitable, and that such further or other order be made for the relief of your petitioner as in the premises may be deemed equitable and just.' Section 3, Chapter 120, Laws of 1906, provides that 'any taxing district which may feel discriminated against by the assessed valuations of property within such taxing district, or by the assessed valuation of property in any other taxing district in such county, may, within such time, and upon such terms as the said Board shall by rule prescribe, file a petition of appeal to such Board, setting forth therein the cause of complaint, the nature and location of such assessed property, and the relief sought.' The Board is thereupon empowered summarily to hear and determine such complaints, and revise and correct such assessments 'in accordance with the true value of such taxable property.' The filing of the petition is necessary to give the County Board jurisdiction. This jurisdiction is to deal with the cause of complaint set forth in the petition. In the case under review, the Borough of North Plainfield did not complain of its own assessment. Its admission that its property was assessed at true value stopped it from making such complaint. It based its complaint upon alleged under-valuations in the other taxing districts of the county, and asked that those assessments be increased. That was the proper course to pursue, to secure relief from the undue share of the county tax burden which it alleged it was obliged to bear. The County Board, however, by its judgment, ignored the cause of complaint set forth in the petition, and undertook to grant a form of relief for which the petitioner had not prayed, and to which it was by its own admission clearly not entitled. The County Board was, in our opinion, without jurisdiction to render such a judgment as it appears to have given.

"Even if it be conceded, as it is not, that the jurisdiction of the County Board is not open to question in the proceedings before us, the judgment relied upon should not be given the effect claimed for it by the petitioners. In terms it orders that 'the valuation of $4,983,625, levied this year (1912), against the real and personal property situated within the borough, be reduced by an amount equivalent to eighteen and thirty one-hunderths per cent. (18.30%) of said valuation of $4,983,625, which amount shall be deducted from the total net valuation of the ratables of the said borough, upon which county and State schol taxes shall be apportioned in the year 1913. The said reduction, however, shall include, and shall not be in addition to any reductions which may be made this year, in the assessment of any real and personal property within the said borough, upon the appeal of any of its individual property owners.' This judgment was to take effect in 1913. It did not take effect in 1912. It did not operate to reduce a single tax bill in the borough in that year. Not one valuation of property within the borough was affected by this judgment. No taxpayer paid a single penny less into the borough treasury because of this judgment. The borough received from the taxpayers precisely the same amount it would have received if the judgment had not been rendered. This judgment was in fact merely an official promise by the County Board that in the following year, the ratables in the Borough of North Plainfield would be reduced to the extent of 18.30 per cent. The County Board had no authority to make such a promise. The fact that it attempted to clothe the promise in the form of a judgment gives it no additional force or efficacy. There appears to have been some misunderstanding as to how the promised reduction was to be effected. The assessor of North Plainfield Borough evidently understood that he was to make the reduction. He testified that in pursuance of the judgment of the County Board, he reduced his individual assessments for 1913 about eighteen per cent. in each case. His valuations were afterwards increased by the County Board, so that the ratables of the borough as finally fixed, were $4,334,000, as compared with $4,999,725 in 1912. Thus there was a reduction of about $650,000, from the valuations of 1912, notwithstanding the fact that so far as the records show, the assessment of 1912 was at its true value, and was not attacked by anybody. The testimony in the case makes it clear that the reduced assessment for 1913 was the result of an attempt by the County Board to carry out in part its promise made in 1912."

Here follows the paragraph quoted at the beginning, dismissing the appeal.

That the borough would appeal to a higher court from the verdict of the State Board, was announced by Judge Isaac P. Runyon, associate counsel with Major Carl Lentz, representing the borough in the matter. A meeting of the Councilmen will be held either tomorrow night or on Monday, at which time a plan of action will be decided upon. Copies of the opinion rendered by Mr. Jess, of the State Board, have been sent to Mayor Robert Clark, Jr., and to members of the Council, who will be thoroughly acquainted with the contents when the meeting is called.

Asked if he had anything to say regarding the verdict, Mayor Clark said this morning, "Well by the decision of the State Board, it seems that we no longer have any right to say anything." The executive said he had not thought the matter over long enough to make a further statement. Councilman Julius Stahl said that in view of the evidence, he didn't see how the Board arrived at such a decision.

MANY WERE PRESENT AT IMPERIAL CLUB'S DANCE

Guests were present from Elizabeth, Bound Brook, Somerville, Bayonne, Newark and Perth Amboy at the dance of the Imperial Club held last night in Saengerbund Hall. A program of entertainment was rendered between the terpsichore numbers, the feature of which was a dance by James Sperrelly, of Bayonne, who with a partner, gave a demonstration of the latest dances. In a recent dancing contest Sperrelly danced for three hours without a stop. George Pagellucci sang popular songs.

The arrangement committee was composed of these officers: President, H. Willard; vice president, J. English; secretary, G. Giddes, and treasurer, G. Jones. The reception committee, H. Ward, C. W. Brown, T. J. Mullin, G. W. Todd, W. Hand and C. Johnson. G. Jones acted as floor manager.

CELEBRATED PIANIST DELIGHTED AUDIENCE

Miss Eleanor Spencer Got An Ovation on Her First Appearance Here.

Eleanor Spencer, the young American pianist who has been so well received by the New York and Boston critics, and Paul Reimer, the noted lieder singer, made their initial appearance in the Hartridge School Auditorium last night. Owing to the many amusements going on the recital was not well attended, but a return engagement of these artists would no doubt bring out a large audience.

Miss Spencer's playing was a rare treat. In many ways she astounded her hearers with her perfect technique, feeling and power. In every way did she display the true musicianship that comes from long study under the great teachers. Not only is Miss Spencer one of the greatest of women pianists, but she has beauty, charm and ease—all of which go to make up the essential qualities of a great artist.

Miss Spencer began with two Schumann numbers, Novelette in D, and the Arabeske. This was followed by the Chopin Grand Polonais in E flat. For the many young piano students present, the Arabeske was perhaps the most appreciated. For her second group, Lotus Land, Cyril Scott's famous composition, was rendered. Miss Spencer played three encore numbers. The Butterfly Dance, Chopin, being the most appreciated.

As a singer of lieder Mr. Reimer immediately won favor. He has remarkable power of combining the lyric and dramatic elements in the rendering of his songs. His voice is of beautiful tembre and most flexible. His rendering of a group of international folk songs, especially "Su, Su," (old Swedish), was most interesting. Theodore Flint was the accompanist.

CHARITY WORK.

The seventh annual report of the Charity Organization Society just issued in pamphlet form gives some idea of the great amount of good being done by that body. Some facts and figures may be cited to illustrate this fact. During the year, work was obtained for seventy-four applicants. Eighty-one were placed in institutions and thirty-eight in private homes. It was necessary to bring sixty-one offenders before the court and to refer 128 to physicians for treatment.

The number of calls from applicants for help aggregated 4,108 and from consultatives 3,125 in addition to 7,233 office interviews. The secretaries, moreover, made 3,876 visits. They wrote 5,586 letters and attended to 2,126 received.

The income during the year totalled a trifle over $8,000 and the public may rest assured that it was all well spent.

AN INTERESTING WORK.

"Modern Battles of Trenton," a second volume from the pen of William E. Sackett, who has a breezy and spicy manner of writing about the political history of the State of New Jersey, has put in appearance this week, and contains very interesting reading for those who care to study the political and legislative manner in which the state has been conducted during the years since 1893. The volume reviews in detail the efforts to pass and prevent the passage of legislation on the part of reformers and the corporations, from the regime of Governor Werts to the end of the term of Woodrow Wilson as the chief executive of the State.

Mr. Sackett can well be said to be one who knows whereof he writes, and except for a few minor errors, due perhaps to the author not having been personally on the ground during some of the incidents he describes, and to faulty proof-reading, the book will immediately become an authority regarding modern legislative and political action. Probably as interesting as any feature is a chapter which concisely sketches the work which has been done to develop North Jersey through improved rapid transit facilities, including the tubes under the Hudson River.

The book is attractively printed, from the press of the Neale Publishing Company, and will occupy for all time a prominent place in the library of every man interested in public affairs in New Jersey.

Screaming that she had been jabbed with a "poison needle," a young woman caused great excitement on Broadway, New York, and the police, finding she was simply suffering from hysteria, hustled her home in a taxicab, so a news item reads. This is a new one; most actresses, to gain notoriety, tell stories of burglars getting their jewels.

Rev. Gabriel Reid Maguire, pastor of the Park Avenue Baptist church, attributes his over-flow congregations to the fact that he makes liberal use of newspaper advertising space to attract the people to the services. If his plan was generally followed there would be no such a thing as "empty churches."

In Maryland, the constitution prohibits a minister of the Gospel being a lawmaker and one day this week a dominie was refused the privilege of taking his seat as an Assemblyman. New York State, however, allows William Sulzer to assume his duties in the Empire State Assembly. Funny world, isn't it?

John Wanamaker, the merchant prince, never uttered truer words in his life than when he said the other day that "the man who sees nothing but disaster ahead is not a true American," and that "the breeders of panics ought to be deported."

Every loyal Plainfielder should make it his duty to attend the annual banquet of the Board of Trade. More general interest in the community and its welfare need to be aroused and on that occasion all taxpayers should get together.

Union county can well afford to pay Augustus W. Schwartz $1,500 a year for his services. He has been a particularly efficient public servant as sealer of weights and measures and the $300 increase he now receives is none too much.

If you do not feel like giving while on this earth, put a clause in your will making some little bequest to the Plainfield Anti-Tuberculosis Society.

Yes, Mr. Mayor, Armstrong Mulford would be a fine selection for the assessorship appointment in the First ward.

The President's reply to Huerta's new year greetings bears testimony that he is some diplomat.

MINISTER DENOUNCES THE HIGHER CRITICISM

The union week of prayer services held at the First M. E. church, last night, attracted a large number of worshippers, Rev. Dr. C. M. Anderson, pastor of the First M. E. church, was in charge. Prayer was offered by Rev. Dr. Philip B. Strong and Rev. Dr. C. E. Herring, of the First Presbyterian church, read the Scripture lesson. The singing, which was a feature, was in charge of A. E. Osmun, who acted as precentor.

The address of the evening was by Rev. J. Y. Broek, pastor of Trinity Reformed church, his subject being, "The Bible." The speaker devoted considerable attention to a criticism of the higher critics, to show what he considered their false and misleading position.

Mr. Broek first spoke of the Bible as to its divine authority, and then the inspiration of the Bible, his third point being Jesus Christ, showing the complete harmony of all three.

Following Mr. Broek's talk, there were several testimonies and short prayers. The service tonight will be held at the First Presbyterian church, when Rev. Dr. Philip B. Strong, of the First Baptist church, will preach.

Judge Connolly has fixed January 19 as the date for the beginning of trials of indictments in criminal matters.

PATRIOTIC ORDERS TO PARADE.

Patriotic orders in Plainfield have received invitations to consider plans for a monster parade to be held in Newark, in the near future, the idea being to have all the patriotic organizations in Northern New Jersey join in the demonstration. The idea originated in Newark, where a large committee is now arranging details. The date will be announced soon.

ENGLAND AND KING MENELIK.

British Government Watching Abyssinia—A Remarkable Career.

Since the death of Menelik England has been looking with anxious eyes upon Abyssinia, for there is considerable disorder in that country. Territory amounting to 8,000 square miles was ceded by the late negus to British Somaliland in 1897. All along the frontier bandit tribes have been collecting and threatening the central government. If, as the indications suggest, there is destined to be a series of wars to establish one of the many claimants to the throne, destitution among the Abyssinians will increase, and so will raids on British surrounding territory. Menelik had a great regard as well as a wholesome fear of the British government.

THE LATE KING MENELIK.

With little authentic known about the Emperor Menelik, he did enough in his own obscure corner of the world to establish the reputation of being one of the most remarkable men whom the negroid race has produced in recent years. The descendant, as he boasted, of the queen of Sheba, when he ascended the throne of Ethiopia he had to face a country riven among a score of petty states and principalities. He had to establish order and introduce the rudiments of civilization.

This he accomplished by calling to his aid the science and arts of Europe. He crushed the minor chiefs who opposed him and abolished slavery. He fostered the means of communication and encouraged agriculture. He even built railroads and encouraged his people to trade with the outside world.

Fenced in by fierce Mohammedans, Abyssinia remained unknown to Europe a thousand years. Still shut off from the sea by Italian Eritrea and British and French Somaliland, it is a hermit kingdom where almost anything may happen.

In the District Court yesterday afternoon, Judge Walter L. Hetfield, for the second time rendered a judgment of $50 in favor of Miss Ellen De Forest, who sued Thomas H. Watkins for money due on a note. Martin Stutsman represented Miss De Forest and former Judge William Newcorn was counsel for the defendant. A similar verdict was rendered several weeks ago, but Mr. Newcorn succeeded in having the case reopened on a technicality.

Miss De Forest testified that she loaned $50 to Mr. Watkins on a promissory note, and said he refused to pay the principal and interest when due. Watkins said the plaintiff had not paid him for the rental of a saddle for eleven months, and gave this as the reason he had not paid the amount of the note.

DESTRUCTION OF DAM MAY CAUSE LAWSUIT

Summit, Jan. 9.—The blowing out of the dam at Briant's Pond by the Union County Mosquito Extermination Commission, which contended that the spot was a breeding place for mosquitoes, may result in a lawsuit, according to William B. Denman, of Springfield, one of the heirs of the Briant estate.

Mr. Denman has consulted counsel with the view to bringing legal action against the commission. He claims that permission to blow up the dam was not procured from the heirs.

The commission contended that Charles Lum, lawyer for the Briant heirs, gave his consent. Mr. Denman said that he had interviewed Mr. Lum and that the latter had denied giving any such authority.

WILLARD ON TRIAL.

Los Angeles, Cal., Jan. 9.—The trial of Jess Willard, the pugilist, and nine boxing promoters and spectators, accused of having violated the State law against prize fighting in connection with the bout at Vernon, Cal., August 22, last, when Willard's opponent, John ("Bull") Young, was killed, was begun in Superior Court here yesterday.

Unity Lodge, No 102, K. of P., will install officers on Thursday night January 15.

COSTS 43 CENTS A DAY TO FEED A PRISONER

Elizabeth, Jan. 9.—Sheriff William H. Wright submitted his annual report to the Board of Freeholders yesterday. It shows the cost of living in the county jail is about forty-three cents a day for each person. The total cost of food for the past year was $9,203.

The number of prisoners received in the jail from January 1 to December 31, 1913, was 1,019. The average number in custody each day was fifty-eight. Although the prisoners represented nearly every nationality there were among them no Japanese or Chinese.

The total amount of fines collected amounted to $1,082.49.

WOULD FILE MORE BRIEFS IN GAS RATE CUT APPEAL

Trenton, Jan. 9.—As counsel for the Public Service Gas Company, Frank Bergen applied to the Court of Errors and Appeals yesterday for permission to file appeal against the order reducing the price of gas in the Passaic district to ninety cents. Mr. Bergen said that he had received a supplementary brief prepared by George L. Record, counsel for several of the municipalities involved in the gas rate decision. His application, therefore, included a request that both Mr. Record and he be given permission to hand up additional briefs.

Frank H. Sommer, representing the Board of Public Utility commissioners, informed the court that although he had no objection to the course suggested by Mr. Bergen, he would like to have ten days within which to file a supplementary brief himself, answering the new subject matter considered in the briefs of Mr. Record and Mr. Bergen.

The court announced that it would consider Mr. Bergen's application in conference and it was intimated that a decision would be announced during the day. In the meantime the acceptance of both briefs was withheld.

BRINGS TALES FROM LAND OF HORROR AND MYSTERY.

Nigerian Official First European to See "Bird Dance" and Sacred Pools.

Amaury Talbot, a district commissioner in southern Nigeria, and his wife have just made a remarkable journey of over 4,300 miles in the Eket district, a country of rivers and creeks, many unexplored, with a population of a quarter of a million Ibibios.

Mr. Talbot says he found customs and ceremonies which appear to have come down unchanged from the days of the Pharaohs. In some parts the dead are roughly mummified, while underground burial chambers are to be found planned like those of ancient Egypt. He found also traces of bird worship and witnessed a bird dance never before seen by Europeans.

Most of the towns have their sacred pool, inhabited by good or evil spirits, to which in the past countless human victims were sacrificed. On two of these holy waters—the Lake of Life and the neighboring Pool of Hatred and Death—Mr. Talbot and a Mr. Eckin of the Kwa Ibo mission are the first and only existing white men to have set eyes.

Mr. Talbot, referring to the hard task of the administration in dealing with secret societies, which at certain times of the year still seek to offer human sacrifices, said:

"Toward the end of September such an attempt was made by a group of towns in a distant part of the district never before visited by Europeans. My attention was first drawn to this particular society, which bears the dreaded name of Ekkpo Njawhaw (Ghosts—the Destroyers), by a poor woman who brought some fragments of charred bone, which, she asserted, was all that was left to her of an only brother.

"The people as a whole are perhaps the most bloodthirsty of all Africa. For months no day passed without man or woman running in covered with blood and often horribly mutilated to claim the protection of the commissioner."

"When we started the session the first thing we did was to pass a woman's suffrage law. I handled the bill in the senate. Up in Alaska we try to keep politics out of our legislative discussions."

The senator is working for the Alaskan railroad bill, which asks an appropriation of $40,000,000 from the government.

EXPERTS DISCUSS MONEY LAW; BULKLEY ON PROBABLE EFFECT

It Will Work Out Better For Country Banks, Says Ohio Congressman

Financiers Hopeful, but as a Whole Are Cautious In Predictions

WITH the signing of the new currency bill by President Wilson the second biggest piece of business of the Democratic administration is out of the way, and, as in the case of the new tariff law, the country must wait to see how it works out. While confident of the result, the president and his advisers are no less interested than the country at large in awaiting the sequels to these epochal events in our political history, in seeing their results in practical demonstration.

The next step is the naming by the president of the federal reserve board of seven. The secretary of the treasury and the new comptroller of the currency will be members, and the other five will be chosen from private life.

President Wilson is credited with desiring Senator John W. Weeks of Massachusetts to serve on the federal reserve board.

The indications are that in spite of his declaration that he would decline membership on the board an effort will be made to induce James J. Hill to become the head of that organization, a position that will carry with it the title of governor.

Wilson Happy and Optimistic.

Many months hard work was put in by the framers of the bill, and the president in his address upon the occasion of affixing his signature to the measure paid especial tributes to Representative Carter Glass and Senator

JOHN SKELTON WILLIAMS.

Robert L. Owen, chairmen of the respective congress committees. It was a happy moment for the president, and he showed it as, reaching for the fourth gold pen in signing the bill, he jocularly remarked to those about him, "I'm drawing on the 40 per cent gold reserve."

After signing the bill he said in part:

As for the bill itself, I feel that we can say that it is the first of a series of constructive measures by which the Democratic party will show that it knows how to serve the country. In calling it the first of a series of constructive measures I need not say that I am not casting any reflections on the great tariff bill which preceded it. The tariff bill was meant to remove those impediments to American industry and prosperity which had so long stood in their way. It was a great piece of preparation for the achievements of American commerce and American industry which are certain to follow. Then there came upon the heels of it this bill which furnishes the machinery for free and elastic and uncontrolled credits put at the disposal of the merchants and manufacturers of this country for the first time in fifty years.

I have been surprised at the sudden acceptance of this measure by public opinion everywhere. I say surprised because it seems as if it had suddenly become obvious to men who had looked at it with too critical an eye that it was really meant in their interest. They have opened their eyes to see a thing which they had supposed to be hostile to be friendly and serviceable—exactly what we intended it to be and what we shall intend all our legislation to be.

The men who have fought for this measure have fought nobody. They have simply fought for those accommodations which are going to secure us in prosperity and peace.

"I never had any doubt," said Secretary McAdoo, "that the national banks would enter the system. My experience is that after a law of this character is passed there is a patriotic acceptance of it. This law, I believe, will prove the greatest thing that has happened in the country in a generation."

Making System Operative.

Immediately the new banking system became law it was announced that the organization work would be undertaken at once by Secretary of the Treasury McAdoo and Secretary of Agriculture Houston of the committee charged by law with the task. The third member of the committee, which is known as the reserve bank organization committee, is the comptroller of the currency. That office is vacant and will be filled by the president upon his return from Mississippi. John Skelton Williams, assistant secretary of the treasury, is said to be the president's choice for comptroller. Congress has adjourned until Jan. 12, and in the absence of the third member there will be no formal meeting until after that date.

The first duty of the reserve bank organization committee is to designate the federal reserve cities. Under the law there are to be not less than eight or more than twelve.

There is considerable speculation as to the probable location of these federal reserve banks.

All national banks are required by the law to become members of the federal reserve banking system or surrender their charters.

Cities Up to Requirements.

prospective member banks in financial centers throughout the country will be carefully considered.

The only cities in which the capital and surplus of national banks are in excess of $25,000,000, with the approximate capital and surplus of such banks located in them, are these:

Boston, over $45,000,000; New York city, over $249,000,000; Philadelphia, over $65,000,000; Pittsburgh, over $33,000,000; Chicago, over $69,000,000; St. Louis, over $32,000,000, and San Francisco, over $43,000,000.

Philadelphia is a strong candidate for selection as a regional reserve city.

Many western men have contended that there should be two regional cities on the Pacific coast. San Francisco would undoubtedly be one of them, but there would be keen rivalry between Portland and Seattle. Others believe that Minneapolis or St. Paul should be chosen as a regional center to accommodate the region between Chicago and the Pacific coast.

Leading Bankers' Opinions.

Now that the new system is a fact, state and national bankers are not disposed to be too critical. Opinions of men in various parts of the country are given herewith:

Paul M. Warburg of Kuhn, Loeb & Co., New York:

There cannot be any doubt that the enactment of this legislation will inaugurate a new era in the history of banking in the United States. While it is to be regretted that some important suggestions made by the business community could not be adopted, the fundamental thoughts, for the victory of which some of us have worked for so many years, have won out—that is to say, from now on we shall witness the gradual elimination of the bond secured currency, of scattered reserves, of immobilized commercial paper and of pyramiding of call loans on the Stock Exchange. The ship is headed right, and nothing will ever turn her back into her old course.

Charles Smithers of F. S. Smithers & Co., New York:

We shall henceforth be able to finance our commercial operations without recourse to such a large amount of actual banking capital as was necessary before.

It will be done on credit, backed by the mobilized power of the entire banking resources of the United States. This is going to release huge sums of capital, which will undoubtedly be employed in further developing the splendid resources of this country.

Newton D. Alling, vice president of the National Nassau bank, New York:

Of the currency changes the most important is that affecting the reserves. For any one to prophesy just what result this changed requirement is going to have in any one section at any one time would be presumption. But after a considerable period of adjustment and re-establishment of relations its general effect should be beneficial all over the country.

George H. Prince, chairman of the board of directors of the Merchants' National bank of St. Paul, Minn.:

While the bill is a good one, it has many defects that will have to be remedied. It will take at least a year to make the currency law workable and thoroughly understood. During that time Europe will be a little cautious. There is absolutely no reason for any serious change or depression.

Edmund D. Hulbert, vice president of the Merchants' Loan and Trust company, Chicago:

Of course, from the viewpoint of the bankers the measure contains many objectionable features; but, on the whole, it is a sound bill and will do much toward putting banking and currency on a firm footing.

John C. Mitchell, president of the Denver National bank:

I should say that the new law is 80 per cent good, though I do not entirely agree with some of its provisions. If it is carried out according to its terms we shall never have another panic.

Thomas H. West, chairman of the St. Louis Union Trust company:

I have faith in the measure, and, while it may not be perfect, it can readily be changed to conform to unforeseen conditions after the reorganization.

F. O. Watts, president of the Third National bank, St. Louis:

I believe the changes in the senate have served to make the bill very superior to the form in which it passed the house. I think it is a workable bill and contains all the essentials of a good banking and currency measure.

Robert F. Maddon, president of the American National bank of Atlanta, Ga.:

The purpose of the bill to mobilize the currency is good. The only question is whether the measure will accomplish that.

W. M. Habliston, chairman of the board of the First National bank, president of the Broad Street bank and the Old Dominion Trust company, Richmond, Va.:

The bill is a great improvement over the one which has been in effect for several years. It will result in an elastic currency which will avert panics.

Oliver J. Sands, president of the American National bank, Richmond, Va.:

The passage of the currency measure will have a beneficial effect upon the country at large, and its operation will help business.

Calls Bill a Menace.

Charles McKnight, president of the National Bank of Western Pennsylvania:

I do not think the bill should have been passed. It will do the country no good—

© 1913, by American Press Association.

DAVID F. HOUSTON.

in fact, the new law will, I believe, work decided harm to the banking system, both in this district and throughout the country.

George M. Gunn, president of the National Trades bank, New Haven, Conn.:

If the banks of the country work in harmony to carry out the provisions of the new law I believe it will result in a great improvement. I do not object and can see no good reason for objection to the regional bank.

Figures Out Results of Law.

Representative Robert J. Bulkley of Ohio, a member of the house banking and currency committee, says the new system will work out better for the country banks. According to Mr. Bulkley, the country banks' old reserves will pay the new and leave a surplus of $40,000,000.

He says that in three years—thirty-six months after the new act is in effect—the federal reserve banks will have in total assets, cash $450,215,000 and loans $171,556,000.

At that time, asserts Bulkley, their capital would be $53,445,000, and their deposits $568,326,000, totaling the same as the assets of course. This is assuming that $140,000,000 in government deposits will be withdrawn from the United States treasury and be deposited in the banks.

Mr. Bulkley has endeavored to explain how the new currency law will work out without disturbing business.

All the changes he works out in detail. He figures the withdrawals from the country banks at $270,451,000 and the release of the reserve city banks at $169,745,000. His totals of payments made show cash $86,269,600, from reserve agents $169,745,000 and rediscounts $44,816,000, a grand total of payments of $300,770,000.

Mr. Bulkley says that the central reserve city banks would pay to the new federal reserve banks $259,968,000 cash, and would then probably have to rediscount to the extent of $126,740,000, making a total payment which they would have to make of $386,703,000. All this he holds, would in the thirty-six months be accomplished without any tightening of credits or disturbance of business.

PAROLE DENIED GIRL'S SLAYER

McAllister Must Serve Full Term For Killing Jennie Bosscheiter.

Trenton, N. J., Jan. 9.—The court of pardons has refused to parole Walter C. McAllister of Paterson, convicted with George Kerr, William Campbell and William A. Death for the murder of Jennie Bosscheiter in Paterson. McAllister is serving a thirty year sentence, and his term will expire in 1921.

Forty-one paroles were granted at the court's final sitting for the November term.

A majority of the paroles granted at this term were cases where minimum terms had expired. The court decided to recommend to the legislature an amendment to the indeterminate sentence law that might make possible the discharge of prisoners whose minimum term has expired without the intervention of the court of pardons.

PRINCETON GIFTS ANNOUNCED

$81,016.52 Given University—Baseball and Football Field Named.

Princeton, N. J., Jan. 9.—Gifts amounting to $81,016.52 were announced at the regular winter meeting of the board of trustees of the university held here. The two largest gifts were of $5,000 each from the estate of the late L. C. Vanusem of Philadelphia and the late Isaac C. Wyman of Salem, Mass. Of the total amount $33,100 was for general university purposes, while $18,000 was contributed for salaries.

The new baseball and football field south of the tennis courts was named Goldie field, in honor of George Goldie, who was athletic director here for thirty-four years.

STAGE OUTLOOK TODAY.

A. L. Erlanger Discusses the Present Situation in the Theatrical Business.

In a recent interview A. L. Erlanger of the well known theatrical firm of Klaw & Erlanger frankly discussed the present situation in the theatrical business. Following are some of the striking points that Mr. Erlanger made:

The present theatrical season, from the standpoint of receipts, is the worst in seventeen years.

The formation of the syndicate was the commencement of the validity of the theatrical contract.

Until last year the easiest thing in the world to organize in any small town was a corporation to build a theater.

Big successes that used to run from six to seven years are now fortunate if they can get two full seasons.

There never has been a theatrical star or a theatrical manager clever enough to fool the public.

The theaters have overanticipated the populations in the large cities of this country at least twenty years.

The cost of "The Little Cafe" exceeds by 200 per cent that of "The

A. L. ERLANGER.

Rogers Brothers In Harvard" of ten years ago.

The manager capable of producing his own plays has at least 100 per cent advantage over the manager who depends upon his employees.

High class vaudeville has maintained itself better than any other line of amusement, for the reason that it has little or no competition.

We are going to get down very shortly to the same proposition of having only such a number of theaters as can be supplied with first class attractions.

The first nighter is one of the worst pests that ever afflicted the American stage.

The vocabulary of the New York first nighter consists of two words—"rotten" and "great."

The "movies" attract audiences because persons going there are let alone.

The trouble has been that the American business man in general, and the theatrical manager in particular, has mistaken good times for brains.

INDIANS ENTER BIG CLAIM.

Ottawas and Chippewas Assert Rights to Islands of the Great Lakes Region.

A claim for $200,000,000 against the United States government has been entered by nearly 500 Ottawa and Chippewa Indians in Michigan for alleged deprivation of valuable lands and fishing rights.

The former claims of a similar nature were recognized by the government, which paid the Indians $200,000.

The entire case hinges on the interpretation of the treaty of 1833 between the government and twelve Indian tribes. Under this it has been the belief that the Indians sold all their rights to the islands in the great lakes region. It has been discovered, however, that because of faulty wording of the treaty this is not the case and that the islands and waters in the great lakes region are not included.

At the time this treaty was entered into the Ottawas and Chippewas were divided into bands, and these bands were controlled by chiefs, each band being the owner of vast land tracts and unrestricted fishing grounds in the great lakes.

No. 47.

LOOKING for board? There are two ways of finding it. Way 1: Tramp around town until you're ready to drop. Way 2: Read the "Boarding" column on the Classified page.

Surely, among the places advertised you can find some place agreeable to you as to location, terms, etc.

And when you see that place advertised, you can go straight to it. You save time, temper, fatigue, energy and perhaps carfare.

At various times you will find advertised rooms with table board, rooms without board, board without rooms, board in private families, in hotels, in boarding houses; single rooms or en suite; with steam heat and without it; on car lines and off them.

You will find just about what you want. The cost to you will be the few minutes consumed in reading the "Boarding" ads.

Pretty handy department to have around when you need it.

CRANFORD FALLS A SECOND TIME

N. P. H. S. Girls Once More Trim Visiting Schoolgirls in Saengerbund Hall.

MISS BURTIS STARS

Borough Forwards Do Some Good Shooting After Belated Start—Game Was Close All the Way—Home Guards Also Shine.

For the second time this season the North Plainfield High School girls' basketball team defeated the Cranford girls in Saengerbund Hall by the score of 20 to 11. The game was interesting throughout and the scoring of the borough girls was scattered over the entire two periods of play.

The visitors started the game as though they meant to retaliate for the first defeat and during the first half of the initial period North Plainfield's only scores were two fouls by Miss Spencer. During the latter part of the half Miss Burtis started her usual sensationalism and made four field goals. The local guards were very prominent on the defense and kept the ball out of dangerous territory most of the time. The first half ended 12 to 4.

With about five minutes to play the visiting forwards made some pretty field goals from all angles. Miss Lewis made two fine shots and Miss Desmond received great applause when she banked a ball on the basket making the prettiest shot of the game. The first half was played with a side center, Miss Busle playing the Cranford and Miss Keller for the home team.

INTERCOLLEGIATE HOCKEY.

New York, Jan. 9.—Intercollegiate hockey for the season of 1914 will make its appearance on the athletic stage tomorrow night, when the teams of Princeton and Cornell will clash at the St. Nicholas Rink in this city. Besides Princeton and Cornell the league comprises Harvard, Yale, Columbia and Dartmouth. Although there is no regularly organized schedule of games for the series this year, the championship title will probably hang on seven games which have been announced with Harvard, Yale, Princeton and Cornell as the contenders. So far neither Columbia nor Dartmouth has made any arrangements to take an active part in the intercollegiate series this year. The season will continue until February 21.

Queries, Comment and Answers

Sporting Editor:

Query—Is there any word in the English language containing all the letters in the alphabet —H. S. P.

Answer—I never ran across one. The only way you can find this out is to read the dictionary from cover to cover and if you happen to find such a word you may have a little trouble in trying to pronounce it.

Sporting Editor:

Query—What does etc. mean?—B. D. T.

Answer—Etc. (et ceteri) is an abbreviation used in expressing "and so forth," "and others," "and the like."

Sporting Editor:

Query—Is there any value on the following coins: Half dollars dated 1810, 1829, 1831, 1833; twenty-five cent piece dated 1818?—N. C. L.

Answer—There is no value on your half dollars, but your quarter is worth from thirty to sixty cents.

Sporting Editor:

Query—What does first-class mail include?—J. T.

Answer—First class mail includes letters, postal cards, and anything sealed or otherwise closed against inspection, or anything containing writing not allowed as an accompaniment to printing matter, which is listed under third class.

Sporting Editor:

Query—Why is a glass pitcher broken when hot water is poured into it?—N. D. P.

Answer—The hot water expands the inside of the glass while the outside remains the same and the pitcher snaps when this unequal pressure is exerted.

Sporting Editor:

Query—How many gallons of refuse are cast in the New York harbor during the year?—L. F.

Answer—Every day there is poured into the Harlem River 99,000,000 gallons of sewage; into the North River 132,000,000 gallons, into the East River 264,000,000 gallons. So, in the course of a year New York city pollutes its harbor with about 495,000,000,000 gallons of refuse matter.

FLYNN THERE WITH THE SOBRIQUETS.

When it comes to originating sobriquets for his battlers Leo P. Flynn runs even John F. Dunn, the godfather of "Terrible Turk," the "Bavarian Tiger," the "Ferocious Finn" and the "Man Eating Malay," a close second. Just pipe some of the titles Leo P. has slipped his mitt artists.

First, there is the "Lewiston Bear Cat," the same being Tommy Bergin, who could absorb more punishment in one round than any other man in his class. Then there is Bert Stanley, "the Oshkosh Assassin" Flynn calls him. Andy Parker, who scored thirty-eight knockouts in forty-six fights, was christened the "Skull Cracker." "Knockout" Sweeney's label is "Fighting Corkei" and Johnny (Kid) Alberts "Jack the Jawbreaker."

The latter well deserves his nickname. He actually fractured the jaws of nine opponents in fourteen months. The latest boxer to be taken under Flynn's management is Jimmy Fasane, the boy who knocked out Young Dyson Thanksgiving day. Plain Jimmy Fasane wouldn't do for Leo. He immediately dubbed him the "Walloping Wop."

OLD RIVALS WILL MEET.

The Scotch Plains second basketball team is scheduled to play the W. F. A. team, of Bound Brook, on the latter's court tonight. These teams have met on several previous occasions this season and the contests have all been of the interesting variety.

GAME CALLED OFF.

The basketball game announced to be played in the Plainfield High School "gym" this afternoon between the local girls and the Somerville five, was called off this morning by the latter team.

N. P. H. S. GAME.

The North Plainfield High School basketball team will meet one of its oldest rivals on Saengerbund Hall court tomorrow afternoon, when the basketeers from New Brunswick High School are booked to appear.

TRACK MEET FOR P. H. S.

BRUNSWICK TEAM TOOK ALL SEVEN

Central Lodge Quoiters Were Swamped in Title Play Here.

Quoiters representing the Raritan Lodge, of New Brunswick, treated the Central ringers of this city, to a severe shock in the local rooms last night when they captured all seven of the games played in connection with the A. O. U. W. League and in so doing took the lead in the team standing with a substantial margin to spare. Up to last night the rival teams were tied for first place honors, a condition that has existed since the completion of the first half of the schedule some time ago and as the result of the blow-up last night the Centrals will finish in second instead of first place.

Battison and Stead represented the New Brunswick lodge and had an easy time asserting their supremacy over Mosher and Spicer, the local duo. These same pairs have played for their respective lodges in the former league matches. Those who follow the game expected a much closer series last night and the overwhelming defeat came as a decided surprise to the Plainfielders.

N. P. H. S. BASKETBALL RESUME FOR 1913 HAILED AS A RECORD-BREAKER

The North Plainfield High School basketball team has to date played thirteen games of which twelve are victories. A forfeited game against Somerville has also been declared a win which gives the boroughites a string of thirteen victories.

The first preliminary game was with the Watchung A. C. team and proved to be an easy victory but the team met defeat at the hands of the strong Y. M. C. A. first team the next week. The first game on Manager Van Mater's schedule was next and the Alumni were easily disposed of. From then on the team has been playing a good article of basketball and has won both easy and nerve-racking games. Five of the games played have been won with less than a five-point margin.

This string of twelve successive victories is a record for the borough school and is likely to remain intact for some time. Van Mater's schedule was so arranged that the team has had the advantage of its own court in ten of the thirteen games.

The bulk of the scoring, as usual has been done by the forwards and center and the team's total score is 489 against opponent's 299. Owing to injuries in the early part of the season, Roy Love has taken part in only seven games and has a total of 76 points and an average of 3.7 field goals per game. As Love does most of the foul shooting it has increased his total to the extent of 24 points. This gives him an average of 10.9 points per game. Van Mater has participated in all but one of the games and has a total of 102 points including 10 fouls. He has an average of 3.8 field goals a game. Van Mater has been handicapped by a bad knee that has bothered him frequently causing him to retire from some of the games.

Dunning, having played in every game, has the largest number of field goals and points to his credit the total being 134. With 67 goals in 13 games his average per game is 5.1 goals. He also has the record for field goals per game making thirteen in the second game against Kearney. For a guard, Captain Burner has a fine record with 23 field goals and 17 fouls for a total of 63 points. His average is 1.6 goals per game. This is a good showing as Burner plays in his opponent's territory most of the time.

Hyman Abrams has been in eleven games and has made eight field goals for a total of sixteen points. He is the best dribbler and passer on the team and invariably sends the ball into his teammates hands.

The team has been very well supported by the student body and the people of the borough, so far. Van Mater has staged some night games which were followed by dances and these have drawn the crowds more than anyhting else. The organized cheering section, under the direction of Lester Chandler, is also a big help to those on the floor.

Captain Burner is the only one who has played all of the games and has been in action 520 minutes so far this season. The complete summary follows:

	Games.	G.	F.	P.
Love, f.	7	26	24	76

COLLEGE BASKETBALL.

New York, Jan. 9.—The championship season of the Intercollegiate Basketball League begins tonight and will continue until March 10. The league is made up this season of six teams instead of five, Yale being added to the list. The others are Cornell, Columbia, Dartmouth, Princeton, and Pennsylvania. All of the teams have some veterans among their members and the prospects are bright for a successful season. The interest is increased by the possibility of an intersectional game being arranged at the close of the season between the champions of the Eastern League and the Western Conference.

P. H. S. AT WESTFIELD.

Plainfield High School basketball representatives will appear on the Westfield High School court tonight in the annual game with the team of that place. A dance and informal reception will follow the game.

GENERAL BLANQUET.

Mexican Leader Who Captured Madero In Palace.

A recent picture of General Aureliano Blanquet, minister of war in Huerta's cabinet, the man who made a prisoner of the late President Madero in the National palace last February. General Blanquet, then a corporal, commanded the firing squad that executed Emperor Maximilian, and he wears as a watch fob a Mexican dollar given to him by Maximilian as he faced his executioners.

WILSON FREES DOVE AT CHILD'S REQUEST

Little Girl Had Nursed Injured Bird.

Pass Christian, Miss., Jan. 9.—President Woodrow Wilson stood on the veranda of his cottage at sunset and at the request of a little brown haired schoolgirl released a white dove whose broken wing she had nursed back to strength. The bird fluttered for a moment, then paused on a heavy limbed oak, as if preparing for a long flight, and was soon lost to view.

The incident was a sequel to the president's motor ride through Gulfport. School children lined both sides of the main street singing "America," and people came flocking from stores and shops as the president's car slowed down. A child of twelve handed the president a box and a letter which she asked him not to open until he reached home. When the president arrived he read the following:

Dear Mr. President: You will find in this box a real, live dove. It flew in the door and broke its wing several months ago. We have cared for it, and now that it is well, my mamma says we must give it freedom. If you will do me the honor to open its prison and let it fly away to find companions of its kind I shall be very grateful. Lovingly, W. G.

P. S.—Just a little Tennessee girl enjoying the beautiful southland.

The president asked Representative Harrison, who was riding with him, to find out the little girl's name, as he wanted to write that he had complied with her wish. After diligent inquiry the congressman learned that the little girl was Willa Green. She had modestly signed her initials, because, as she afterward said, she did "not want anybody to know anything about it."

DIES TWICE WITHIN HOUR.

Rare Case of Suspended Animation Found by Doctors.

New York, Jan. 9.—Edward McCarrol, who worked on the dredge boat Excelsior on the Harlem river, was pronounced dead twice within fifteen minutes.

Patrolman Whitmore of the East One Hundred and Twenty-sixth street station found McCarrol, who was forty-five years old and who won a congressional medal for saving several women and children in the General Slocum disaster, lying on the sidewalk apparently dead. Dr. Frank Roohan came with a Harlem hospital ambulance, examined the man and said he had been dead for several minutes.

The body was taken to the station house. Inside McCarrol showed signs of life. Dr. Roohan put an ammonia bottle to his nose, and he sat up, with the remark, "What's going on here?" Then he fell back in a faint.

The ambulance made a dash for the hospital, and McCarrol was hurried to an operating table, where several physicians set to work on him. He did not revive this time. The physicians said it was a rare case of suspended animation. Heart disease was the cause of death.

AVIATOR'S ESCAPE.

Gilbert Has Long Fall In Paris, but Is Only Slightly Scratched.

Paris, Jan. 9.—Aviator Gilbert escaped injury in one of the most spectacular falls in French aviation.

Testing a new monoplane, he carried up a cargo of 400 pounds of sand. As he circled around the Eiffel tower, watched by hundreds, his engine failed and the monoplane plunged earthward. The machine landed on a roof, and both were smashed, Gilbert escaping with a few scratches.

MORE MARINES GOING TO MEXICO

Stronger Policy Indicated by Daniels' Order.

ACTION CAUSES SURPRISE

Lind Is Said to Have Taken a New Stand on Mexican Situation — Fear Villa Is Taken Prisoner—No Trace of Rebel Commander.

Washington, Jan. 9.—A more aggressive policy on the part of the Wilson administration in dealing with the Mexican situation is indicated in an order issued by the secretary of the navy. The secretary directs that 400 marines now stationed on the isthmus of Panama be transferred to the east coast of Mexico.

The announcement of this doubling of the force of marines by Secretary Daniels strengthened the growing impression that the administration is preparing for the adoption of a practical policy to take the place of the present attitude of waiting for President Huerta to eliminate himself.

Presidio, Tex., Jan. 9.—Although there was considerable uneasiness among members of the Mexican rebel junta here as to the whereabouts of General Pancho Villa, it was believed that there was no foundation for reports that he had been captured by the federals.

Villa left Chihuahua City last week with a thousand men and should have reached La Mula pass, south of Ojinaga, on Sunday night. The opinion is expressed by military men that the rebel chieftain may have encountered a federal force of 4,000 under General Benamin Argumedo, reported recently to be advancing to raise the rebel siege of Ojinaga. If so it is probable that a battle has been fought south of La Mula pass. Argumedo's troops are reported to outnumber Villa's forces.

The federals of Ojinaga, encouraged by their recent success, are assuming the aggressive. One thousand troops, led by General Pascual Orozco, left Ojinaga, taking the Chihuahua road toward La Mula pass. It is believed they went out to engage Villa's forces below the pass or to effect a junction with Argumedo. If it be true that Argumedo has attacked Villa it is probable that Orozco's force has joined the attack.

Orozco took a wagon train heavily laden with foodstuffs sufficient for a campaign of considerable length.

O'Shaughnessy at Vera Cruz.

Vera Cruz, Jan. 9.—Nelson O'Shaughnessy, the American charge d'affaires at Mexico City, arrived here to confer with John Lind, President Wilson's special envoy. Mr. O'Shaughnessy was accompanied by his wife. They left their six-year-old child in Mexico City. This was taken as an indication that O'Shaughnessy expects to return to Mexico City soon and that he considers the situation in the capital likely to remain quiet.

The charge proceeded at once to the American consulate, where he went into conference with Mr. Lind.

Mexico City, Jan. 9.—It is understood here that Charge O'Shaughnessy carries a message from President Huerta to Envoy Lind. On this point Mr. O'Shaughnessy said before his departure for Vera Cruz:

"There is no special significance connected with my trip. I have been wanting to get away for a day or two, and Mr. Lind is desirous of having a talk with me. I am going to him, as it is inconvenient for him to come to me. I presume he has some topic to discuss growing out of his recent conference with President Wilson, but what it is I do not know. I shall not be gone more than a day or two."

According to statements of well informed persons, Mr. O'Shaughnessy's real reason for going to Vera Cruz is to receive new proposals to be offered to General Huerta.

The feeling has gained strength here in the last few days that the Mexican and American governments are nearer an understanding than at any time since the overthrow of President Madero.

MILITANTS FIRE A SCHOOL.

Burn St. Paul's Gymnasium and Laboratories at Cheltenham, England.

Cheltenham, England, Jan. 9.—A $30,000 fire, supposedly set by "arsonettes," destroyed the gymnasium and geological and chemical laboratories of St. Paul's Training school here.

The police found evidence to indicate that the blaze was the work of the suffragettes.

PARDONS COURT EXTENDS NO CLEMENCY TO ATLANTIC MEN

Trenton, Jan. 9.—The session of the Court of Pardons Wednesday afternoon did not result in clemency for any of the convicted officials of Atlantic county who are serving terms in prison.

Estel D. Rightmire, the former Atlantic county engineer, who is serving a term for extortion from contractors through his office, failed to get his application before the court. An appeal in writing for Rightmire, submitted by Prosecutor George S. Silzer, of Middlesex, the court declined to receive. It will be considered at the March term.

Applications for pardon may also be considered at the March term in behalf of Louis Kuehnle, the convicted Atlantic county boss, and for the former freeholders, John Unsworth and Frank Enderlin, convicted with Rightmore.

The court refused to grant clemency to Rev. George D. Huggins, of Jacobstown, who is serving a term of five to fifteen years for attacking Viola Fallis, a fourteen-year-old girl, who had been placed in his charge by the New Jersey Children's Home Society. A memorandum was issued on this case expressing the court's conviction of the man's guilt. C. V. Williams, the superintendent of the Children's Home Society, was quoted as having received a confession from Huggins. The girl was before the court before a decision was given.

Renunciations

I have eschewed the fat cigars
At fifty cents per each.
The brier pipe more comfy is
And always in my reach.

I have renounced the fondling of
The twenty dollar bills.
The hundred dollar William is
The sort that cures my chills.

No more I pay attention to
The charming widows fair.
They's popping up too thick about
Your uncle everywhere.

All curiosity about
The banking laws I've curbed
Because my currency, you see,
Has always been disturbed.

STARVING BULGARS LOOK TO AMERICA FOR SUCCOR.

American Woman Teacher Here to Raise Funds For Needy Thousands.

Thousands of women and children in Bulgaria are facing starvation this winter, according to Miss Inez L. Abbott, missionary of the woman's board of the interior of the Congregational church and principal of the American girls' boarding school in Samokov, Bulgaria. Miss Abbott, who is a native of Lansing, Mich., has come to the United States to raise funds for the relief of 7,000 destitute families in the Samokov district.

With additional funds the relief committee of Samokov hopes to develop a general truck garden for the poor.

The suffering and want in Bulgaria, Miss Abbott says, were much greater in 1913 than in 1912. She explained that the crops were gathered last year before the mobilization of the armies. With all the oxen, carts and men at the front with the armies, practically no crops were planted, and such as were cultivated could not be properly harvested because of lack of labor and facilities.

"For months many Bulgarians have not known what it is to satisfy their hunger," said Miss Abbott. "In the cities and valleys around Samokov families are in direst need.

"The queen of Bulgaria is devoting all of her time and thought to relief work among her suffering people. Recently she said to me, 'If relief funds not only for suffering, but for the orphans, should come from the United States I would feel very grateful.' The Bulgarians do not fear any political entanglement such as they think may result when any European country advances assistance for them."

Miss Abbott, through an appeal last winter, raised funds in this country, with which she greatly assisted in the relief of the poverty stricken people of Samokov. Much of the money was used to buy raw materials, with which the women made garments. Some of it was also used to prepare small farms around Samokov for cultivation and to buy the seeds for planting.

SALES TO HOMESTEADERS.

Almost Two Million Acres of Indian and Public Lands Disposed Of.

Secretary Lane of the interior department has received through Commissioner Tallman of the general land office a report of the work of James W. Witten, chief law clerk of that office, concerning sales of undeveloped lands under his personal direction. Mr. Witten was absent four months in the west, superintending the registration and drawings for three bodies of land aggregating 1,800,000 acres located in Montana and Nebraska. At these registrations 116,985 persons presented applications for farm homes.

In addition, he sold at public auction lots in the government town site of Camas, in Montana, and the remnant lands in the former Rosebud and Lower Brule Indian reservations, in South Dakota, and in the Kiowa, Comanche, Apache and Wichita reservations, in Oklahoma, at prices ranging from $1.25 to $111 per acre, or at an average of $8 per acre per bid. The larger part of these remnant lands remained untaken by homeseekers after having been subject to homestead entry at $1.25 per acre for twelve years.

NAVY CUTS COST OF LIVING.

Reduction From $1.50 to 44 Cents a Day on Travel by Rail.

The navy department has found another way to beat the "high cost of living" and the "trusts," on both of which Secretary Daniels is waging war, so far as his department is affected.

By adopting the system of feeding bluejackets in transit by rail out of the navy commissary instead of by contract with the Pullman company as heretofore the department has discovered that it can reduce the cost per day per man from $1.50 to 44 cents.

When 150 recruits were transferred from the north Chicago training station to Seattle recently the new plan was tried. Food from the commissary at the Chicago station was put aboard and served in kitchen tourist cars furnished by the Pullman company. Navy mess boys acted as waiters. The plan worked splendidly and effected a saving of several hundred dollars on the trip.

J. H. Karnes, humane official of Kenosha, Wis., has worked ten months for the state society in Kenosha county, and his total pay has been $1. This dollar is framed and hanging up in his home. The work is supposed to be supported by private subscriptions, and just one subscription was received.

Window Washing.

Window washing is difficult enough in summer. In winter it is more difficult, because of the cold. The water freezes to the glass if there is no sun—yet every one knows that sun makes the glass look cloudy and streaky, and windows ought never to be washed in the sun.

One way to get about this difficulty of cold weather window washing is not to wash the windows regularly in the winter. Wash them only on mild, pleasant days. Of course, clean, clear glass is a delight on winter days, when the windows must be closed. But cloudy windows for a few days are permissible when the weather is cold.

If the windows must be washed in very cold weather wash the glass with water in which there is a little alcohol. Wood alcohol can be used. This evaporates so quickly that it will probably not freeze.

How to Wash Them.

Use a chamois skin for window washing. Dip the chamois in clear, cool water and rub the glass thoroughly, until all streaks and dirt are gone. Rinse the chamois, wring it as nearly dry as possible, and rub the glass once again. This is all that is necessary.

If you do not use chamois be careful to use a cloth that does not readily give off lint.

If the window, in spite of your efforts, does look linty, rub it with tissue paper. Even newspaper is sometimes used to polish glass, but it is so coarse that it sometimes scratches the surface of the glass.

Never use soap, as this clouds the glass.

If there are paint stains on the window chip them off as well as possible without scratching the glass, with a palate knife. Get the rest off with alcohol or gasoline.

To Prevent Steaming.

In very cold weather it is sometimes difficult to keep the windows from becoming covered with steam. In restaurants the method employed to prevent the forming of steam on the cold glass is to go over the inside of the window with a cloth moistened with pure glycerine. Wipe the window almost dry, leaving the barest trace of glycerine.

Practical Fashion Hints

By Alice Gibson

8006

No. 8006 is a practical design for a child's rompers. The trousers are attached to a long belt in the back, and the garment closes on the side front. One of the wash materials would be most suitable, in a dark blue or brown. If contrast is desired trimming bands and belt may be of white or another color. A marked change has taken place in children's clothing the last few seasons, a change for the better, giving them a chance to romp and play without being hampered by uncomfortable clothing. The throat is left open as in the grown up styles, the skirts are usually attached to underwaists, and the very small girl as well as the boy is allowed the freedom of rompers.

This garment may be made in size 3, with 2 yards of 30 inch material and ½ yard of contrasting goods for trimming.

The pattern is cut in 6 sizes—½ to 6.

This Is a Perfect Pattern.

Be sure to state right size, passing the tape around the fullest part of the chest well up under the arms.

It may be obtained by filling out the coupon and enclosing 10 cents in stamps or coin to the Pattern Department of this paper.

Modern Art Influence In Fabrics.

The beginning of the vogue for color has been credited to the war in Turkey, says Junius Cravens in a recent article, but why a war in Turkey should inspire the world to burst into color is hardly apparent. But, whatever those influences are or whether one likes them or not, they are affecting not only gowns and hats, but are spreading through every branch of applied arts.

The effect is already noticeable in furniture, floor coverings, wall papers and even pottery of all kinds. It is particularly emphasized just now in drapery materials and fabrics of all kinds.

One cannot fail to recognize how different these new fabrics are from those one is accustomed to see. To Vienna is given the credit for lighting the way into this new field of work. Ideas came from the peasant art of Austria and Hungary, and well known artists were not slow to use this source of information. To Professor Josef Hoffman of Vienna is great credit due for the adaptation of the peasant art.

The cut shows one of his fabric designs, consisting of black leaves on a white background. The long bell shaped flowers are in solid brilliant yellow and Persian orange. These vivid materials combine well with simple designs in furniture of the mission type and the best old Sheraton, Chippendale and Adams examples.

At first one may not like the new art, but that it has come to stay there is no doubt. It is the outgrowth of the seeds planted by William Morris.

Some Cookery Suggestions

SOME TOOTHSOME SHELLFISH.

LUNCHEON MENU.
Fruit.
Creamed Scallops.
Cauliflower.
Biscuit
Tea.

SHELLFISH, when not obtainable fresh in a given locality or when out of season, may be bought in the canned form. These provide material for many dainty luncheon dishes and are a boon to the housewife, as they may be kept on hand for the unexpected guest.

Clams, shrimps, lobsters, crabs and oysters may all be obtained in this form.

Some methods of using these shellfish are given here.

Dainty Salad.

Lobster Salad.—Cut the meat of a good sized lobster into half inch dice, saving out the coral. Mix with two leaves of lettuce broken into small pieces and half a cupful of mayonnaise dressing. Place heart of lettuce leaves around the edge of the salad dish or use them for cups. Fill with the lobster and cover with mayonnaise dressing, using the coral cut in small pieces and the small claws for a garnish.

Scallops In Shells.

Creamed Scallops.—Dry the scallops in a napkin. Make a thick, rich white sauce with one cupful of cream, one tablespoonful of butter and two of flour. Stir until smooth and thick and season with salt and paprika. Add the scallops and simmer for one minute. Do not cook longer or scallops will toughen and shrink. Serve in scallop shells, sprinkling with breadcrumbs, and brown in quick oven. These are delicious.

Served In Scallop Shells.

Crab Farcie.—Take two quarts of crab meat, one small onion, one tablespoonful of butter, six mushrooms, one pint of breadcrumbs, two tablespoonfuls of tomato ketchup, pepper and salt to taste and one cupful of well seasoned soup stock. Chop the crab meat fine, melt the butter in a granite saucepan and add the crab meat. Chop the mushrooms and onions into small pieces and let them soak with the breadcrumbs in the stock for ten minutes. Then pour off the liquid, and add the mixture to the crab meat. Let the whole heat slowly, and after it begins to cook through let it remain on the stove about ten minutes. Remove from the fire and fill scallop shells with the mixture. Put breadcrumbs and a small piece of butter over the top of each and then bake in a quick oven until brown.

A Beautiful Fairy Appeared.

Daddy's Bedtime Story—The Fairy Queen's New Year's Visit.

"ONCE upon a time," commenced daddy, "a grand ball was given on New Year's eve by all the elves and brownies. It was held in a beautiful park, which was lighted with Japanese lanterns, and there were a number of little flower booths in the corners of the park where the elves and brownies could drink pink lemonade when they felt hot and thirsty from dancing. The elves were far prettier dancers than the brownies, for they were graceful and dainty, and the way they could twirl on their toes and spin around filled the brownies with envy. The brownies looked very cunning in their little brown suits and quaint brown hats, but they were much too fat to be good dancers. Often they would topple over in dancing, and how the elves would laugh and how mad it made the brownies feel!

"Toward the latter part of the evening they forgot all envious feelings and joined together in doing square dances and Virginia reels.

"When they were almost ready to drop from dancing so much and playing so hard they decided it was about time to stop. So they all sat down on the grass for the most marvelous supper you can ever possibly imagine. First they had broiled gillyfloids' tongues on toast, then some fried ants with mushroom sauce, delicious snail salad and for dessert pink ice cream to match the pink lemonade, for they voted on pink as their favorite color. Of course they had nuts and raisins and bonbons of all colors to pull with each other. In the bonbons were all sorts of little toys, whistles, paper caps and mottoes, wooden soldiers and toy animals."

"Suddenly a most beautiful fairy appeared, dressed all in white, with a silver crown on her head, a silver wand and silver stars glittering on her dress.

"'The queen of the fairies!' said they all breathlessly. And at this moment at a far distance were heard the sounds of bells ringing in a new year.

"'Happy New Year to all the elves and brownies!' said the queen.

"'Happy New Year, beautiful fairy!' said all in reply.

"The fairy queen waved her wand and in the loveliest, most musical voice said, 'I wish you all good luck!' at which she vanished, and in the lap of each little elf and brownie lay a glittering round gold piece with 'Good luck from the fairy queen' engraved on it.

"Never had the elves and brownies had such a marvelous surprise, and a visit from the fairy queen, to have actually seen her—oh, it was wonderful! And they knew how lucky they were, for if the fairy queen wished them luck it would be sure to follow them all their lives. And you may be sure all the little elves and brownies were the happiest creatures in existence as they crawled into their flowery beds very, very early that New Year's morning."

An Editor's Opinion of Newspaper Reading.

On the subject of allowing children to read newspapers, The Baltimore American says editorially: "Getting closer to the responsibility for the news which is printed, we find that a tremendous amount of discretion is left with the managing editor, the telegraph editor and his copy readers, the city editor and his assistants. These men handle night after night, enormous batches of news, a great portion of which is never printed. They are the ones who must decide what shall appear the next morning, and what shall be 'killed.' The personality of these men, again, will throw light on the question. In most cases you will find them cultivated, gentlemanly, refined men of family, just as jealous of the morals of their children as are their readers. Certainly, this must be a strong controlling motive.

"So we cannot expect these men to be anxious to spread spiced stuff in their sheets, that low instincts may be pondered to. Every parent may rest assured that these men will 'blue pencil' stuff—tone it down—when it appears indecent, in most cases throwing away that which is not indispensible. But there is the rub. News is news. A newspaper exists to tell it. The Thaw trial was a great problem for editors. Under such circumstances, it could hardly be expected that the reports of the case would make family circle reading. That brings us to the great question: How is a parent to deal with newspapers in the home? Granting that their editors are anxious to keep them clean, but understanding, too, that they will sometimes contain things which children should not see, what then is to be done?

"No father or mother has the right to hand children a newspaper, knowing not what it contains. If the parents do not read the papers, then certainly the little ones should not much as those old enough to understand should read in order to be alive to the world in which they are growing. The father and mother should constitute in every home a family board of censorship. * * *

"Opinions differ as to crimes, such as suicides, murders, thefts and kidnappings. These are surely explosives and must be handled with care. Yet, when my little daughter grows big enough to understand, I know what I shall do. I shall make of these reports brief object lessons, allowing her to hear them but lightly, and toned down to touch her innocent understanding. Through my interpretation, she shall learn from them how sad it is that men neglect the lessons their mothers taught them in their youths, to grow up into felons, garbed in stripes."

The Dinner Hostess.

It is imperative that the dinner hostess be ready and unruffled by haste, a little ahead of the time set for her guests to arrive. If civility counts at all, one's guests are usually on time. It is proper to wait a few moments for the late comers. The rule laid down by a clever hostess in London some years ago was: "To wait dinner five minutes for an earl and countess, ten minutes for a duke and duchess and fifteen minutes for the Prince and Princess of Wales. The king is never late." Which proves the great of the earth are punctual in keeping their engagements.

It is not kind nor proper to spoil a good dinner for many guests because of the late arrivals of the few. It is proper to announce dinner five minutes after the arrival of the last guest—unless we adopt the American fashion of having cocktails served in the drawing room before dinner. Then dinner is announced five minutes after that little ceremony is over. The conservative part of the world of fashion follow the foreign idea and omit the cocktail. The wines are usually very simple—a good white wine and champagne with the dessert and fruit. The men linger over the wines and nuts a very short time today.

The table linen may be as elaborate as the pocketbook permits. Yet the dictates of good form point to the less trimmed cloth, a fine damask or linen hemstitched with napkins to match. The napkins are large and square, with the initials embroidered in the center, and folded in three parts.

The decorations in glass and silver are less ostentatious. The glassware is now of rock crystal and the tumbler for water—cooled, not iced—has a tall, slender stem, the wine glasses and champagne glass the same shape in miniature.

The display of knives and forks is reduced to a mere nothing today. The old time bewildering glitter was too formidable—it spoiled our dinner by suggesting "too much for digestion's sake."

The number of plates is also reduced. A guest should never be without a plate before him. "The little aperitif" is on a small plate resting in a larger one, and when removed a dinner plate is at once placed in front of the guest and removed as the plate upon which the soup plate rests is put before the guest. Another plate is substituted for the entire course in the same way. It is very simple, and the only rule is there should not be a vacant place in front of the guest. A plate should always be there.

A little block of bread or "petit pain" is put by the napkin to be used as a convenience in managing wilful tidbits which evade the fork, with a gentle but decided coercion.

Finger bowls of rock crystal, with a little plate to match, and a pretty lace doily under the bowl are brought in with the dessert plates at a home dinner, and with the plates for fruits and bonbons at a more formal affair. The water in the bowls should be warmed just enough to take the chill off, and a bit of lemon should be added to the water, which should cover the first joint of the fingers.

Good Form In Posing.

Have you ever sat in a restaurant and looked around at the various tables occupied by pretty women and then dropped your eyes to the floor and scrutinized the position of their feet? What a shock awaits you, for the average woman assumes the most grotesque positions when she sits herself down in a chair—or, rather, her feet take on the weirdest attitudes that any one could imagine. For instance, she may be sitting correctly from the waist upward—the acme of grace as far as the upper part of her body is concerned—but her feet are twisted and curled around the legs of the chair in a way that suggests a contortionist, or if this is not the case perhaps she has placed her pedal extremities on the floor with the toes turned in until one suspects her of being pigeon toed.

Why is it that so few women can make their feet behave? And why do the many who walk with the greatest amount of grace lose all their charm the minute they sink into a chair? The correct sitting position is not difficult, and any woman can learn to assume it with a little care and practice.

When sitting down, whether at a restaurant table, in an easy chair or in a public place, do not forget that the feet should be placed squarely on the floor, the heels touching or very nearly touching, the knees not too far apart. This position is just as comfortable as any of the grotesque attitudes assumed when crossing the knees, curling the feet around the rungs of the chair or any of the hundred and one other ungraceful modes of sitting indulged in by so very many women.

How often have you seen a pretty girl destroy all her grace and charm by slouching down into a chair! She was quite unconscious of the impression she was creating, and only carelessness was responsible for this awkward pose. And yet many girls are just as careless and just as awkward and willfully destroy all their reputation for grace.

—It is wiser to know what a thing ought to cost before buying it; and ad-readers usually do know this.

A Timely Suggestion.

Sofa pillows give such a comfortable, attractive appearance to a room, that one is always glad to have a number of them about.

Here is a charming design for a pillow cover in the thousand-flower embroidery which can be very quickly done and would make an acceptable gift.

This stitch is so easy to do, that even a novice need not hesitate to undertake it. Each petal is made with one stitch, taken from the center of the flower, to the edge. The wreaths may be developed in several shades of one color, or two shades of pink, lavender, blue, yellow, green and very little black. These colors may be scattered effectively throughout the design in any order desired.

The size of this pattern is eleven and three-quarter by 17¼ inches and it is suitable for use on a pillow cover, table runner or centerpiece of white or natural colored linen, denim, crafts, canvas, monk's cloth or pongee. Rope silk or very heavy mercerized cotton should be used in developing the design.

Pattern number 14378 will be supplied to readers of the Daily Press for fifteen cents.

Smart Toggery for Holiday Sports

FROM the crown of her head to the sole of her foot the fashionable woman dons sporting toggery which is the result of the effort of specialists to afford appropriate attire for every outdoor amusement of the winter season.

A monkey coat, so called on account of its novel cut, is one of the last inventions of London tailors. It is a sleeveless jacket, with the fronts cut in points a little below the waist line, a small skirt yoke showing embroidery beneath, and a narrow pointed tail reaching to the hem. A fur scarf supplies protection for the arms.

Chic velour hats are modish for outing wear, either in black or colors, the latter being favored to match some bright sport coats or to liven up a somber suit. One of the most attractive midseason hats is the white turban on the model in the center of the page. It is made of soft cream white felt and has a brim of coney fur, upturned and left as the wearer chooses. The charm of this and many other hats of the hour is their extreme simplicity. Scarcely any trimming at all appears on some. Now an artificial gardenia with a dark green leaf or two is [illegible] pleasing in effect.

Dark fur hats with narrow close brims and in turban shapes are popular and elegant. Longer furs, like raccoon and sable, are used for warmth, particularly for motoring. Many practical full length motor coats are seen in the less expensive grades of fur, such as astrakhan and raccoon. Leopard skin coats are an extreme novelty, as is the same fur in muffs and for trimming.

8128- Outing Coat on Kimono Lines

Fur Chin-Strap A New Idea

A FURRY successor of the fashionable "bride" of smart winter hats is a chin strap of fur, matching a cap to which it is attached. This novelty is the latest idea in headgear for winter sports. It is a veritable Dave Crockett frontier protector, save that a bunch of flowers is added on one side to give the feminine note, indispensable in the "nearly mannish" attire of the ultra smart woman. Fresela is the blossom on the cap pictured. The fur is raccoon.

For winter sports in the north, like skating and tobogganing, these fur hats are destined to be popular, while they serve another purpose for motoring in cold weather. Only the flowers or a rosette of ribbon distinguishes the girl's fur chin cap from her brother's or possibly her chauffeur's.

7896 Waffle Check Sport-Coat

SPORT coats continue to answer fashion's demand for an informal garment, which cannot be replaced by any of the many other kinds of wraps now a part of the well equipped wardrobe. Whatever else occupies many hours of the day, some at least of the holiday season are given to outdoor amusements. The plainer practical clothes must be correct of their kind and not merely left-overs of other season's town or street attire.

For golf, motoring, skating and tobogganing strong woolen materials, Scotch or English mixtures, are made up this season in a variety of trim looking coats of three-quarter and seven-eighths length. What is generally known as a "sport" coat has quite supplanted the skirt and jacket for outing. The coats are worn over a one-piece dress of plain serge or a dark plaid material or, still, with a skirt of tweed or corduroy and a silk shirt waist.

The very short mackinaw has given way to the longer coats with the advance of the cold season. Two new models are pictured on this page. The one on the left is of double face soft elder-down cloth, which needs no lining, and yet is warm because it has so much wool in it. Notice the broad soft collar. The designers of sport coats have added this feature for style and for use, as it can be brought close up around the throat for protection. The kimono shoulder with full length sleeve is also the very latest cut. This is virtually so simple that one can easily copy it and have a much needed wrap for a few dollars. It may be made from pattern No. 8128, which comes for either misses or ladies. Three and one-half yards of fifty-four inch material will make a large size. The deep belt with pocket at the low waist line is novel and there is a trimming strap on the sleeve which may be buttoned over to close the end of the sleeve at the wrist. Price 15 cents.

The double face materials avoid the necessity for lining or even facing the revers, as the edges may be pulled apart and turned in with a stitching for the neat finish.

Waffle Checks A New Fabric Weave.

Waffle checks are one of the newest weaves in cloaking materials. They come in a variety of colorings, but that of the model shown, No. 7896, is in black and white. Here it is made in a single breasted coat with a breast pocket and two lower patch pockets. The set-in sleeve is used in this and is preferred still by some dress authorities. This is a misses' garment, thirty-four inches long in the back. Large white buttons lend a smart finish. It, too, is a coat which many will like to reproduce because of its simplicity and because the difficulty of mannish tailoring is eliminated with the soft fleecy materials sold for the purpose.

Not plaids alone only, but in combination with plain materials have the sanction of French modistes just now for useful dresses. In the center of the page is one of the latest models, showing the effective use of plaid silk with navy blue serge. This has a kimono blouse top and plaited tunic, with a wide front panel of the serge in the skirt and on the blouse. Fancy bone buttons in blue and white supply the requisite color contrast for decoration. The blouse is closed at one side and has a collar pointing out over the shoulders with a graceful line. There is a wide belt of black satin.

A variety of other combinations of material might be effectively made up after this model with pattern No. 8094. Price 15 cents.

Knitted Sweaters In Fancy Weaves.

Knitted sweaters have attained new importance since manufacturers have produced them in high grades of silk, changeable effects and fancy weaves. They are also fashioned to fit the figure smoothly, even when made of heavy woolen varns. Checks in two colors are novel and come by way of Paris, where the idea is attributed to Paquin.

The range of striking new art color combinations is being tried out in the sweater of the hour. Combinations of orange and brown, violet with yellow, green and ochre, and vivid blue with gray, are some of the effects seen either in changeable weaves or with borders, collars and pockets of contrasted colors.

Many soft woolen sweaters almost reflect the coloring of the Scotch heather and the greensward, as instanced in a woman's golf coat of misty green and maroon, with a plain two inch green band around the edge. Golf stockings and a cap are woven to match.

Attractive lines of knitted silk scarfs for men, women and children are being sold in a wide variety of colors.

Ruffles In Sight For Spring Skirts.

Plaited flounces, such as that illustrated, and many more flounces of various shapes and widths point to a certain return of ruffles for spring and summer. Just how they will be used is a matter of some conjecture, but in all probability the scant foundation skirt will remain with the fullness given only by the flounces. One of the latest words from the center of fashion creation is that a spiral flounce will be worn in corkscrew effect. Just how pleasing this can appear is proven by advance models. There is going to be a new vogue of batiste embroideries on cern grounds. Various widths of these are coming to the retail market and some are anticipated with colored embroidery in view of the Futurist art influence on dress fashions.

Taffeta is also returning, in soft qualities with the chiffon finish. Some dainty evening frocks are now being made of this with lace flouncings.

Gift Sachets for Fifty Cents

HAND embroidered linen sachets are dainty and at the same time practical, as they can be laundered as easily as a pocket handkerchief. Two very attractive shapes are shown in the illustration, which one may make for 50 cents, including a yard of narrow ribbon, and the pattern No. 14594 at 10 cents. The latter includes four other patterns besides the two with forget-me-not designs and violet work. They are made of handkerchief linen and worked with white cotton. The sachet powder is put on a piece of raw cotton, which makes a little pad in the outside cover.

The same designs can be used for jewel or money bags to be worn inside the clothing. If material as thin as crinolle is used, colored satin sachets may be slipped inside and show their color through. Many holiday gift sachets of the latter kind have been sold in the city shops.

Star Bon Bouchee For Christmas Menu

AN introductory "appetizer," though almost a misnomer, for the Christmas dinner is a bon bouchee illustrated above and [illegible] while because it appears in [illegible] very appropriate star shape. Cut six pointed star of toast four inches across and [illegible] the several points that separate [illegible] sliced or chopped olives, yolk of hard boiled eggs, whites, celery and pickles. Put a tiny ball of cream cheese in the mayonnaise in the middle, with a sprig of parsley. For those who like caviar, one may can be made of it.

Serve on lacy paper doilies.

A new way of serving stewed apricots is in pastry shells made as for tarts. On the top of the fruit squeeze a rose or convolution of whipped cream pressed through a pastry tube. A little larger size tube may be similarly used to make a border of mashed potatoes around a planked steak or other dish one may wish to garnish for a special occasion.

HOUSEHOLD HINTS.

IF one buys almond meal as it may be had from large grocery stores, it is easy to make macaroons at home and at less cost than they can be bought. Allow one-half pound of almond meal to one pound of sifted powdered or confectioner's sugar. Mix very thoroughly into the beaten whites of four eggs, to which a few drops of almond flavoring has been added. Drop the paste through a stiff paper cone in round, tiny cakes on a white, ungreased paper in a baking tin. Cook in a moderate oven for ten minutes. Chopped nuts, candied cherries or bits of angelica may be put on the top by glazing the macaroons with white of egg and water to make them stick.

French Pan Cakes.

Beat the whites and yolks of six eggs separately until very light, and to the latter add a tablespoonful of sugar. Sift half a teaspoonful of baking powder in three cupfuls of flour. Mix the yolks and flour, adding a tablespoonful of melted butter and a cupful of milk. Fold in the whites and beat all very lightly. Bake in small cakes on a hot, greased griddle, turning to brown both sides. Butter, spread with jelly and roll up. Dust with sugar and serve on a warm dish. These make a good luncheon dessert.

Paper Funnel For Pie.

When cooking the Christmas pie, try putting two little funnels of white paper in holes in the crust, to allow the steam to escape. This will prevent the juice or gravy from overflowing or breaking the crust.

ADVISES X-RAY AS CANCER CURE

Better Substitute Than Radium, Says Expert.

MAY APPLY IN EVERY CASE

Head of United States Hygienic Laboratory Says It Should Be Used In All Hospitals and That Radium Can Relieve Only Few Cases.

Washington, Jan. 9.—Director John F. Anderson, head of the United States hygienic laboratory, has recommended modified X-ray treatment as a substitute for the radium cancer treatment.

Relying upon the statement of Dr. Howard A. Kelly of Baltimore that a new X-ray device can produce cheaply and effectively the proper kinds of rays, Dr. Anderson held that this method should be used in all hospitals where machines are available.

"Radium would never cure more than a fraction of the cancer cases nor relieve more than the most pitiful percentage of sufferers," he said, "while the use of the modified X-rays may be applied to every case. There would never be a sufficient supply of radium to meet all demands, but any hospital could equip its machines with the new device, making almost as efficacious a treatment as radium."

Friends of Representative Robert B. Bremner of New Jersey, who is undergoing the radium treatment for cancer at Dr. Kelly's sanitarium, were pleased at the report of Joseph P. Tumulty, secretary to the president, that Mr. Bremner showed improvement. Secretary Tumulty, who visited Mr. Bremner at President Wilson's request, reported the improvement to President Wilson.

Dr. Kelly told Mr. Tumulty that the radium cure was proving beneficial in Mr. Bremner's case and that he hoped for a complete recovery.

Has Another Agency.

Baltimore, Jan. 9.—Dr. Kelly announced that cancer is now being treated and cured by a device which greatly intensifies the X-ray and controls their application. The X-ray application is much cheaper than the radium treatment and brings relief from the dread disease within the reach of all sufferers.

"We are now dealing with another agency," said Dr. Kelly, which in our opinion will practically supplant radium as a curative for cancer.

"Scientists all over the world have been experimenting with an X-ray device which, in our opinion, now that we have observed it in its perfected form, will do all that has been claimed for radium, and perhaps a great deal more.

"Certainly it has one vast advantage over radium, and that is its cost. I think I can state that the treatment by the perfected X-ray will be within the reach of all.

"This device is in operation now, and all demonstrations have been so entirely successful and gratifying that I deem it wise to disclose our secret at this time.

"Radium will always have its place in every laboratory and hospital that can afford it. But when one considers how expensive it is you can readily imagine how much more universally its rival will be used. This new ray is not in a strict interpretation of the word new. It is the old ray many times intensified and so perfected that it can be applied with ease and applied, too, to any part of the body."

HINMAN CAN BE LEADER.

Offered Place by Thaddeus C. Sweet, New Speaker.

Albany, N. Y., Jan. 9.—Assemblyman Harold J. Hinman of Albany, defeated Republican candidate for speaker of the assembly, can have the majority leadership if he wants it. Speaker Thaddeus C. Sweet of Oswego conferred with Mr. Hinman for two hours and at the end of the talk announced that Mr. Hinman would let him know whether he would accept the place.

Should Mr. Hinman decide not to take the place because of poor health or family reasons, it is said that the majority leadership will go either to Erie or Monroe county.

Mr. Sweet will make up his committees next week and declares that neither the position taken by the assemblymen in the recent speakership fight nor their geographical location will have any influence in the appointments. What he wants is ability, he says.

MOYER BACK IN MICHIGAN.

Head of Western Federation Returns to Scene of Deportation.

Houghton, Mich., Jan. 9.—Charles H. Moyer, president of the Western Federation of Miners, returned to the copper country accompanied by Charles H. Tanner, auditor of the federation, who was deported with him on Dec. 26. The men came under guard of deputy sheriffs and will appear before the special grand jury. Arrangements for Moyer's return were made by Grant Fellows, attorney general of Michigan, after a conference here with Governor Ferris.

Moyer went at once to a room. He pleaded fatigue, and his appearance did not belie his statement. Tanner also declined to discuss anything connected with his experience.

MILLIONAIRE HELD AS A WHITE SLAVER

Caught With Pretty Stenographer In South.

Mobile, Ala., Jan. 9.—J. M. Foster of Brown's Mill-In-the-Pines, N. J., and twenty-year-old Delilah Bradley, a beautiful girl of the same place, were arrested here. Foster is accused of violating the Mann white slave act, and the girl was held as a material witness. Bail was furnished for both, $2,000 for Foster and $500 for Miss Bradley.

Foster, who is the millionaire son of the president of the International Correspondence schools at Scranton, Pa., was running a farm at Brown's Mill. He eloped with Miss Bradley, whose people live in Pemberton, N. J., on Dec. 15. The man deserted his wife and child.

The couple reached here on Dec. 23 and registered at the leading hotel of the city as man and wife under an assumed name. They made no particular attempt to conceal themselves, and apparently did not fear pursuit. It is believed they were getting ready to take a ship to some foreign port.

The news that Foster and the girl was missing was concealed by the members of the families of the pair until it was certain that they had gone away together. Then the police authorities were notified, as was the government bureau having to do with the prosecution of offenders charged with taking a woman from one state to another for immoral purposes.

The arrest was made here by agents of the United States government. They had trailed Foster and the girl from Philadelphia to Mobile.

THE PLAINFIELD THEATRE

The Washington branch of the Drama League endorsed Annie Russell's Comedy Company in this bulletin sent to its members: "She Stoops to Conquer," as presented by Miss Annie Russell's Old English Comedy Company, is a gratifying revival of a play, whose structure is of such skillful workmanship, whose character types, though quaintly set in the atmosphere of a sentimental period now remote and unfamiliar, are yet so universally human in their impressions, impulses and weaknesses as to render it quite as novel and fresh in interest as it must have been on the day of its first presentation. The principle of "fitness" in the relation of character to situation, so carefully observed by Goldsmith, has been keenly appreciated and artistically fulfilled by the players; so that we see in the characters of the play as produced by this company, exactly the types who could be found in or who could be made responsible for the complications that go to make up the plot. We see in the Tony Lumpkin of George Giddens the very fellow who could obviously play just the kind of practical joke that he does play on his step-father. We see in the careful presentation of the step-father exactly the type of man upon whom such a joke could be successfully played; in Mrs. Hardcastle, the mother, the woman who could easily be lost in the familiar horse-pond and in the Marlowe of Oswald Yorke, a perfectly consistent combination of suavity and confusion. The production abounds in humor that is clean, genuine and irresistible. Much praise and appreciation is due the company for their freedom from caricature and exaggeration, for the refreshing simplicity and charming spontaneity of the fun which plays and bubbles deliciously through lines and situations. They deserve unqualified approval of this new, happy, artistic presentation of a delightful Old Comedy. Miss Russell will appear at the Plainfield theatre, tomorrow night.

SEABRIGHT SEEKS SEA WALL, STATE TRADE BODY IS TOLD

Jersey City, Jan. 9.—Seabright has declined aid from the State Chamber of Commerce. The Mayor of the seaside resort said the citizens do not need help, but strongly requested the chamber to advocate a gigantic concrete sea wall along the coast.

"That is a rather delicate matter," said a member of the State chamber yesterday. "Such a proposal would come under the jurisdiction of the Riparian Commissioners and we would hesitate to interfere."

Secretary John E. Payne of the Riparian Commission, when seen in his offices in the Commercial Trust building, said:

"Such suggestions are very good." He refused, however, to give his opinion on the request made by the shore Mayor.

MEAT CAUSE OF KIDNEY TROUBLE

Take Salts to Flush Kidneys if Back Hurts or Bladder Bothers.

If you must have your meat every day, eat it, but flush your kidneys with salts occasionally, says a noted authority who tells us that meat forms uric acid which almost paralyzes the kidneys in their efforts to expel it from the blood. They become sluggish and weaken, then you suffer with a dull misery in the kidney region, sharp pains in the back or sick headache, dizziness, your stomach sours, tongue is coated and when the weather is bad you have rheumatic twinges. The urine gets cloudy, full of sediment, the channels often get sore and irritated, obliging you to seek relief two or three times during the night.

To neutralize these irritating acids to cleanse the kidneys and flush off the body's urinous waste get four ounces of Jad Salts from any pharmacy here; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys will then act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for generations to flush and stimulate sluggish kidneys, also to neutralize the acids in urine, so it no longer irritates, thus ending bladder weakness.

Jad Salts is inexpensive; cannot injure, and makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink.—Adv.

FIND WOMAN IN RIVER WITH BIBLE IN HAND

Had Been In Water but a Few Hours.

New York, Jan. 9.—With a Bible clasped in her hands and finger marks on her throat the body of a well dressed woman was taken from the waters of the Harlem river near One Hundred and Thirtieth street. The body had been in the water only a few hours.

The police are making a search of the barges and canal boats in the river to establish the identity of the woman. The theory has been advanced that she was attacked by some one aboard one of these craft and was praying her assailant to release her when she was hurled overboard.

The Bible was expensively bound. It was one published in Stockholm, and on the fly leaf was the inscription "Anna Marie Lundberg, May 20, 1907." In the woman's purse was a fine lace handkerchief with the initial "L" embroidered in one corner.

The woman was about thirty years old. Her features showed refinement, and her carefully tended hands proved her unused to hard work. Her hair was the most striking feature of her appearance. It hung in a single heavy golden brown braid almost to her heels. She had blue eyes, a clear complexion and fine teeth.

An autopsy has been ordered to determine whether the woman was drowned or had been choked to death before she entered the water. Captain Fred Mott of harbor squad B and several detectives are investigating the woman's death.

Captain Mott said that it was most unusual, especially at this season, for a body to rise to the surface so soon after death. He said that the woman when her body was recovered had not been dead for more than four or five hours.

GUARD TELLS OF THAW.

Jerome Still Keeps Away From Hearing Before Commission.

Concord, N. H., Jan. 9.—The Thaw commission met at the home of General Frank Streeter, chairman, to hear the testimony of Marshal E. P. Nute, the third member of Thaw's guard. Nute was questioned regarding Thaw's mental condition and asked if it is his belief that Thaw would be dangerous if admitted to bail.

Dr. Morton Prince, a member of the commission, was absent, having left last night for his home in Boston. Dr. Prince is believed to be suffering from erysipelas, and his condition is said to be critical.

TYPHUS SHIP ROMA RELEASED

Disinfected at Quarantine Before She Goes to Pier.

New York, Jan. 9.—The French steamship Roma from Marseilles, which was detained on arrival at quarantine, owing to a suspected case of typhus among the steerage passengers, was released and proceeded to the Fabre line pier. The steamship has been disinfected by the health department.

NOTES FROM LABOR FIELD

Indianapolis unions plan to establish a big co-operative store.

Eighty-three thousand men and women hold membership in Boston trade unions.

Organized barbers in Philadelphia are agitating for an 8 p. m. closing time.

Labor won a sweeping victory in the recent general elections in New South Wales.

The annual convention of the Kentucky State Federation of Labor will meet in Frankfort next week.

Denmark is said to have the most comprehensive system of unemployment insurance of any country of Europe.

Organized labor in Michigan will attempt to have a law passed requiring an eight-hour day on all State work.

During the year just closed the United Brotherhood of Carpenters and Joiners paid out $350,000 in death benefits.

New York State has 148,851 factories, employing 1,236,150 persons, of whom 347,601 are women and 13,519 are children.

Recommendations for increased wages for employes of the government printing office aggregating $83,000 have been made by the public printer to Congress.

Since 1906 a law has been in force in Norway providing unemployment insurance offices which act in behalf of the State and municipalities. The system covers 60,000 workers and 6,000 permanent employes.

On account of the congested condition of labor on the Canadian Pacific coast and the Hindu question, the government of British Columbia has promulgated an order prohibiting until March 31 entry into the Province of all artisans and laborers.

Organized labor in Washington, D. C., is making arrangements to give a big dinner in that city on January 27 in honor of Samuel Gompers president of the American Feredation of Labor, on the occasion of his sixty-fourth birthday anniversary.

A. V. Sovey, general president of the Bookbinders' International Union, who recently returned to the headquarter's offices in Indianapolis after an extensive trip through the West, reported that the working conditions in his organization were never better than at the present time.

The International Bricklayers, Masons and Plasterers' Union, which has its headquarters in Indianapolis, is reported to have set aside a fund of one million dollars to protect its membership against a movement now under way for the substitution of concrete work for brick work in building construction.

Although the recent referendum vote of the membership of the Bricklayers, Masons and Plasterers' International Union was overwhelmingly against affiliation with the American Federation of Labor, the officers of the organization say that it is possible that the delegates of the local unions may decide in favor of the consolidation plan when they vote at the annual convention which meets next week in Houston, Texas.

LOOK TO SEVEN SISTERS TO FORCE COMPETITION IN COAL

Paterson, Jan. 9.—Advertisements for bids for suplpying coal for the courthouse and jail were provided for by the Board of Freeholders at meeting Wednesday. During recent years bids have not been asked because all coal dealers have maintained uniform prices.

Freeholder McDonald, who introduced the resolution calling for bidding for the coal contracts, declared that under the Seven Sisters laws the old plan of maintaining prices by the coal dealers was illegal and that the county could profit by insisting on competition. It is believed by the freeholders that if the bidding should reveal uniform prices, as in the past, then the coal dealers could be proceeded against criminally on the charge of violating the first of the Seven Sisters law, the anti-monopoly act.

FIELDER DENIES HE WILL ASK WILSON'S AID FOR REFORM

Jersey City, Jan. 9.—"The story is simply not true; there's no foundation at all for it," was the comment of Governor-elect Fielder yesterday, when asked about a report published here that he intended to ask the help of President Wilson to secure the repassage of the chancellor-sheriff jury commission bill at the coming session of the Legislature.

"I never thought of such a thing," added the Governor-elect with emphasis in reply to further questions. "I have no idea how the report originated."

The jury commission bill to be introduced, it was learned from other sources, will be substantially the same as that enacted at the first special session last summer. The only changes will be the elimination of the referendum, which Supreme Court Justice Swayze has held rendered the law unconstitutional, and the possible alteration of some details as to the periods for the preparation and consideration of jury lists.

Senator-elect Charles M. Egan announced that one of the first bills he will introduce will be the chancellor-sheriff bill. It wil be presented shortly after the Senate organizes.

"I believe the people of the State clearly showed that they desired this legislation by their action last fall in adopting the act," said Mr. Egan yesterday morning, "and I feel that it is my duty to give it to them, if possible. Governor Fielder is of the same opinion. I know there are eleven votes in the Senate for it."

Dodd said yesterday that it had been entirely eliminated.

ARGUES AGAINST EQUAL SUFFRAGE

Mrs. A. T. George Stirs a Big Audience at the Y. M. C. A. Auditorium.

SUFFRAGISTS PRESENT

Justice Almet F. Jenks, of New York Supreme Court, Presides at An Enthusiastic Gathering of Women.

Arguments in support of the anti-suffrage movement were presented at a meeting held last night at the Y. M. C. A. under the auspices of the Plainfield Branch of the New Jersey Association Opposed to Woman's Suffrage, by Mrs. A. T. George, of Brookline, Mass., who was one of the principal speakers on the controversy at the Congressional hearing in Washington last month. The auditorium was well filled with people, and it was noticed that a number of ardent suffragists were present. The speaker was given a cordial reception and frequently, throughout her talk, there was hearty applause.

Justice Almet F. Jenks, of the Supreme Court of New York, presided, and in his introductory remarks, he took occasion to remark that because of his position on the bench in another State, where the courts may have to pass on the suffrage question, it would not be decorious for him to express an opinion either for or against the question, as it might disqualify him in time to come.

Justice Jenks said that his presence could be explained for the reason that he believed in such a campaign as was being conducted to enlighten the people on the question of suffrage. He referred to the methods employed in England, which are different, and he said that he had no opinion to express regarding Mrs. Pankhurst or others of her kind, but he added that the United States government is a government of laws and does things differently.

The chairman then went on to explain natural rights as set forth in the Declaration of Independence, and artificial rights, declaring that it is not an inherent right that woman should have the ballot. Whether it is wise under the present circumstances to give women the ballot is a debatable question. Justice Jenks introduced Mrs. George, explaining that she was dsitinguished by her fairness, logic and moderation.

Mrs. George spoke in part as follows:

"Never before has it been proposed to extend the franchise to a new electorate, the majority of whom are acknowledged to be either indifferent or opposed to it. Never before has there been organized opposition within the ranks of those to whom it is proposed to extend the franchise. Why is there this opposition? Why do women oppose this method of serving the State insisted upon by suffragists?

"In opposing the vote anti-suffragists do not contend that everything in the world is right. They recognize the wrongs and injustice in the world, they look forward to that day when out of the troubled social and economic order there shall come a fair chance for every man and woman to render their service to the State with greatest efficiency. The suffragists must prove that the vote in the hands of women will remedy the things that are wrong.

"Reason is applied experience. Does reason show that the limited experience of the woman's vote in our own and in other countries is an economic use of woman's powers? Does reason show that the experience of human nature promises that the average woman's vote shall be more sane, more intelligent, more steady, shall we say less emotional, than the vote of the average man of today? If not, why draw off into political activities the forces which the Nation needs to employ in other ways? Why not conserve womanhood?

"Will the proposed new esponsibility help us to better perform our present duties or shall we have lost our distinctive power? Women stand today for the duties of a broader moral and social life apart from the spectacular duty of exercising political power under stress of personal political ambition, an undivided body to create a scientific and trained public opinion.

"There are those who believe that only through the vote can the State be moralized and reformed, and there are others who believe that woman's vote would be a waste of power because a duplication of effort, and that there would be no compensating gain to woman or the State for this economic loss. These latter hold the conviction that true progress can lie only in guiding nature in the direction in which she is moving, and not in trying to head her off, they believe that the so-called 'reform' is really a retrogressive movement.

"Without the woman's vote the

CHICKEN THIEVES SENTENCED BY COURT

Colored Men Pleaded Non-vult and Are Sent to Somerset County Jail.

Somerville, Jan. 10.—Clarence Phillips, Achie Rattes, William Staats and Joseph Myers, all colored, who had been indicted by the grand jury for stealing chickens in the vicinity of Millstone, retracted their former plea of not guilty, and pleaded guilty, in the Somerset County Court yesterday. The four men had carried on their operations quite extensively and Judge Beckman in sentencing them, said that their persistent depredations made a light sentence impossible. Phillips and Rattles were then sentenced to not less than one year and not more than three years in State Prison on one count in the indictment, and a similar sentence on the second count, the sentences to run consecutively, while Phillips was given a like sentence on a third count, this to run concurrently. Staats also had two counts in the indictment against him, but his sentences of not less than one year and not more than three years in State Prison are to run concurrently. Myers was sentenced to six months less one day in the county jail.

James Walker, an aged white man, also accused of chicken stealing from Jacob Todd, in Montgomery township, retracted his plea of not guilty and pleaded non vult. He will be sentenced next Friday.

Dr. Frank L. Field, of Bedminster, who was indicted for resisting an officer and assaulting Constable James Woods, of that place, retracted his plea of not guilty and pleaded non vult. Judge Beekman fined him $75.

Vladistow Ogonousky, of Somerville, also retracted his plea of not guilty of assault on his wife to that of guilty, and was sentenced to pay a fine of $25 and placed in care of the probation officer for two years.

Antonio Cupali, indicted for criminal assault upon a young girl at Peapack, retracted his former plea of not guilty to that of guilty, and will be sentenced next Friday.

MISCHIEVOUS YOUTHS HALED BEFORE COURT

Patrick Doyle, 14 years old, of 516 West Second street, and Raymond Vail, 14 years old, of 12 Duer street, who were arrested by Patrolman Muir yesterday, near the works of the Plainfield Water Co., where they caused a disturbance, were ordered to be sent to the Catholic Protectory, at Harrison, this morning by City Judge DeMeza. The two youths, who have caused the police considerable trouble, were arrested in company with Andrew Santabarbara, of 263 Watson avenue, and Walton Booker, colored, of 621 East Third street, 16 years old, who were placed on probation and Paul Pope, 14 years old, of 119 Park avenue, who was released on a suspended sentence when he promised the magistrate "to turn over a new leaf."

When the boys were arrested they had in their possession several razors and a pair of lineman's spurs. According to the police, they had looted the delivery wagon of a Fanwood baker.

ANNOUNCE ENGAGEMENT IN A NOVEL MANNER

A dinner party was tendered to Miss May Augusta Taber at the home of Mrs. George T. Moore on West Sixth street, last night, at which the engagement of Miss Taber to Frederick Peck was formally announced in a unique manner when George T. Moore, Jr., appeared with a bouquet of flowers to which a ring was attached.

Sixteen of Miss Taber's friends were guests at the affair and following the dinner card games furnished the entertainment. Miss Taber is the domestic science teacher in the local public schools and has taught here for the past two years.

COMPLAINT DISMISSED.

John Foster, manager of a local livery establishment, was arrested yesterday afternoon on the complaint of Thomas O'Keefe, starter for the Public Service Railway Co., at the junction of Watchung avenue and East Fourth street, who charged that the man drove a horse recklessly past that crowded corner. He retracted his previous not guilty pleas. He was also sentenced on an assault and battery charge, but this sentence, being of the same duration as the other, will run concurrently with it.

Walter Smalley, who pleaded guilty to embezzling $150 from Tessie Swan under a promise to get a divorce, was sent to State prison for a term of from one and one-half to three years.

UNION SERVICES TO BE HELD NEXT WEEK

Decide to Extend Joint Meetings—Dr. Strong Made Address Last Night.

Following the union week of prayer service at the First Presbyterian church last night, it was voted unanimously to continue the services and to hold meetings on Tuesday, Wednesday, Thursday and Friday nights of next week. Tuesday night the meeting will be at Trinity Reformed church, and Rev. Dr. C. E. Herring will speak. Wednesday night the meeting will be at the First Presbyterian church and Rev. J. Y. Broek will be in charge.

The meeting on Thursday night will be at the First Baptist church, under the auspices of the Federation of Women's Missionary Societies, when Rev. Dr. Samuel Zwemer, a returned missionary, will speak. Rev. Dr. Philip B. Strong will speak at the meeting to be held at the First M. E. church Friday night.

Rev. Dr. Strong was the speaker at last night's meeting at the First Presbyterian church. There was a large attendance and increased interest. Dr. Strong's subject was "Soul Saving," and he especially emphasized the necessity of personal work. He quoted the Scripture at some length to show that it is an important duty of Christian people to work for the salvation of souls, declaring that that is what they were put on earth for. The speaker made a strong appeal to those present to do everything possible to aid in the salvation of souls.

Rev. Dr. C. E. Herring was in charge of the service, Rev. Dr. C. M. Anderson read the Scriptures and Rev. J. Y. Broek offered prayer. The congregation joined in singing several hymns and there were prayers and short testimonies.

MISS ANNIE RUSSELL IN "SHE STOOPS TO CONQUER"

Miss Annie Russell will appear at The Plainfield theatre tonight, in Goldsmith's merry comedy, "She Stoops to Conquer," and a capacity audience is anticipated. Regarding Miss Russell the Indianapolis Star says:

"To see Miss Annie Russell's wonderful comedy company, with Miss Russell and her husband, Oswald Yorke, at the head of it, presenting, as they did last night at the Murát, one of the finest of the old English comedies, Goldsmith's "She Stoops to Conquer," is to see the stage at its highest and best estate; fulfilling in a way that is a delight to every sense the true mission of the theatre. For through the skill, the art and the high ideals to which Miss Russell has always clung, audiences have brought before their eyes a wondrously faithful picture of what were in very truth, "the good old times," the times of our grandfathers; the times when morals and manners were not mere catch-words, but served to grace the trifling acts of every day with a courtesy that sweetened life. How good it was to see Goldsmith's famous comedy again."

SHE WILL TELL WOMEN ELIMINATE MIDDLEMAN

No admission fee will be charged.

The meeting of the science department which was to have been held at William L. Smalley's meat market, at Park avenue and Fourth street, Monday, has been indefinitely postponed until Mr. Smalley removes to his new market at Park avenue and Fifth street. Due notice will be given of that meeting.

COURT ORDERS MANHATTAN TO GET WORK ELSEWHERE

Joseph Manhattan, 37 years old, of 247 East Third street, who was arrested several days ago by Patrolman Muir on the complaint of his wife, who said he failed to support his family, was ordered to leave town, secure a position and report in another week to City Judge DeMeza, when arraigned this morning before that magistrate. Due to the excessive use of intoxicants, Manhattan was at one time confined in an insane asylum.

Judge DeMeza said this morning, during the month of December, Manhattan only gave his wife seventy-five cents towards her support and that he often arose from his bed before his children had their breakfast and ate the only food in the house at the time.

The Charity Aid Society will assist the family until Manhattan secures a position.

REV. DR. S. M. ZWEMER SPEAKS HERE THURSDAY

Rev. Dr. Samuel M. Zwemer, of Cairo, Egpt, will lecture on "Fullness of Time for the Moslem World," Thursday night, January 15, at 8 o'clock in the First Baptist church, under the auspices of the Plainfield Federation of Women's Missionary Societies.

Few occupy a position so many-sided as does Dr. Zwemer in the Moslem world. In addition to his work as editor, he is active in the preparation of material for publication by the Nile Mission Press, distributed throughout all Moslem lands, and is one of the superintendents of the Cairo Study Center, where not only native workers are instructed and trained, but where all missionaries preparing for work among the followers of Isham may take special courses. Dr. Zwemer is also secretary of the Continuation Committee for Work Among Moslem Children, created by the World's Sunday-school convention held at Zurich last year.

A vital subject, treated by an expert who has a world-wide reputation not only for his grasp of the situation but for his forceful way of convincing his hearers, are conditions worthy of a large audience. All are most cordially invited.

LONG RUN, BUT NO FIRE.

The local fire department responded to a call sent in by the Watchung Spring Water Company on Mountain avenue, in Somerset county, early this morning, but upon arriving at the company's plant on Mountain avenue found that the blaze, which was slight, had already been extinguished.

PROTEST AGAINST COUNCILMEN VOTE

Stand of VanHerwerden and Martin Displeases Some Citizens.

ON LICENSE QUESTION

Federation of Church Men's Clubs Stirred by Their Favoring More Retail Liquor Licenses—VanHerwerden Will Get a Censure.

The liquor question, which stirred up so much trouble a year ago, and culminated in a big mass meeting to protest against more licenses being granted in Plainfield may assume equally as conspicuous a position in the city again this year. The least that can be said about the matter is that Councilmen vanHerwerden and Martin are likely to regret that they voted in favor of more licenses, and then followed their vote with an interview in which they are quoted as saying that they believe more retail places are needed in Plainfield.

That the matter will be brought to the attention of the Federation of Men's Church Clubs, which stirred up the strenuous opposition to more licenses last year, was declared last night in an interview with a Daily Press reporter, which was given by one of the active leaders in that movement. This man, who takes an active part in many civic affairs, is much interested in charitable work and is one of the best known of the commuters, stated that the matter had been thoroughly discussed by a group of influential men coming out on a train from New York yesterday, and that the first move would be the drafting of a remonstrance in the Second ward, which will be printed and taken from house to house for signers, after which it will be given to Councilman vanHerwerden, with a request that he explain on what basis he believes that he is representing the sentiment of the people of the Second ward, which sent him to the Council. He also stated that he knew of one Church Men's Club at least that will take up the matter through its executive committee tomorrow, and he urged that the greatest possible publicity be given to the matter.

The contention is that if the men who formulated such a mighty protest last year sit idly by when councilmen declare openly in favor of more saloons, they will in a measure be permitting the impression to go forth that the opposition which developed last year has died out, and the saloon question will become an issue again. Failure to protest will also give an excuse for granting some of the wholesale licenses which will come up at a Council meeting later, and while there is no objection to any particular applicant for wholesale licenses it is the opinion of the protestants that the letting down of the bars in this class of liquor selling may lead to more retail licenses. It can be safely said that the license question is by no means a dead issue this year.

KIRCHGASNER TO GET RAHWAY POSTMASTERSHIP

Washington, D. C., Jan. 10.—Congressman William E. Tuttle has recommended George L. Kirchgasner for appointment as postmaster at Rahway. After making the nomination he issued the following statement:

"Mr. Kirchgasner is the present auditor and treasurer of that city and has served several terms os the president of the Board of Education. He has had much business experience in lines which particularly qualify him for postoffice work and his efficiency and fitness are vouched for by those in best position to judge.

"Mr. Kirchgasner has the most flattering endorsement of the business and professional men of Rahway and citizens in all walks of life and of all political parties have urged his appointment.

"In making this recommendation I have been actuated by the sole desire to name one from a number of worthy and well qualified candidates who in my judgment is best fitted for the responsible and exacting work of a postmaster at this critical time in the postal service. I am satisfied that the appointment will prove generally popular and anticipate that the department will accept my recommendation."

THE PLAINFIELD THEATRE

Many notable revivals of Goldsmith's "She Stoops to Conquer" and Sheridan's "The Rivals" have dotted the history of these plays on the stage, but it is safe to say that no player has given both comedies so thorough an opportunity to cast their spell over a modern audience as has Miss Russell with her old English comedy company, which is appearing at Murat this week. Last night Miss Russell followed her remarkably satisfying production of the Goldsmith play by a revival of the Sheridan comedy. In every way, except that the part she herself plays is not as prominent as in "She Stoops to Conquer," her accomplishment is as decided a triumph as that which she scored Monday evening. The same wonderful supporting company plunges with dash and the finish of years of experience into the romantic and humorous tale of the love of Lydia Languish for Captain Absolute and the ludicrous antics of that king of cowards, Bob Acres. Miss Russell will appear at the Plainfield Theatre tonight.

MO-JO White Chewing Gum

Talk No. 30

IT'S splendid the way people are learning to discriminate!

They are no longer content merely to ask for chewing gum. They insist on clean white gum.

Dealers instinctively set out a box of dainty, delicious MO-JOs as soon as a person indicates an antipathy to dirt.

MO-JO is the only chewing gum able to proclaim from the house tops the fact that it is clean through and through.

MO-JOs have proved to the world what many have insisted was out of the question—that it is possible to make a clean white chewing gum.

COMB SAGE TEA INTO GRAY HAIR

Darkens Beautifully and Restores Its Thickness and Lustre at Once.

Common garden sage brewed into a heavy tea, with sulphur and alcohol added, will turn gray, streaked and faded hair beautifully dark and luxuriant; remove every bit of dandruff, stop scalp itching and falling hair. Mixing the Sage Tea and Sulphur recipe at home, though, is troublesome. An easier way is to get the ready-to-use tonic, costing about 50 cents a large bottle, at drug stores, known as "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Hair Remedy," thus avoiding a lot of muss.

While wispy, gray, faded hair is not sinful, we all desire to retain our youthful appearance and attractiveness. By darkening your hair with Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur, no one can tell, because it does it so naturally, so evenly. You just dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time; by morning all gray hairs have disappeared. After another application or two your hair becomes beautifully dark, glossy, soft and luxuriant and you appear years younger. Adv.

FALSE ECONOMY.

When a woman spends ten cents car fare to save five cents on the price of an article that is false economy.

And when an insurer buys a policy on account of a low price alone, without reference to the company or its methods, that is also false economy.

PLAINFIELD REAL ESTATE.

Plainfield is unlike any other town in the State of New Jersey. The character of real estate development includes houses of many different kinds of architecture and in value running from an insignificant figure to one hundred thousand dollars, all of which has been brought about by the character of the people coming to Plainfield. This sort of growth is slow and emphatic, positive and sure, so much so that even were a general liquidation in land values to occur in this part of the country it is doubtful indeed if such a liquidation would affect real estate in Plainfield. As effects should be traced to causes so we can trace this effect to the cause of slow and sure development.

As far as I know Plainfield has never experienced a boom in real estate. Land values in and about Plainfield are about one-half the price of property similarly situated in other important towns in Northern New Jersey. In fact in any other part of the State it sells at a very much higher figure. One may get the correct impression easily by writing any reputable real estate agent in such places as Montclair, East Orange, South Orange, Summit and Morristown and secure definite information with reference to the value of vacant property, also the character, styles and sizes of houses.

Land values in Plainfield will approximate less than one-half those in any other place, which is to say that a 50 foot lot in any of the above places mentioned will cost double what a 50 foot lot similarly situated will cost in Plainfield. This condition is startling from the fact that Plainfield enjoys a first-class clean government with practically all up-to-date city advantages. Its railroad service is as good as any, if not the best that connects with New York.

Some boundaries of the city of Plainfield are county lines and its development has overlapped these lines and extended beyond so that in the near future it will be necessary to extend the city limits which will bring about a greater Plainfield which will broaden the scope of the city government. People buying real estate now at the present figures ought to make a great deal of money.

The present demand for houses seem to be those renting from $45 to $60 per month. The number of unrented houses in Plainfield are very much less in proportion to those in the other towns and those who are constantly coming to Plainfield demand all modern improvements. The few houses that are unrented are mostly of the type that do not appeal to people who desire to come to Plainfield with the result that there should be an effort put forth by the owners of such properties to modernize them as soon as possible or to place the rentals at such figures that will enable these properties to compete with the new ones which represent far less value. We do not want to depreciate these neighborhoods so that the owners of these houses should modernize them so as to get the advanced rents.

ARGUES AGAINST SUFFRAGE

civic and legal rights of woman have been recognized. Educational opportunities, the professions and the trades are open to her, she has the right and opportunity to make the most of herself, she has the same opportunity as man for moral and intellectual advancement, and it would be a brutal and really retrogresive view of her 'rights' to insist that the mother of the race should forfeit her rights and exemptions before the law and in civil life and enter into competition with man.

"After two generations of more or less thoughtless exploitation of women as wage earners, we are beginning to see that the woman goes into industry to meet all the hardships all the problems of the workingman, plus the handicap of her sex, of her lower physical and nervous vitality, and that if woman is to be industry, she must be especially protected because the potential motherhood of the race must be protected.

"We have for instance the 54-hour law and the maternity act in New York and Massachusetts, the first minimum wage commission was in Massachusetts and the prohibition of night work in Indiana, Nebraska and Massachusetts though women do not vote in these States. Women have had the school vote in Massachusetts since 1879, yet in 1912, over thirty years later, in 45 per cent. of the cities and towns not a single woman voted and throughout the State less than two and one-half per cent. of the number of women entitled to register and vote for school committees remembered that it was election day.

"'A complete social revolution,' is the cry of the feminist and this social revolution is forecasted by Karl Pearson, who suggests that children shall be raised by the State in order to save the mother from economic dependence on their father.

"The middle-of-the-road suffragists may no longer take refuge in the bypaths of theory, but must face the issue which their contentions force upon them. They may no longer say, 'Of course, I don't stand for these things, I just want to vote,' but they now must recognize that 'the vote is a means to an end, that end being a complete social revolution.'

"Will you be a party to this social revolution, and all that will precede and follow it, by seeking the ballot for women, or will you rather seek to adapt old responsibilities and duties and tried ideals to new conditions and occasions? Along which path lies the greater happiness, the greater usefulness, the greater safety of woman, of man, of children. It is a larger question than the question of the vote that is confronting us."

HIS CHAIR IN SENATE IS WORN OUT BY USE

Washington, Jan. 10.—These are house-cleaning days in both houses of Congress. Painters, scrubbers and dustless dusters are busily engaged putting the Senate and House chambers in readiness for the nation's legislatos.

The seats and other movable fixtures have been taken out and revarnished and made spick and span. In a few instances where the seats were body worn and some of them had an unusual strain put upon them during the last year, they have been replaced Senator Martine is particularly proud of the fact that his chair shows how much it has been in use since the day he first entered Congress. He has been here continuously since adjournment, except for a brief trip to Atlantic City Thursday. On the House side of the Capitol the same busy air of cleansing and turpentine fills the otherwise vacant lobbies.

CHANGE MEETING PLACE.

For the convenience of the members of the senior orchestra of the Public Recreation Movement will meet hereafter in the Franklin School auditorium instead of in the Washington School.

MRS. TAYLOR DEAD AT THE AGE OF 75 YRS.

Former North Plainfield Woman Succumbs at State Hospital at Trenton.

Word has been received here today of the death of Mrs. Margaret Helen Taylor, aged 73 years, widow of Thomas House Taylor, formerly of North Plainfield township, which occurred in the State Hospital at Trenton. Mrs. Taylor, who was a member of a prominent New Jersey family, lived in Washington Valley for a number of years, where she conducted a summer boarding home. Her patrons were among some of the best known New York families.

Mrs. Taylor was a native of Morristown, and during her younger days was a school teacher. She was highly educated and a woman of rare culture and refinement. Her husband, who died at the home of his daughter in Tacoma, Wash., some time ago, was a son of the late Rev. Dr. Taylor, who for many years was the rector of Grace church, New York, and he was raised in the rectory of that church. After his marriage and location in North Plainfield township, he devoted his time to farming, while Mrs. Taylor became well-known through her choice plum puddings, mince-meat and preserves which she made and found a ready market for in this vicinity.

There survives a daughter, who previous to her marriage was Miss Bessie Taylor, and who was the domestic science teacher in the North Plainfield Public Schools. After her marriage she removed to Tacoma. There is also a son, who is engaged in the poultry business in the South. The funeral of Mrs. Taylor will be private.

AWAKED BY TOOTHACHE SHE FOUND BURGLARS

Burglars visited the home of Andrew Cowley, of 1175 South Second street, last night, and got away with jewelry and clothing valued at about $75 and nearly $6 in cash. Mr. Cowley's daughter, Miss Ellen Cowley was awakened by a toothache, with which she had been suffering, and discovered the presence of the thieves. She afoused her father, who upon making an investigation, found that the house had been entered through a rear window, the lock being forced. A small bag of loot containing among other things about $50 in money, was left by the thieves in their haste to get away.

The articles taken include two gold rings, a silver mesh bag, bearing the monogram, "M. J. C.," a gold buckle, two pocketbooks, a woman's coat with fur collar and cuffs, three pairs of shoes and two New Jersey Central Railroad commutation tickets bearing the names of the Misses Ellen and Daisy Cowley. Detective-Sergeant John J. Flynn has been assigned to the case.

A burglary in Paterson last night, identical in its operation t othe looting of the home of former Senator Ernest R. Ackerman, of West Eighth stret, may lead to the capture of the crooks who stole $15,000 of Mrs. Ackerman's jewels. THE TURNING TIDE IN CHINA; STORMY LIFE OF YUAN SHIH KAI

The New Republic Seems on Verge of Rebellion

The President Suspected of Being a Reactionary

MEXICO is not the only republic that is going through troublous times. A republic having four or five times the population of the United States—the republic of China—seems to be on the verge of a new rebellion. Great unrest, it is reported, prevails in the southern provinces, and Chang Hsun, commander of the Chinese government troops at Nanking, has proclaimed the independence of the province of Kiangsu. Yuan Shih Kai, president of China, has practically become dictator, and all power is concentrated in his hands. He has but recently brought about a termination of the Chinese parliament.

YUAN SHIH KAI, PRESIDENT OF CHINA.

This parliament met for the first time during last April. Later Yuan Shih Kai when elected president unseated so many members that both the senate and the house of representatives were deprived of quorums, and thus the parliamentary organization, for the time being at least, was broken down.

When America accorded recognition to the republic of China on May 3 last it was emphasized that the hand of welcome into the family of nations was held out to the country through the parliament. When the remainder of the powers on Oct. 6 extended their tardy recognition of the fact that the newest of republics was fit and proper to be accepted into the comity it was significantly indicated that the gracious condescension was due solely and wholly to the man who was selected as president.

In a word, America, with true republican spirit, signalized the establishment of parliament as the proper medium for the embodiment of republican ideals, while the other powers which have no particular use for popular rule made it plain that the election of Yuan Shih Kai as president was their conception of what the maintaining of republicanism should be.

PAGODA STREET IN PEKING.

Despite the significant and pointed allusion made by E. T. Williams in his address to the president convening America's recognition that America believed in "government of the people, by the people and for the people" and the president's own response that "the republic of China is founded on principles of liberty and freedom which are already deeply graven upon the hearts of the people," in addition to the assevération on this and other occasions that he would always conform with constitutional practices, Yuan Shih Kai has, in the eyes of his critics, talked with his tongue in his cheek and has been constitutional only when it suited his purposes so to be.

Anyway, the president remains, while the parliament, for the time being at least, has ceased to exist. Yuan Shih Kai's life and previous experiences are hardly calculated to make him a firm believer in a republican form of government.

Once the trusted lieutenant of two sovereigns, one of whom ranked among the truly great, he now holds the destinies of the Chinese people in his hand in place of the Manchu dynasty, the representatives of which he forced to abdicate. Guilty of the basest treachery to the late Emperor Kwang Hsu, he was, upon the death of that ruler, put under a decree of death by the emperor's brother, Prince Tsai Hsun, then regent. The sentence was changed to one of exile, but ere long the man once condemned to die returned to send his imperial judge to banishment and himself to assume the royal powers, if not the honors and prerogatives.

When Yuan Shih Kai's history is written the longest chapter must center around his friendship with the late empress dowager, Tze Hsi, who recognized the ability of the man.

His betrayal of the Emperor Kwang Hsu was due to his attachment to the dowager, and by going to the support of Tze Hsi with the division of 10,000 of the emperor's troops under his command he made possible the coup d'etat of 1898, when this Chinese Catherine put Kwang Hsu in confinement and assumed the regency. For the ten years subsequent to this event Yuan was the main prop of the empress dowager's reign. When in November, 1908, this remarkable woman felt herself in the death grasp of incurable disease it was Yuan Shih Kai, then a grand councilor and guardian to the heir apparent, who was called into the imperial death chamber for the last councils. Only one other man was so honored—the scholar and grand old man of China, Chang Chihtung, now dead. In the closing hours of Tze Hsi's life was arranged the death of the emperor, Kwang Hsu, whom she feared, for the welfare of China, to permit again to assume the reins of government. It was Yuan who drew up the edict for her signature naming the emperor's brother, Tsai Chun, regent, and his baby son, Pu Yi, emperor. An hour later and the empress dowager was dead, but not until Kwang Hsu had preceded her on the "flowery journey."

THE GREAT WALL OF CHINA.

When the revolution broke out two years ago and the Manchus were trying desperately to keep the central government from tottering to its ruin Yuan Shih Kai was sent for. This happened only after every other expedient had been exhausted. Yuan delayed, pleading illness as an excuse, but finally, when he had been given wide dictatorial powers, he left his provincial home for the capital and became the real head of the Chinese government. A month later the regent abdicated and, with the queen mother and baby emperor, was sent into exile on the border of Mongolia. When the victorious revolutionaries were closing about the prefecture of Peking, Yuan came to the front again, and during the armistice that ensued he outgeneraled Dr. Sun Yat Sen and was appointed provisional president. Later he was elected by the parliamentary national assembly the first president of the Chinese people. It is a strange and daring game that this man has played with an empire as a board and rulers for pawns. He himself is a strange mixture. His active life has been a kaleidoscope of the traditions of old China mixed with the ideas of the modern civilizations of the west. His presidency has become practically a dictatorship, and some believe that he will try to lead China backward and attempt to form a new dynasty with himself as emperor.

Why Yuan Shih Kai was sent for. This happened only after every other expedient had been exhausted. Yuan delayed, pleading illness as an excuse, but finally, when he had been given wide dictatorial powers, he left his provincial home for the capital and became the real head of the Chinese government. A month later the regent abdicated and, with the queen mother and baby emperor, was sent into exile on the border of Mongolia. When the victorious revolutionaries were closing about the prefecture of Peking, Yuan came to the front again, and during the armistice that ensued he outgeneraled Dr. Sun Yat Sen and was appointed provisional president. Later he was elected by the parliamentary national assembly the first president of the Chinese people. It is a strange and daring game that this man has played with an empire as a board and rulers for pawns. He himself is a strange mixture. His active life has been a kaleidoscope of the traditions of old China mixed with the ideas of the modern civilizations of the west. His presidency has become practically a dictatorship, and some believe that he will try to lead China backward and attempt to form a new dynasty with himself as emperor.

SEMI-ANNUAL SALE OF

DRESS GOODS REMNANTS

Over 150,000 Yards of Fashionable Fabrics in Blacks and Colors---Mostly Imported

This Sixth Semi-Annual Remnant Sale stands head and shoulders above its predecessors in its wonderfully attractive offerings. It is the product of very unusual conditions in the dress goods market. These conditions our representative found when he went abroad more than six months ago to prepare for this Sale. (For fully 80% of the thousands of yards offered are of foreign origin.) He found business bad, manufacturers worried and eager to sell large surplus stocks. He took his time—and his pick. The lots he bought were the choicest of the offerings—he bought them always for half price; sometimes for even less. Then there was another fortunate circumstance—the change in the tariff. We held our purchases in bond, or had them arrive late, so as to get the full benefit of the lower duties. In fact, several of the best lots have just come off the steamer in time for the opening Sale.

You can best judge of the extraordinary advantages of the Sale by coming early Monday to see the fabrics. You will find

FUNERAL SERVICE HELD FOR REV. THEODOSIUS J. GOTH

Funeral services for Rev. Theodosius J. Goth, rector of the Catholic church at Riverside, Burlington county, and uncle of Joseph Kuldoshes, of Dunellen, were held yesterday at that place. Interment was made in the plot of a Newark cemetery belonging to the Order of St. Benedict. A member of that order, Father Goth was one of the few priests in New Jersey who wore a beard.

Born in Dunellen 65 years ago, Father Goth was well known in the Greenbrook section, where his father for many years conducted a large grain business. For many years he was in charge of a church in Newark and in 1901 went to Riverside.

LITTLE TALKS BY THE WANT AD MAN

Copyright, 1913, The Int. Syndicate, Baltimore.

No. 49.

"DO you say you can't write an ad.? Well, a great many are inclined to throw a lot of mysticism around the task of writing an ad. But they are the ones who are wrong. If a customer comes in for a pair of gloves, you talk gloves to him; you don't talk about the weather or your family history. So, when you write an ad., go straight to the point, and if you write a glove ad. don't say anything about your ability to make breeches."

—S. C. Dobbs.

A great many people shy at writing an advertisement—even a little three or four-line Want Ad. They can write a good letter or an interesting story or a well-expresed essay—oh, my, yes; that's easy—but when it comes to writing something in the nature of a business announcement, they are suddenly afflicted with mental chills.

And why? Simply because of the erroneous impression that there is some magic about advertising—some black art, some deep-hidden formula that, to the initiated, makes the problem of successful advertising an open book.

Rot! Writing a good ad. means simply putting on paper, in the clearest possible manner, what you have or what you want. Want to sell that old square piano? Then don't go to the dictionary on a hunt for words that will look nice in print. Just say that you have an old piano for sale; say a word or two as to its make; its condition; the price you want for it. Put these facts together briefly and you'll have a good add.

Or do you want a cook? Well, don't try to tell your family history when you go about advertising for one. Say you want a cook—that's the Alpha and Omega of your want, isn't it?—say you want an experienced one; say whether yours is a small or large family, so that the reader of your ad. may get some idea of your requirements; say what the wages will be. And you can say all this in three or four lines, which, inserted in the Classified columns of the newspaper you are reading, will carry your want straight to the attention of hundreds.

Magic? Mystery?? Science??? Bosh! Advertising—first, last and all the time—is COMMON SENSE.

The Want-Ad Man

Children's Hands in Winter.

There is a rule in the public schools of some cities that every child must have clean hands, at least at the beginning of the day. In one such school a small Italian put in a first appearance with hands that were actually black. The teacher explained to him that he must come to school with his hands clean and white, like hers. The next day the little boy came with hands that were obster red. This black of the day before had been removed by dint of much work. It was black that was ground in beneath the skin. Nothing but the most strenuous work with his mother's scouring sand had put his hands in the red and uncomfortable condition of the second day.

Most children cannot be blamed for perennially soiled hands they present in the winter. The dirt is there to stay, until wiser methods than the ones they know of are employed to get it out.

When the first cold days come the children sally forth, probably without gloves, with hands hardly dried after washing, and their skin immediately becomes chapped. More water, not properly dried, makes them rougher, and soon the grime that is on them is on to stay until the mild days of spring arrive.

Teach Them Now.

The child should be taught to dry its own hands thoroughly, especially in winter. For dry hands chap much less easily than damp ones. It should also be taught to rinse the hands thoroughly in cool, sometimes cold water, so that all traces of irritating soap will be removed and so that the pores of the skin will be closed, and hence less susceptible to the cold. The child who washes its hands thoroughly, rinses them well in cool water and dries them dry will have little trouble with chapped hands.

Of course, in snowball time no normal child could be expected to keep its hands dry. Snow-soaked mittens in a falling temperature will work havoc with most skins. But when the hands are put in a rough state by snow and cold doctor them up with an application of sweet oil or cold cream or vaseline or tallow—almost any oily substance that will heal the skin.

As to Gloves.

Gloves or mittens of some sort are essential, of course, to a child's comfort. On the other hand, the small girl who wears heavy gloves and keeps her hands in a muff will have unnecessarily tender hands. The gloves should be just thick enough to keep the hands warm, not thick enough to make them perspire. The Eskimos who wear fur clothes always have a slit somewhere in the back of the garment, so that the air can get to the skin and keep it from perspiring.

Woolen knitted gloves, with fingers, are a good choice for the child. These are better than the mitten, with only one compartment for the fingers, for such a mitten makes it difficult to use the hand and is often pulled off, with the result that the hands get chilled and rough.

Practical Fashion Hints

By Alice Gibson

The long-waisted and Russian designs are still favored for children. They are easily and quickly made, yet graceful and becoming to the little tot.

No. 7750 is a one-piece dress in long waisted style, closing at the back. It has an inset yoke, a slightly low round neck and an elbow sleeve with an inset cuff.

An inverted plait on each side of the skirt below the shaped belt allows still greater ease of movement.

This model would be attractive in serge, ratine or one of the wool crepes. A wash material could also be used to advantage.

Rather wide soutache belts are smart accessories for these plain little frocks. One of these is quickly made. They are made of cretonne, or flowered silk or linen and are embroidered with a fine silk soutache braid in a soft pretty color that harmonizes with the shade of the dress. The braid is more effective if it is applied on its edge instead of flatly as is usually done. The edges of the girdle are stitched, while one end is pointed and hooks over the other which is left square cut.

The same idea could be carried out in the collar and cuffs of the little dress shown here with very pleasing effect, especially if the material used is dark. To make this dress in size 8 it requires 2 yards of 36 inch material with ⅝ yard of 27 inch contrasting material. The pattern is cut in 5 sizes; 4 to 12.

This Is a Perfect Pattern.

Be sure to state right size, passing the tape around the fullest part of the breast well up under the arms.

It may be obtained by filling out the coupon and enclosing 15 cents in stamps or coin to the Pattern Department of this paper.

Some Cookery Suggestions

VARIOUS BEEF STEWS.

STEWED beef may be made with various cuts of meat. The aitchbone, leg, round, shoulder, brisket, chuck, undercut of sirloin, may all be used. Of course the better the meat the better the stew, but by careful cooking the coarsest and toughest parts may become tender.

If you want a rich stew use a quart of water to a pound of meat. This quantity can be increased at any time by adding boiling water.

A Nourishing Stew.

Stewed Chuck.—Take one and a half pounds of chuck, wipe with wet cheesecloth and cut into small pieces. Put in a saucepan, cover with boiling water and boil slowly one and a half hours. Then add one-half cupful of cut carrot, two cupfuls white potatoes, one-half cupful of cut onion, one tablespoonful of salt, one-quarter teaspoonful white pepper and boil a half hour. Add one tablespoonful of flour mixed with a little cold water. Boil five minutes and add one tablespoonful of chopped parsley.

With Seasoning Herbs.

Stewed Beef Neck. — Take two pounds of neck pieces, cut in thick slices and roll in flour that has been seasoned with salt and pepper. Have a bay leaf, one or two cloves, a spoonful each of flour and beef fat. Melt the fat in a saucepan, then add the beef and other ingredients. Brown well on both sides, cover with boiling water and simmer for a couple of hours. Put the meat on a platter, pour the gravy over it and serve.

Served Cold.

Stewed Beef Brisket.—Take several pounds of brisket of beef, scrape clean, and put into a large saucepan. Prepare two carrots, one turnip, two onions, a head of celery, a tablespoonful of salt, a bouquet of herbs and add them to the meat. Tie in a piece of muslin six cloves, twelve peppercorns, six allspice and pour over them three quarts of water. Let all come to the boil and then simmer as slowly as possible for three hours. Take the meat up, remove the flat bones and place it between two dishes, setting a heavy weight on the top dish. Strain the stock, remove all fat and let it boil down to a glaze. When the beef is cold trim it into shape and brush with the glaze.

Daddy's Bedtime Story — Naughty Julius And Little Lame Hugh.

Julius Laughed and Jeered at Hugh.

"THERE is nothing more dreadful to my mind," said daddy, "than a little boy who is mean to other children not so big and strong as he is. I once knew a little boy like that and will tell you about him this evening.

"The little boy's name was Julius. Not only was he a very cruel little boy, but he was very naughty in every way, and was a sad trial to his mother and daddy.

"A family came to live one day in the house opposite where Julius lived. The house had been vacant for a long time, so Julius was delighted when he found he was to have neighbors. What was his disappointment, though, to find that the family opposite consisted only of a mother, daddy and a little sick boy named Hugh. He was cross when he saw Hugh's little pale face at the window opposite. He would laugh at him until he saw the tears trickle down Hugh's face and he would turn away from the window.

"One day Julius' mother came to him and said, 'Julius, it is very cruel to make fun of a little sick boy, and I will tell you what is the trouble with Hugh.

"'Well, Hugh had his right foot frozen last winter, and he has had to have it taken off. Today he is going out for the first time on his crutches,' concluded his mother.

"Julius kept very quiet, but inwardly he was planning something very mean to do. He waited around for some time, and still no sign of Hugh. At last he saw him, so he shrieked from the window, 'Hello, tenderfoot!'

"Hugh was bound he would be brave, so he beat back the tears. Julius rushed downstairs and out into the street.

"Just at that moment a fast motorcar came along. Julius did not see it, but Hugh did, and as his little voice was too weak to rise above Julius' laughter he hobbled on his crutches and pulled Julius out of the way just in the nick of time. Oh, how frightened Julius was! And his escape from some terrible injury seemed marvelous.

"In a flash he saw what it would have meant to him to have no football, no skating, no sports, and the little crippled Hugh he had laughed at and who had so much to bear had saved him.

"Hugh forgave Julius, and they became fast friends from that time, and Julius never forgot that Hugh had saved his life.

"And, to the great comfort of his mother and daddy, Julius grew up to be a very fine boy, and never again was he cruel, for he saw how awful it was."

ANTI-SUFFRAGE

Conducted by Plainfield Branch New Jersey Association Opposed to Woman Suffrage.

In the Daily Press "Votes for Women" column, the executive secretary of the New York Consumer's League is quoted as saying: "After all, isn't the opinion of such women, who have been wrestling for years with social problems and have had wide experience with Legislatures, of more value than the opinion of the opposition, who, with but few exceptions, have had no experience in social or allied work?"

Permit me to say that in the first place such wholesale statements, which cannot be substantiated, are childish, as well as unjust, and really fail their purpose, when it is remembered that different sections of the party quoting them, urge all their members to sign one or the other of the following pledges:

"The Pledge of 'Will and Won't.'
of the Woman's Political Union.

I hereby promise that:

1.—I will give what I can and do my share of the work to gain Votes for Women.

2.—I will not give either money or services to any other cause until the women of New York State have been enfranchised.

Signature .....
Address .....
Date ....."

The National Woman Suffrage Association has been and is distributing the following slip, which it urges all suffragists to use in reply to all appeals sent to them for money:

"Until women are enfranchised, efforts to ameliorate social conditions can be at best but crippled. Therefore, I have decided to give such time and money as I can spare to those causes only that will bring about the political freedom of women."

The Association tells its members that this slip, "if used in large numbers will have a marked effect," and "will serve for propaganda."

Following your usual well-known fair mindedness, will you kindly make space for the following list.

In conclusion I would say that the names contained in it but represent thousands of earnest welfare, social and philanthropic workers, but no claim has yet been made by the "antis" that "with but few exceptions" they belong in thir ranks.

Thanking you for your courtesy and your space,

Yours very truly,
REINA A. LAWRENCE.

NO REASON FOR IT.

When Plainfield Citizens Show a Way.

There can be no reason why any reader of this who suffers the tortures of an aching back, the annoyance of urinary disorders, the pains and dangers of kidney ills will fail to heed the words of a neighbor who has found relief. Read what a Plainfield citizen says:

Mrs. E. Dorflinger, 400 Clinton avenue, Plainfield, N. J., says: "The first symptom of kidney trouble in my case was a dull, heavy pain in my back and head. This was followed by a tired, languid feeling and I knew that my kidneys were gradually giving out. I saw Doan's Kidney Pills advertised and getting a box at Randolph's drug store, I began using them. Before long I improved and I continued until I was cured. I hold just as high an opinion of Doan's Kidney Pills now as when I gave my former testimonial. The cure they made has been permanent."

Simple Flower Sprays.

A touch of hand embroidery, no matter how simple the design may be, not only adds greatly to the appearance of an article, but it gives a charm of individuality. One can, with very little trouble, time and expense, embroider many acceptable gifts suitable for one's self or for fairs or bridal showers. These attractive sprays are so simple that they can be developed in a few minutes, and yet will be very effective for the amount of work required.

The flowers and leaves should be carried out in heavily padded solid work and the dots in solid work or eyelets, using fine white mercerized cotton.

These sprays are appropriate for embroidering lingerie waists, dresses, negligees, stockings, underwear, neckwear, children's dresses, infant's coats and bonnets, as well as baby-pillows and many novelties. They may be separated or combined in any way desired.

Nine sprays are included in the pattern: 1, six and one-half by four and one-half inches; 4 one and one-half by six inches and 4, two and three-uarters by two inches.

Pattern number 14196, will be supplied to readers of the Daily Press for 10 cents.

DING-A-LING CIRCUS comes on a big sheet of linen, and contains ALL OF THE WELL KNOWN ANIMALS found in the menagerie of the big circus, ready to cut out and paste so that they will practically be indestructible. Then there is a CIRCUS CAGE, drawn by two horses, TWO CLOWNS, and last but not least, TWO DOLLS, a boy and a girl, which can be cut out, sewed together, and then stuffed, so that they will stand up and view the animals which will make a

PARADE THIRTY FEET LONG

if they are spaced a foot apart. There are admission tickets, a big banner with the name of the circus, and natural history lectures telling all about everyone of the animals in the circus.

HOW TO GET THE CIRCUS

Cut out the admission ticket which will be found in today's Plainfield Daily Press, and bring it with only 48 cents, the actual cost of handling and distribution, to the Daily Press office, and get the two dolls, the parade wagon, all the animals, printed in life-like colors on everlasting cloth, all the admission tickets, lectures, and other things which go to make this the most remarkable offer ever made to the young folks by a Plainfield newspaper.

N. P. H. S. Girls Draw up a Tentative Agreement for Interscholastic Series.

NOW UP TO LOCALS

Many Concessions Granted by the Boroughites in An Effort to Bring About a Three Game Series With the Plainfield High School Girls.

Following a disagreement between the managers of the Plainfield and North Plainfield High School girls' basketball teams the latter team met yesterday and after much discussion decided to compromise with their opponents. Two games have already been arranged by the managers and the agreement was the same as last year, one game on each court and a third if necessary on neutral grounds.

Now, the P. H. S. manager states, that the financial end of the deal on her court is bound to be a failure and wanted to change the arrangements and play all games on the Y. M. C. A. court and share the proceeds equally. Miss Spencer protested against this, stating that in previous years this had always been the custom and that no such agreement had ever been put up before by any former P. H. S. manager, and also that one game must be played in Saengerbund Hall.

Miss Spencer called a meeting of the squad yesterday afternoon to decide the question and the majority of the squad favored the original plan and it was decided upon after a heated discussion, to submit the following compromise to Plainfield: "The game on Jan. 23 to be played in Saengerbund Hall, Plainfield getting one-thir of the proceeds. The game of Feb. 27 to be played in the P. H. S. gymnasium, the home team keeping two-thirds of the receipts. The third game, if necessary, will either be tossed for or played on the Y. M. C. A. court, the proceeds being divided evenly." This proposition will give both teams larger receipts all around and if Plainfield will not agree to the original arrangement with these financial compromises the borough maidens will have good grounds for claiming the city championship without playing. (So says the N. P. H. S. correspondent.

CITY TITLE GAME ON CHAPEL COURT

Y. M. C. A. and Hope Basketball Fives Scheduled to Meet for Second Time.

City championship play will be resumed in Hope Chapel tonight when the Hope Chapel and Y. M. C. A. basketball teams meet in the second of a series of contests scheduled to decide the title holder. Although neither team has given out its proposed lineup for the second game it is expected that the same players who took part in the first encounter, with possibly two exceptions, will be on the court tonight.

Former Captain Brynairski, of the Y. M. C. A., will be among the missing, and George Townley, formerly of N. P. H. S., will wear an Association uniform. The Chapelites have the edge on the series to date and with the game tonight booked for the home court prospects of a title are considered unusually bright in the Hope camp.

Coach Jack Martin is harboring some surprises for those who witness the game tonight and he has stated that some new players will probably adorn the Hope battle front when the game opens. Both teams have held several practices during the week and are in the pink of condition for the contest. Eugene Lidgate will referee and Frank Rimmer is the umpire.

The teams will lineup as follows:

Y. M. C. A.	HOPE CHAPEL.

McNamee	J. Heron

"FIGHTING MILLIONAIRE" WILL BE GUEST OF HONOR

Paris, Jan. 10.—Georges Carpentier, the heavyweight champion pugilist of Europe, and the idol of the French sporting public, is to be given a big "blow-out" in Paris next Monday on the occasion of his twentieth birthday anniversary. In view of his remarkable achievements in the ring it is difficult to realize that Carpentier is still in his teens. It is not so difficult to understand, however, when it is remembered that he began his career as a fighter at the early age of twelve years. At that time he weighted but 75 pounds and was known as the "Little Demon." At the age of 13 he was proclaimed the amateur bantam champion of France. One year later he won the feather weight title and in the same year he added the lightweight championship to his other honors. In 1912 he took the European middleweight championship from Jem Sullivan and then he began cleaning up the heavyweights. His latest victory was his decisive win over Bombardier Wells, the big Britisher. In this and other of his recent fights Carpentier showed a complete change of style from that which he displayed in the early part of his career. Formerly it was perfectly apparent to every spectator that he fought for the love of fighting. He smiled from gong to gong and never sought to avoid punishment if by taking his medicine he could give a larger dose of the same stuff to his opponent. But now it is evident that he regards the game as a business. The old smile is missing and he is cool and calculating in the ring. What he has lost in youthful enthusiasm he has gained in a better knowledge of the science of the game.

STONEWALL DEFENSE WAS RESPONSIBLE

Boro Team, Strengthened in the Guard Department, Swamped Alumni

The North Plainfield High School girls' basketball team "came back" and swamped the strong alumni team in Saengerbund Hall last night by the score of 17 to 2. The game was featured by many fouls committed by the school girls, but the "grads" could find the basket from the foul line but twice. Marjorie Burtis did all the scoring for her team in the first half and Miss George made one point which was all that the Alumni was credited with. The half ended with the score 5 to 1.

In the second half, Miss Burtis again did the bulk of the scoring getting four field goals and two fouls while her team-mates tallied but one basket.

The work of the school guards was the main feature and they kept their fast opponents from making any field goals during the entire game. Miss George again made a foul count and this ended the alumni's scoring. In the first game the school team was swamped by a large score, but at that time Miss Smith played as an opponent instead of holding down a guard position.

BASEBALL NOTES

Catcher Leslie Nunamaker, of the Red Sox, is spending the winter in hunting and fishing on Cape Cod.

Manager Finn, of the Memphis Southern League team, is trying to put over a trade with Minneapolis for Frank Delehanty.

Joe Tinker is making arrangements to take his Chicago team of the Federal League to Beaumont, Texas, for spring training.

Pitcher "Slim" Harrah, the star slabber of the Kansas League, has been signed by the Victoria Northwestern League club. Harrah! Harrah!

Manager George Stallings, of the Boston Braves, snipped twenty-five turkeys from his Georgia plantation to the Hub, for the annual dinner of the Boston Winter Leaguers.

After a season as manager of the Indianapolis team, Mike Kelley is willing to become a scout for the Cardinals. It's just one durn thing after another for Mike.

The world touring Giants and White Sox will arrive at Monte Carlo on February 12. But fence busting and bank busting, they should remember, are altogether different things.

In a recent newspaper article Eddie Collins, of the Athletics, paid tribute to Ty Cobb as follows: "Take it from one who knows, there is only one Cobb. All the rest are imitations."

From all accounts the new Federal League intends to raid the National League of players all along the line, while apparently no effort is being made to induce American League players to jump.

Ball players are an ambitious lot. Governor Tener, of Pennsylvania, was a ball player in his younger days, and Dr. Bert Daly, formerly of the Phillies, has now been elected mayor of Bayonne, N. J.

WITH THE BOXERS

The intercity bouts between New York and Boston amateur boxers will take place in Boston this month.

New Haven promoters have put up the bars against heavyweights. The Willard-Rodel muss is the answer.

Terry McGovern and his old rival Joe Bernstein are now doing a boxing act together in the variety theatres.

Leach Cross believes that his victory over Bud Anderson entitles him to meet Willie Ritchie for the lightweight crown.

Tommy Burns, former champion and now manager of Arthur Pelkey, is trying to induce Gunboat Smith to give Pelkey a return match.

Ray Bronson must be ready for the scrap heap when Holberg, the Danish lightweight, can defeat him in a 20-round bout.

Carl Morris drew down something over $5,000 for three months' engagements in the ring last year. Nice money for appearing in the ring.

K. O. Brown has been forced to pass up several bouts on account of stomach trouble. He has offers to meet Ad Wolgast, Joe Mandot and Joe Azedo.

Gilbert Gallant, the Chelsea lightweight, will make his first appearance in the West on January 16, when he will mix with One-Round Hogan in Salt Lake City.

HIGH SCHOOL FRESHMEN WENT TO WESTFIELD

The Plainfield High School freshman class held a strawride to Westfield last night, meeting at the home of Miss Edith Little. Refreshments were carried along in the wagon.

Those who made up the party are the Misses Elizabeth Manning, Doris Satels, Irma Waldorf, Hazel Waldorf, Jenie Bremble, Edith Little, and Wallace Zimmerman, James Noonan, Elwood Waller, Roscoe Blanchard, Ogden Lindzey and Robert Pollock. The chaperones were Mr. and Mrs. Harry Little, Jr.

Playing in the best form displayed so far this year, the Plainfield High School boys' basketball team defeated the Westfield High School team on the latter's court last night by the score of 32 to 21. The game was fast and exciting throughout, there being but five fouls called during the game, four on Plainfield and one on Westfield.

Marsh started the scoring by dropping in a basket for his team after a few minutes of play. The first half ended with the score at 18 to 12.

The second half started with a rush, Westfield scoring the first two baskets but the Plainfield boys soon woke up and gradually drew away until the final whistle blew ending the game with the score at 32 to 21 in Plainfield's favor.

Snyder starred for the Plainfield team, scoring six pretty baskets. Ewing was the high score man for Westfield with three goals and one foul.

NEWS OF INTEREST IN THE PLAINFIELD BUILDING WORLD

Plainfield First City of Size in East, in Building

1913 Figures Show Remarkable Condition—Nearly $1,000,000 Worth of Permits Issued Last Year—Excelled 1913 by From Ten to Fifteen Per Cent.—Second Ward Leads With Over $300,000.

Probably $1,000,000 was spent in building in the City of Plainfield during the year 1913. Permits issued by Building Inspector T. O. Doane during the year totaled $938,236, and work which was started under permits granted in 1912, undoubtedly would bring the total figure up well above the million mark. The compilation of the figures, made for the Daily Press building page is probably the first of the kind ever made in the city, and the proportions reached are much greater than the casual observer of such work in the city ever dreamed of. During the year Chief Doane granted 320 permits, of which 224 were for new buildings, seventy-one for alterations and five for gasoline tanks. The Second Ward led in the total amount of money involved in construction, as well as in the number of permits granted, the figure for the former being $309,422, and the latter 121 new buildings sixteen alterations and three gasoline tanks.

Plainfield has had more buildings erected during the year than any other city of the same size on the Atlantic Coast, according to a statement from a New York firm that makes a specialty of gathering building news which is printed in pamphlet form for the use of subscribers who are members of the various building trades, so that they can keep posted on where and what kind of buildings are being erected. From the total amount of money involved in enlarging the Queen City of the East, it appears as though some of the residents of the town have the "Do It for Plainfield" spirit in their hearts as well as minds.

A summary for the year ending December 31, 1913, of the estimated cost of new buildings and alterations, month by month, follows:

Some of the larger of the new buildings for which permits were granted are: The Roth building on East Front street, $34,300, issued in July; Floyd T. Woodhull's house on Stelle avenue and Union street, $10,000, issued in June; Samuel T. Carter's residence on Woodland avenue, $16,500; the Smalley-Van Arsdale building, on Park avenue and East Fifth street, $31,000, and Mrs. H. E. Hazen's residence on Franklin place, $12,000. These last three structures, now in the course of erection are all in the Second Ward and permits were issued for them during the month of November. Other higher priced permits which were issued during the year were: O. S. Rogers, frame residence, on West Seventh street, $11,000; Mrs. Mary E. C. Laidlaw, residence, Grant avenue and West Eighth street, $20,000; Morris Rabinowitz's store and tenament house on West Third street, cost about $15,000, and the Astor Theatre which runs from Front to Second streets between Madison avenue and Exchange Alley, $10,000.

Among the alterations and extensions that of the Congregational church leads the list. This costs about $16,000. Others worth mentioning were: S. S. Kresge's store, $12,000; Leo Slonim store on West Front street, $10,000; Charles Sebring's building at 327 and 329 West Front street, $10,000, and the alterations to the residence of Mayor Percy H. Stewart, on West Eighth street, which cost about $20,000. Two permits were issued for these alterations.

The best months throughout the year for each of the wards were: First Ward, July, $49,825; Second Ward, April, $40,950; Third Ward, July, $59,975, and Fourth Ward, June, $33,900. The average monthly amount of money involved in the building trade for the year was about $78,186.33. The average monthly total for new buildings was about $66,167.83, while the average monthly total for alterations and extensions was $12,018.33.

In comparison to 1912, the 1913 business excelled in both the new buildings as well as the alterations and extension work, by from ten to fifteen per cent. The worst month during the year for the First Ward was March, when permits for only $450 worth of work were issued. The Second Ward's worst month was August when $9,600 worth of work was permitted. November was the worst month for the Third Ward as there was absolutely no permits for that section of the city issued. A total of $3,250 for the month of April was the lowest that the Fourth Ward received during the twelve months.

LOCAL CONTRACTOR TO BUILD TEN HOUSES IN RAHWAY

Morris Rabinowitz, of Hillcrest avenue, this city, expects in the near future, to undertake the erection of ten houses in and around Rahway. These buildings will be of two styles of which five of each will be built. Five of the houses will be two story structures of hollow tile faced with stucco, casement windows and shingle roof. On the first floor of each there will be but two rooms, a living room at the front and a dining room kitchen at the rear, and a toilet. In the living room there will be open stairways leading to the second story, where three bedrooms will be located. All will be piped for gas.

The bungalow type will be used for the other five; one story in heighth with stucco faced hollow tile walls, casement windows and shingle roofs, containing living room, kitchen, diningroom, toilet and two bedrooms.

The trimmings throughout all the houses will be chiefly of cypress, with white walls and ceilings and North Carolina yellow pine floors. George H. Fisher, Jr., a local architect, drew the plans for the buildings.

Among the realty transfers filed at Elizabeth this past week the following were for property in this city:

J. Irvin Taylor, of West Eighth street, to William G. Shotwell, of Monroe avenue, property on West Ninth street, Plainfield Land Company, ... $1

SHERIFF SEBRING ENLARGING BUILDING

Will Spend $10,000 to Improve and Beautify Front Street Property.

Extensive alterations by adding two stories to the present one-story building owned by Sheriff Charles Sebring, of North Plainfield, are being made at 327 and 329 West Front street. The cost of the extension will be about $10,000 and will be completed about May 1.

The extension will have inside measurements thirty-seven feet wide and 130 feet deep, with the possibility that the two upper floors will be extended at the rear thirty feet more. The heighth of the second story ceiling will be about eleven feet while that of the top floor will be about fourteen feet. Access to the top floor will be gained from Central avenue by a fireproof stairway, built on the exterior of the building. This stairway will have a base of stell and treads and risers of bluestone with a metal handrail.

The front portion of the building will be constructed of white glazed bricks with trimmings and window frames of gray limestone, giving an artistic finish to the structure. Three ply Rubberoid roofing will be used.

Steel girders will be used throughout the structure in supporting the different floors. The first and second floors will have several columns placed in the centre to act as supports so as to insure safety in case heavy loads are placed in the front portion of the building.

The Union County Furniture Company, who are now occupying the ground floor of the building, will when it is completed take a lease on the second story, which will be used by that concern as a storage and surplus equipment room. The top floor will be built with the hope that Company K will lease it until the State appropriates and builds them an armory of their own. Although this fact has been considered in the erection of the structure no verification can be obtained from any of the officers of the company.

Mr. Sebring is personally in charge of the work and is having all his work done by men of his own choosing.

FINE MATERIAL IN OLD LANDMARK

Destruction of Old House on Watchung Ave. Tells Mute Tale of Former Days.

When J. F. MacDonald recently had the old building on Watchung avenue, near Front street, wrecked, not only an old landmark was destroyed but also a type of structure that is becoming more extinct each year.

Bertram Pittis, in charge of the wrecking, stated that it was not a single building, but was composed of two separate structures. He said that the rear was the first part erected and that it had probably stood in that position one hundred years. The Watchung avenue side was erected about thirty or forty years ago. In the oldest section broad axed heart oak posts and beams were used. The posts and beams in the newer section were sawed material and did not include the heart of the lumber.

Each piece of wood used in the erection of the older part was scribe ruled. These marks were cut with a carpenter's chisel and were all in Roman numerals.

In the days that the original building was erected methods such as are used today were unknown. Each piece of lumber after being fitted, tongued and grooved was scribe ruled and laid on the ground near the place it would occupy when joined. When enough pieces had been hewn from rough logs and had been tongued and grooved the owner would invite all the neighbors together on a certain day for a house raising.

When all had gathered, they would join each piece bearing the same markings, fitting tongues in grooves and securing them with wooden dowel pins. In this way both end and side frames of the building were put together on the ground. Then the corner studs of the building were placed in position and the house raising began in earnest. Oftentimes sides would be chosen and a contest would ensue, the winning side being treated a little better than the losers at the evening meal, which was one of the great features of each of these events.

As the sides were raised they were fastened together with the cross ties and the ends were connected by the inter-ties. Last but not least was the placing of the ridge pole. For this task the strongest of the party was called upon to hoist the timber to its place and fasten it to the rafters.

After the frame work had been erected the work of sheathing was entered into. Following the sheathing the spaces between the walls were filled with brick. When the house was completed it was usually given several coats of paint, made from mineral matter, gathered nearby and ground in oil.

In the MacDonald house three kinds of bricks were used for filling in between the sheathing; sun, straw and wood burned. The sun burned bricks were of a salmon color and were very soft, the straw burned were pale red and were harder with stratas of hard burned places. The wood burned bricks were more like the bricks of today and were much tougher than either of the others.

The foundation of the newer section, which had a cellar under it, was made up of brook stones and yellow octagonal stones which were carried from the brooks in this vicinity, and from the quarries on the mountains. Nature forms octagonal stones by using frost, heat and moisture. In a large boulder on the side of the mountain the weathering commences. In winter frost settles in the rock, with its soft and hard stratas. In spring the heat draws out the frost and in consequence opens up some of the stone's pores, so to speak, but in reality forms a crack on the face of the rock. Then the following years the frost has a better place to lodge and in time the rock or boulder has been mined with these cracks and crevices. When spring came around again men with crowbars would force the nose of the bar into these cracks and pry out the stones. These stones were all shaped so that when used with mortar a perfect joint could be made which would withstand water.

The exterior walls of the structure were faced with colonial style weatherboards which are almost twice the width of the present day product, and were made of cedar, whereas the majority used in building today are either cypress or some other lumber that is inexpensive. The roof of the house was covered with a double layer of old style cedar shingles which were left natural.

It is claimed that the oak and other material used for the posts, studs, beams and tie pieces were hewn out of logs cut from trees, which covered this city in days gone by.

It is said that Mr. MacDonald will erect a store in the spring for the use of the Plainfield Milk and Cream Co.

Armstrong Mulford Building Attractive Bungalow

Real Estate Man's New Home is Nearing Completion and Will Be One of the Finest of That Type in the City —On Netherwood Avenue.

Armstrong Mulford, the North avenue real estate and insurance man, is having a two story semi-bungalow frame dwelling erected on his property on Netherwood avenue, between East Front and East Second streets, which will cost about $7,500. The structure will be nearly square but a few projecting portions will do away with the square appearance. The measurement will be thirty-five feet each way.

The foundation walls are of concrete, faced with stucco, as are also the exposed surfaces of the chimneys. The exterior of the building, including the roof, has been faced with cedar shingles, painted white on the walls and green on the roof. Around the edge of the roof a pregola effect has been arranged. Copper gutters and leaders have been placed on all the parts of the house.

Across the front of the house a veranda has been built, with centre entrance steps. Concrete piers, with stucco facings, support the porch on which columns are used to support the roof of the veranda. The ceiling of the veranda has a facing of white stucco. Over the front entrance a small balcony has been built, the entrance to which is gained through three large windows in the front bedroom. The shutters on the first floor have slats below and solid uppers, with a small crescent shaped opening. The other windows have regular slat type shutters. These shutters have been painted dark gray, as have the four porch columns and flooring. At the side is a small porch.

The cellar will contain a laundry preserve closet, servant's toilet and a boiler room. The walls and ceiling of the cellar have a facing of plaster, painted white. There are two outlets from the cellar, one at the rear and one in the centre which opens upon the main hall

From the front a plate glass door opens into the main hall, leading to all rooms except the den and sun parlor. At the left front of the building is the dining room to the rear of which is the butler's pantry and kitchen.

The dining room will be finished with white oak floors, paneled walls and ceiling of chestnut to represent fumed oak, in mission style. The butler's pantry has a dresser and a large china closet of chestnut, finished like fumed oak. The doors here as well as the kitchen will be of white maple, left natural. The kitchen will have white walls and ceilings, trimmed with chestnut finished natural. The equipment includes a gas range at the side of a tile chimney, refrigerator and pot closet and white enameled sink.

To the right, at the front is the living room, with entrances at the rear to den and sun parlor. The living room will for the present have white walls. Paneling of chestnut material finished to represent fumed oak will be placed on the ceiling. On the southeast side a large red pressed brick open fireplace with tile floor has been built, lined with a dark slate colored mortar. The floor will be of white oak. The den which opens from the north corner of the living room will be finished in white with fumed oak trimmings and white oak floor. The sun parlor on the east corner is enclosed on two sides with sashes of small squares of glass, removable in the summer. Both the dining and living rooms are separated from the hallway by columned archways, artistically carved. The sun parlor is separated from the den and living room by glass paneled doors.

The second story stairway starts in the main hallway and will be built entirely of chestnut. The carvings of the banister will be in mission style. Three bedrooms, 21x14, 14x15 and 13.6x14, a bathroom and large linen closet are found on the second floor. The bedrooms will all be finished with white walls and ceilings and hardwood floors. The trim of these rooms will be of whitewood, enameled white, and birch doors, stained mahogany. The bathroom will be equipped with the most up-to-date standard equipment, including shower bath attachment, and floor and wainscoating of waite tile, to a heighth of six feet.

The house will have a hot water heating system, will be equipped for gas and wired for electric lights. The rooms on the first floor will have both sidewall and ceiling fixtures of artistic design. The second story will be equipped with sidewall fixtures.

Marsh & Gette, architects, of Plainfield and New York, drew the plans for the building. George Nolte did the carpenter work. William C. Smith did the masonry and plastering. Johansen Brothers are doing the painting. P. A. McVoy installed all the plumbing and heating system, as well as placing the copper gutters and leaders. F. A. Craig did the wiring of the house and will install the lighting fixtures. The J. D. Loizeaux Lumber Company supplied all the lumber used in the erection of the building. Boice, Runyon & Company furnished the mason material; Tuttle Brothers, of Westfield, supplied all the millwork and interior trim, and the Plainfield Tile Company furnished the tile work. The building will be occupied by the owner when completed, which should be about March 1.

TO ALTER ASTOR THEATRE.

Extensive alterations will in the near future be made to the interior of the Astor theatre. These alterations will consist of changing the floor plan at the West Second street end of the building and also the roof plan. The exterior walls of the building, which have been left the rough hollow tile finish will be faced with a coating of light colored stucco. Permits for the proposed alterations have not been issued as yet. It is understood that the ban placed on the structure by the local building trades union, because of the employing of non-union help in the erection of the building has not been lifted as yet, but whether it is lifted or not, a contractor who is a union man will undertake the work of altering the interior to suit the needs of the new lessee whose named could not be obtained, but is said to be from Scranton.

IF BACK HURTS BEGIN ON SALTS

Flush Your Kidneys Occasionally If You Eat Meat Regularly.

No man or woman who eats meat regularly can make a mistake by flushing the kidneys occasionally, says a well-known authority. Meat forms uric acid which excites the kidneys, they become overworked from the strain, get sluggish and fail to filter the waste and poisons from the blood, then we get sick. Nearly all rheumatism, headaches, liver trouble, nervousness, dizziness, sleeplessness and urinary disorders come from sluggish kidneys.

The moment you feel a dull ache in the kidneys or your back hurts or if the urine is cloudy, offensive, full of sediment, irregular of passage or attended by a sensation of scalding, stop eating meat and get about four ounces of Jad Salts from any pharmacy; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast and in a few days your kidneys will act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for generations to flush and stimulate the kidneys, also to neutralize the acids in urine so it no longer causes irritation, thus ending bladder weakness.

Jad Salts is inexpensive and cannot injure; makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink which everyone should take now and then to keep the kidneys clean and active and the blood pure, thereby avoiding serious kidney complications.—Adv.

WOMEN TOILERS WAS HER THEME

Mrs. Florence Kelly, Consumers' League Secretary, Delivers Interesting Talk.

COLBY IS CHAIRMAN

Former Senator Introduces Speaker Who Tells About Working Conditions of Women Who Toil—Mrs. Hyde and Mrs. Mead Entertain.

Mrs. Francis DeLacey Hyde and Mrs. Frederick Goodhue Mead acted as hostesses to a large number of their friends at Mrs. Mead's home on East Front street on Saturday night, when Mrs. Florence Kelly, the national secretary of the Consumers League, talked on "Women in Industry." The gathering was attended by a number of out-of-town people, prominent in civic and suffrage movements. Former Senator Everett Colby, of Orange, introduced the speaker.

Mrs. Kelly proved to be a highly entertaining speaker and kept the close attention of her audience for over an hour during her address and nearly as long when she answered a large number of questions in a peculiarly dry and amusing manner. At the outset of her talk she told of the strain under which so many of the young women with whom she comes in contact on the East Side of New York are working, some to support large families; others to raise money to bring relatives from abroad and still others to "keep the wolf from the door." She explained the agreement between a large number of foreign nations, by which the working conditions for women had been greatly improved in their countries, and told of how comparatively few States in the United States have done as much as these foreign nations for their working women.

The way in which women have been gradually drawn into industry through the introduction of sewing machines, telephones and similar modern inventions was described, until, the speaker declared, there are at the present time 8,000,000 working women in this country.

Washington, Arizona and California, in all of which women vote, the speaker declared are the only States in which an eight hour day is provided for the women, but in Oregon they are limited to fifty hours in a week, and not longer than eight hours and twenty minutes in one day, and are not permitted to work in any store or similar business after six o'clock at night. In Oregon there is also a minimum wage for women of $9.25 per week, or $40 per month, all of which was brought about after the women were given the power to vote.

The speaker contrasted conditions in States where the women have not the right to vote, and said that in the suffrage States they are counted more as human beings when industrial conditions are considered. She urged her hearers to aid the suffage cause and thus help to put on women the full industrial, moral and political responsibility which will permit them to better their condition.

Mrs. Kelly answered a number of questions about specific cases in which those present were interested, told about the hours of labor in some of the States, and said that there were no statistics to prove that the minimum wage increased efficiency but that it was said to do so abroad and in Australia.

Among those present from out-of-town were Miss Connolly, of Summit; Mrs. C. B. Alexander, of Hoboken; Mrs. E. F. Feickert, of Dunellen; Miss Pope and Mrs. Binninger, of Jersey City; Mrs. Philip McKim Garrison, of Orange; Former Senator Everett Colby and Senator Austen Colgate, of Orange; Senator Charles F. C. Hennessy, of Hackensack; Oberlin Smith, of Bridgeton; Major Logan, of New York, and Winston Paul, of Jersey City. About 150 attended the gathering.

FRIENDS ADDRESSED BY EDWARD PENNOCK

Large Number of Society Hear His Stirring Talks at Watchung Ave. Edifice.

Members of the Plainfield meeting of the Religious Society of Friends and others had the privilege yesterday morning and afternoon of hearing Edward Pennock, of Chatham, Pa., a member of the London Grove Meeting. He is a prominent minister of the sect and his presence here served to attract quite a number of people to the meeting-house on Watchung avenue, where he spoke at both services.

At the 11 o'clock service in the morning, Mr. Pennock preached a forceful sermon, in which he took for his subject, "The Spirit," as it relates to the five senses, showing how all of them are affected by the Spirit.

James Stringham, of Brooklyn, was also present and both he and Mr. Pennock offered prayer during the service. Between the morning and afternoon service, the latter was entertained at "The Margaret," the Friends' Home, at Arlington avenue and Arlington place.

Mr. Pennock devoted his talk in the afternoon at 2 o'clock to a description of a trip taken last summer by himself, wife and two daughters to the Woodbrook Settlement in England. They spent two months at the settlement and the speaker's remarks covered somewhat in detail the daily routine there. This settlement, although attended by Friends, is non-sectarian, and people go there from all parts of the world to get the benefit of the lectures by prominent men and to enjoy the recreation features.

Mr. Pennock was entertained during a part of his stay in Plainfield by Mr. and Mrs. Clarence B. Vail, of Norwood avenue, and he also had an opportunity of meeting a majority of the members of the Plainfield meeting.

Arrangements are now being made for the "Fellowship" meeting of both branches of the Society of Friends, to be held at the local meeting-house on Sunday, February 8. There will be services both morning and afternoon, and a number of visitors from New York are expected.

BANISH SALOON SAYS CLERGYMAN

It Crushes Life Blood Out of Men and Women Declares Rev. Mr. Broek.

CHURCH GIVES BATTLE

Trinity Reformed Church Pastor Asserts "You Can't Make Vice Respectable"—Hope Lies In the Education of the Young.

"The Saloon," was the subject of a discourse by Rev. J. Y. Broek at Trinity Reformed church, yesterday morning, in which he reviewed some of the more recent efforts made to minimize the influence of the liquor traffic. Among other things, Mr. Broek said:

"The great movement of temperance is spreading over the land and the world. The whole world is fighting the wrisky and beer business. The saloonkeeper recognizes that he must keep within the limits of the law, as this is his only salvation. If we take the limits of the law away from him, he has nothing on which to stand.

"The Women's Christian Temperance Union deserves more credit than they have received in awakening people to the evils of intemperance. They are pioneers in this work. They have been at it for forty years. Other organizations have taken the glory for the work they have accomplished. Many other societies have sprung from this organization. What a wonderful meeting was the recent international convention held in Brooklyn, where thirty-two countries were represented to fight a common foe. It only goes to show that Europe, too, is alcohol sick.

"The church is taking up the fight in earnest. Several denominations have appointed temperance secretaries, just as the various boards appoint missionary secretaries. This method of the church in action against the saloon has been adopted by the Federal Council.

"These secretaries go to the Legislatures in the various States and say with authority that they represent so many Christian people, and so many voters and can request suitable legislation.

"The hope of this cause lies in the education of the young people. Much emphasis is given to temperance education in the Bible schools. In county, State and national conventions, temperance instruction is one of the points of excellence. The signing of the pledge by so many young people is another hopeful sign. Some of the strongest speakers I ever heard were made by young people on the temperance question.

MRS. RAPALJE ENGAGES IN SETTLEMENT WORK

Miss Winifred Rapalje, daughter of Rev. and Mrs. Daniel Rapalje, of Carlton avenue, has engaged in settlement work in New York, under the direction of Rev. Dr. Merrill, pastor of the Brick Presbyterian church, in that city. This work was established by the Brick church some time ago, and this opportunity afforded Miss Rapalje is considered an exceptional one. She began her duties today.

Miss Rapalje has always been deeply interested in missions and settlement work, and she enters upon the work with much enthusiasm. Her father, for many years was engaged in foreign missionary work and she has had an unusual training for the work she is about to undertake.

Miss Rapalje is a member of Trinity Reformed church, and is now president of the Young Women's Mission Band, as well as being interested in all departments of church work. She has always been a student of home and foreign missions.

DAILY PRESS REPORTER SOLVES A MYSTERY

Locates Relatives of Man Who Died in Spokane, Washington, Hospital.

A week ago, Mrs. Julia Belue, of Somerville, mother of Roy Belue, formerly of this city, who went to Spokane, Wash., three years ago, remarked to her daughter, Mrs. Ella Hoppock, an employe of the Children's Home Association here, "I wonder why Roy does not write to us. I wonder if anything has happened to him; he may be dead for all we know." Neither mother nor sister of the youth had heard from him since last August. Yesterday the local police received a telegram from the authorities of that city, saying that a Roy Belue had died in the Sacred Heart Hospital and requesting that the youth's relatives be notified. The efforts of the police to locate either the boy's mother or sisted proved futile, but a Daily Press reporter succeeded at 3 o'clock this afternoon in finding them.

Friends of Roy Belue said he was a plumber, and lived with his sister in New street. He was an active member of Hope Chapel and took a prominent part in athletics as a member of the Boys' Club of that church. Three years ago, he left Plainfield for a city in the upper part of New York State. He later went out to Spokane, Wash., and corresponded quite frequently with his mother and sister, until last summer, when letters came from him less frequent.

At noon today the police gave out the information about the telegram. Through information received from Walter Firstbrook, a member of Hope Chapel, it was learned that his mother lived in Somerville and Mrs. Hoppock was found and notified at the borough institution. She became hysterical when the news was told but later communicated with the police and will make preparations to take charge of the body.

REV. EDWARD KELDER DECLINES THE CALL

Rev. Edward Kelder, of Coytesville, Bergen county, has declined the call to the pastorate of the Netherwood Reformed church, to succeed Rev. Royal A. Stout, now of Philadelphia, and the church is now trying to find a successor to Mr. Stout. Mr. Kelder, after preaching at the church several times, was extended a call, but after due deliberation, declined to accept. Rev. C. W. F. Attlee, of this city, is temporarily filling the pulpit.

MONROE AVENUE REVIVAL.

The services held last night at the Monroe Avenue M. E. church, in connection with the revival which has been in progress for the past week, was largely attended and full of interest. Thus far there have been about twenty-five converts, about ten of which were the result of last night's service, when Harry Gee spoke on the subject, "Choosing the Best." Rev. John Bovenizer, of Prospect Street M. E. church, Paterson, will be the speaker tonight.

MRS. C. MILTON MEEKER.

Mrs. Elizabeth Meeker, aged 39 years, wife of C. Milton Meeker, the contractor, died last night at her home, 34 Randolph road, following an illness of one month with a complication of diseases. She was the daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Charles Greader, of North Plainfield. She is survived by a husband and several children. The funeral, which will be private, will be conducted by Rev. J. Y. Broek, of Trinity Reformed church.

IN NEED OF REPAIR.

The trolley tracks at West Front street and Grant avenue are in bad condition, especially in one place, where the Grant avenue tracks connect with the main line. Some time ago a similar condition existed and it was repaired, but it is now as bad as before if not worse. The P. S. C. was given permission to pave this corner some time ago, but nothing has ever been done outside of making a survey.

CHANGE PLACE OF REHEARSAL.

Owing to the fact that the Parent-Teacher Association is to meet at the Franklin School, tonight, the weekly rehearsal of the Municipal Orchestra will be held at the Washington School instead of the Franklin. Members of the orchestra, as well as friends who like to attend the rehearsals, are requested to note the change of place of meeting.

TOWER NEARING COMPLETION.

The work of reconstructing the tower at the First Baptist church is now nearing completion. This work was started last summer, but the condition of the tower was found to be much worse than anticipated hence the delay in completing the job. The contractor is now engaged in putting on the finishing touches.

PRAISE BY MEN FOR MR. BIRD

Letter Carriers Association at Banquet Have Chief as Guest of Honor.

BAUERSACHS PRESIDES

Head of Local Department Gets Great Applause and Is Deeply Affected—Others Give Brief Talks—James Bailey Committee Head.

The efficiency of the Plainfield Postoffice employes was commended and Postmaster Elias S. Bird, who has held that position for sixteen years, was spoke of in words of praise by the speakers at the annual banquet of the Plainfield branch, No. 396, National Association of Letter Carriers, held Saturday night in Jr. O. U. A. M. Hall. The excellent menu was prepared under the direction of John McCormack, night collector of mails, who was chairman of the arrangement committee. J. W. A. Bauersachs, forwarding clerk, was toastmaster.

Words of regret at being unable to accept the invitation to be present were received from United States Senator James E. Martine, Congressmen Tuttle and Hammill, Postoffice Inspector Gallagher, of Jersey City; A. M. McGee, president of the Civil Service Retirement Association; Mayor Percy H. Stewart and Mayor Robert Clark, Jr., of the borough. Congressman Hammill is the champion of the retirement bill for postoffice employes.

Toastmaster Bauersachs was the first speaker. He spoke on the faithfulness of the postoffice employes and the growth of the department in this city. When he called upon Postmaster Bird for an address, the latter was prevented from speaking for several minutes as the diners applauded. He was deeply touched by the reception. After thanking those present for the tribute they paid to him, he said in part:

"After sixteen years in the department, giving you every chance to know me as you do, I am somewhat surprised that you should call on me for an address when you have others here, who can be called real speakers. I have never made a speech in my life and now I feel rather old to even try. However, as this may be, the last time I will have the privilege of meeting with you as your postmaster, it seems only fitting that I should say that I thank you one and all for the loyal support given me during my term of office. The success of an office depends considerably on the employes, for no one man can make a success of any business without working in harmony with those around

An address will be made by Mrs. A. G. Lester, of Chicago, president of the Women's American Baptist Home Missionary Society.

Mrs. Lester has travelled extensively throughout the West and Mexico in the interest of the National Home Missionary Society and has much to say that is well worth the hearing on the subject of home missions. The regular sewing meeting of the women of the church will precede the meeting. The public is cordially invited to attend the meeting at 3 o'clock.

NEW MOVEMENT IN THE CHURCH FIELD

Rev. Dr. H. K. Carroll Preparing to Open Federal Council Office.

Interest is being directed to the work of the new office at Washington opened this month by the Federal Council of the Churches of Christ in America. Rev. Dr. Henry K. Carroll of this city, who is the chosen secretary of the Washington bureau, has had a varied experience in church department work. He has been corresponding secretary of the missionary society of the Methodist Episcopal Church; secretary of the Western section of the World Missionary Conference at Edinburgh; chief secretary of the last Ecumental Methodist Conference and is now secretary of the Western section of the Ecumenical Methodist Commission.

Dr. Carroll was special government agent for the census of religious bodies in 1890 and was sent by President McKinley as commissioner to Porto Rico to investigate conditions and to formulate a system of civil government. He was also for years a member of the editorial staff of the New York Independent. At Washington he is to represent the interests of the Federal Council, such as the increase in army and navy chaplains, matters concerning Indian missions and other objects. It is said that he is to secure by act of Congress the incorporation of the Federal Council. Through the Washington office Protestant churches will be invited to take part in the celebration of the centenary of the Ghent treaty of peace at the close of this year and in February, 1915.

GATHERED CHICKENS FROM THREE PLACES

Colored Thief Pursued by Angry Mob of West End Residents.

After he had examined the contents of three hen coops in the West End, selected nine choice specimens of the feathered tribe and shaken off half a dozen pursuers, Robert Wilson, colored, of 444 West Second street, was apprehended by Roundsman Saffron and Patrolman Wicht as he was attempting to dispose of his loot to a Hebrew butcher. Taken to the police headquarters Saturday night and remanded for a hearing this morning, Wilson was arraigned in court today and was held in $300 bail to await the action of the grand jury and in default of bonds was taken to Elizabeth this afternoon.

Shortly after 6 o'clock Saturday night, Mrs. John Galbraith, of 427 West Third street, heard a disturbance in her chicken coop and glanced out of the window just in time to see the culprit scale the fence with a bag of "squakkers." Mrs. Galbraith informed several neighbors of her discovery and they gave chase but the fleet-footed thief sprinted far ahead of them.

Trace of the offender was lost until John Gallagher, of 415 West Third street, heard several of his roosters crying for help and he too had the displeasure of seeing someone make a get-away with a bag of "chickun." Gallagher and his neighbors joined Mrs. Galbraith's sympathizers, but again the colored vision disappeared in the darkness and all trace of him was lost until he was discovered coming out of a third coop.

Several posses had been formed by this time and many innocent colored persons were hailed and queried by the excited chicken owners and their neighbors. Someone stopped running long enough to notify the police and Saffron and Wicht "bagged" Wilson and his prey as he was trying to dispose of the latter to the Hebrew butcher. Before being captured by the guardians of the law the illusive Wilson had run a gauntlet of angry West End residents but had successfully eluded all up to the time the cops appeared in the meat shop.

BANISHED FROM TOWN.

George Ross, colored, 19 years old, and Russell Williams, colored, 16 years old, of Pottstown, Pa., who were arrested Saturday night by Patrolman Muir for vagrancy, were ordered to leave town this morning by City Judge DeMeza.

2 COUNCILMEN SCORED

Van Herwerden and Martin Censured—Calkins, Claybrook and Hylan Present At Remarkable Meeting and Calkins Makes Great Speech.

As was exclusively predicted in the Daily Press of Saturday, the license question has again become a very live issue in Plainfield, and there gives promise of being as much publicity given to it as was the case last year, when a great meeting of protest by the men of the city was held in the High School auditorium, before the members of the Council.

Members of the executive committee of the Federation of Men's Clubs and Bible Classes held an enthusiastic session yesterday afternoon at the Young Men's Christian Association, and decided to hold a meeting on the wholesale license question at the Y. M. C. A. Hall on Friday evening, January 23, to which they will extend a public invitation to all who may either favor or oppose more licenses to come and be heard. At the meeting were many active and influential men of the city. Yesterday morning the Men's Club of the Crescent Avenue Presbyterian church held one of the largest business meetings ever held by that organization, and not only went on record as opposed to more wholesale licenses, but condemned the two councilmen who recently voted in favor of more retail licenses, and commended the nine who voted against them.

The meeting yesterday afternoon was hastily organized during the day, with President Walter H. P. Veysey in the chair. Councilmen Calkins, Claybrook and Hylan, the latter two members of the Federation executive committee and the Council license committee, were present, and they left no doubt as to where they stand on the license question. Mr. Veysey called upon Samuel T. Carter, Jr., who read the resolution adopted by the Crescent Avenue club, yesterday morning, and then Mr. Calkins was called upon.

The councilman said that the retail question had been settled once and for all, but that in his mind, and in that of some of the other members of the Council there seemed to be some question as to whether or not there should be at least one more wholesale license. He said that perhaps the argument was not sound, but that he had heard a number of people say that in their opinion there is too much monopoly in the wholesale family trade, as although there are two licenses to dispense bottled goods, only one of them really handles a general line. He said that he believed that some concrete expression should be made by the residents of the city, and that he hoped a meeting of some kind would be arranged at which both sides would be asked to appear.

Following Mr. Calkins' talk there was much discussion in which Mr. Veysey, Mr. Carter, Samuel Bingaman, Herbert E. Parker, W. L. Glenney, Councilman Claybrook, Alexander Millar, Secretary George B. Zimmer, of the Federation, and a number of others participated, as to just what form of meeting should be held. The general tenor of the conversation was that those who favored license could not show any strength or produce any men of standing in the community who were on their side, but that a meeting be held on January 23, called by the Federation, and to which would be invited any one who wished to state the case for those seeking licenses.

Mr. Zimmer caused some amusement by referring to published statements in which Messrs. vanHerwerden and Martin said they favored more licenses because their constituents wanted them, and suggested that if such was the case, the two councilmen would perhaps produce the constituents to whom they referred.

Finally, after much discussion, on motion of Mr. Glenney, it was decided to hold the public meeting under the auspices of the Federation, and to invite all men who wished to come, regardless of how they felt on the matter, and to invite the members of the Council to be present in an unofficial capacity. It was also voted to thank the nine councilmen who voted against any extension of the present number of retail licenses.

Men's Club Condemns.

Vigorous protest against granting any more liquor licenses in Plainfield, either wholesale or retail; condemnation of the two councilmen who voted last Monday night in favor of more licenses and commendation of the nine who voted against them, occupied the time of a largely attended special meeting of the Men's

STYLE RELIABILITY

FAITH

As there is a science of stars called astronomy; a science of quantities called mathematics; a science of qualities called chemistry; so there is a science of business—as yet unnamed—which will illumine and clarify the value of Honesty and Fair-dealing.

Altho Benjamin Franklin said that "to see things by faith is to close the eye of reason," we are buying things on faith today more than we ever did before.

Our pre-eminence in selling "Most Things Men Wear" is not the result of our patrons' understanding of the merchandise, but of their faith in the Rothberg Store.

They know what we stand for—what we have stood for—and they know that we would rather retire from business than violate one little whit of that confidence.

FEDERATIONS MASS MEETING

Club of the Crescent Avenue church, which was held yesterday morning.

Samuel T. Carter, Jr., who was one of the leaders in the movement last year, introduced the resolution of condemnation and commendation as soon as the president, Dr. William H. Murray, had called the meeting to order. It was adopted unanimously, as follows:

"A year ago the question of the granting of further licenses in this city came up before the Common Council, and a hearing was given by that body to the men of Plainfield, at which hearing, very largely attended, the sentiment was unanimously against the granting of such further licenses, but one voice, that of the attorney retained to represent some of the liquor interests, being raised in favor thereof. Despite this fact and the further fact that the Common Council of last year voted against such licenses, at a meeting of the Common Council held on the fifth of January last two members thereof, Messrs. vanHerwerden and Martin, voted against a resolution that no new retail licenses be granted. The issue thus created was a moral issue. On that issue, as stated, the community has given no uncertain sound. On such an issue it is felt that the club should not remain silent, therefore be it

"Resolved, that the Men's Club of the Crescent Avenue church registers its hearty approval of the action of the nine members of the Council who voted against the granting of any further retail licenses, and protest against the action of the two members named in voting for such license, and that the secretary be requested to send to each of the members of the Council a copy of this preamble and resolution."

In his remarks on the resolution, Mr. Carter stated that he felt that the action of the two councilmen was a direct slap in the face of the men of the city, in view of the action of last year, and that a vigorous protest was needed. He stated that he knew of other organizations which were going to pass similar resolutions, and told of a protest which has been framed to go to Mr. vanHerwerden requesting an explanation of his vote. This protest was largely signed by residents of the Second ward during the meeting, and was also signed at other church organizations yesterday.

Councilman Leighton Calkins, who was present at the meeting, was called upon by Dr. Murray, and he said that he would like to have those present express their sentiments on the question of more wholesale licenses as the members of the Council, he believed, were in somewhat of a quandary as to what to do. He reviewed his effort to try to put the Council on record last year on three questions, namely, that no license which has ever been revoked be renewed; that all licensees who conduct their places properly be given assurance that so long as they so conduct their places they need have no fear of losing their licenses, and last that positively no new licenses be granted.

On the wholesale question Mr. Calkins said that he felt that a great many people thought there was entirely too much monopoly in that line in town, which created some feeling in favor of having one more wholesale place doing a general trade. He for one, would like to see the question settled, once and for all, and if the people do not want to have any more wholesale licenses he felt that a meeting similar to that of last year be called, to let the councilmen know how they feel about it. Mr. Calkins, in answer to a query, said that he heard it said that the present wholesale licensee took advantage of having that license, and that if another was granted it would be by taking the pick of the five men who are seeking the permit and after looking his record up thoroughly grant the license to him.

Augustus V. Heely suggested that a protest be made by the club in the matter, and Deuse VanVliet made a motion that the Crescent Avenue Club request the Federation of Men's Clubs to hold a meeting at which the question of more wholesale licenses be thoroughly discussed. Councilman Calkins suggested that haste was necessary in the matter, and it was decided that a large representation from the club would attend the meeting of the Federation of Men's Club when held next week. There was discussion by a half dozen or more others, and then Mr. Heely moved that the club go on record as being opposed to any more wholesale licenses, which was carried unanimously.

My Old Kentucky Home

Jan. 13 marks the fiftieth anniversary of the death of Stephen Collins Foster, the American song writer. "My Old Kentucky Home," one of his most famous compositions, is herewith given:

The sun shines bright in the old Kentucky home;
'Tis summer, the darkeys are gay.
The corn top's ripe, and the meadow's in the bloom,
While the birds make music all the day.
The young folks roll on the little cabin floor,
All merry, all happy and bright.
By an' by hard times come a-knocking at the door;
Then, my old Kentucky home, good night!

Weep no more, my lady;
Oh, weep no more today!
We will sing one song for the old Kentucky home,
For the old Kentucky home far away.

They hunt no more the possum and the coon
On the meadow, the hill and the shore;
They sing no more by the glimmer of the moon
On the bench by the old cabin door.
The day goes by like a shadow o'er the heart.
With sorrow, where all was delight.
The time has come when the darkeys have to part.
Then, my old Kentucky home, good night!

Weep no more, my lady, etc.

The head must bow, and the back will have to bend.
Wherever the darkey may go.
A few more days and the trouble all will end
In the fields where the sugar canes grow.
A few more days for to tote the weary load—
No matter; 'twill never be light.
A few more days till we totter on the road.
Then, my old Kentucky home, good night!

Weep no more, my lady, etc.

FOUND ODD WAYS OF EARNING AN EDUCATION.

Columbia Student Group Made $57,705. One Worked as a Bootblack.

The quest for funds with which to pay his way through college brought a student of Columbia university, New York, to his knees last summer as a bootblack. In two weeks he saved $20. Then he turned mason and saved $15 in another two weeks. Next, he took up farm labor and saved another $20. The total gave him a good start on the winter's tuition bill.

Other needy Columbia men spent the hot summer months in much the same way and, while their wealthier classmates were idling, earned $57,705.76, an increase of almost $20,000 over 1912, according to the report given out by the appointments committee, which for the first time in years was responsible for practically half of the money earned by the students, or $28,312.53, which is $13,000 more than for the preceding year.

One hustling youth of the third year class conducted a party through Europe, which netted him all his expenses and a little pocket money besides. Another earned $25 writing signs and trimming windows and then turned his hand at faking at country fairs, which netted him $100 and expenses.

An engineering student sold real estate and at night clerked at a soda fountain for a gross gain of $150. Another worked at night as an automobile salesman and earned $320 in the four months. One engineering student earned $150 as a pharmacist and another put in the summer as a mate on a sailing yacht and netted $50 in addition to expenses.

CHAMBERLAIN, VETERAN M. P.

Summary of the Activities of the Famous Statesman About to Retire.

Joseph Chamberlain, who at seventy seven has announced that he will retire from the English parliament at the next general election, has represented Birmingham in the house of commons since 1876. He is in poor health and has been ailing since his resignation from the Unionist cabinet in 1903. His last appearance in the house of commons was at the opening of the session in 1911. He was assisted into the chamber, took his oath and went away again. He has not made a speech in the house for eight years.

After one defeat for parliament in 1873 Mr. Chamberlain was elected in 1876. He was returned in 1880, and when Mr. Gladstone formed a new cabinet immediately afterward Mr. Chamberlain became president of the board of trade, a post which carries a portfolio with it.

Mr. Gladstone chose him for president of the local government board in the cabinet of 1885, but soon after that he differed with the premier on the home rule question and resigned. He was returned to parliament as a member of the Unionist party, which he formed out of the Conservative elements. It was to this party that Mr. Gladstone later owed his defeat.

From 1895 to 1903 Mr. Chamberlain was secretary of state for the colonies and shouldered great responsibility in the conduct of the Boer war.

EX-BANDIT SEEKS TO BE GOVERNOR

Al Jennings Tells Why He Wants to Rule Oklahoma.

WOULD REFORM PRISONS.

Man Who Was a Train Robber Sympathizes With First Offenders—Explains Why He Quit Life of Crime and Scores Respected Rogues Less Crude Than He Was.

Al J. Jennings, ex-train, robber and federal prisoner, who won the Democratic nomination for county attorney of Oklahoma county, Okla., in 1912, is about to announce his candidacy for the governorship of the state of Oklahoma.

"I am entering the race," said Mr. Jennings in New York recently, "as a Democrat. Many of my friends have urged me to seek an independent nomination, but I have always been a Democrat. My object is to clean up the party in Oklahoma. I intend to fight double dealing, political thieves, with whom no self respecting outlaw of former years can associate.

"All I want is to see absolutely honest men at the head of the government, and after I have announced my candidacy if some man whose integrity and uprightness are unquestioned becomes a candidate I shall withdraw and support him with all of my ability.

Why Jennings Reformed.

"Some people do not seem to be able to understand how an outlaw, an ex-train robber and federal prisoner can become sincerely law abiding and a reformer in politics, but the explanation is simple. I made a mistake and defied the law. I was caught and punished—kept five years in prison—and then saw how I had been wrong to become an enemy of society. I decided to reclaim my place in society and set about doing it. As soon as I became a free man, living in a free community, I began to appreciate the differences in lawbreaking and the consequences thereof, and that made me a political reformer.

"I had been a train robber, a crude, open defier of society, and I had been caught and punished. I saw all about me men who wore the best clothes and stood high in society robbing the people right and left and not getting caught or being punished. They were not as primitive as I had been in the method they chose. They did things in the dark and only appeared in the open when they had on their Sunday clothes, so to speak."

Mr. Jennings says he will carry on the same kind of aggressive, personal campaign for the gubernatorial nomination as he carried on for the county attorneyship. He claims he has no money behind him and will not be able to establish headquarters.

"I will stump the state," he said, "and speak from the street corners and halls wherever I can."

Mr. Jennings said that if he is elected governor he will make it his chief object to enforce the law without respect to persons, but that from lessons derived during his own prison experience he will also apply himself to prison reform in Oklahoma.

Pledges Aid to First Offenders.

"I favor the adoption of a reformatory parole system," he said, "by which first offenders can be given a chance to redeem themselves. I think that a young man who is convicted for the first time should be allowed to stay at home and work under the watchful eye of the state instead of being locked up in a prison where, in all probability, he will be made a confirmed criminal. There will be no wholesale release of prisoners if I become governor, but I will exercise the power of pardon and parole with the view of reclaiming for society every man I can. As long as there is a chance of making a good citizen of a man we should try to do so."

Jennings was a train robber in Oklahoma and the southwest for several years before his final capture in 1897 and subsequent conviction in a federal court. He served a few years in the prison at Columbus, O., before being pardoned by President McKinley. His citizenship was later restored by President Roosevelt, and he began the practice of law in Oklahoma City. In 1912 he ran for the Democratic nomination as county attorney of Oklahoma county against six other candidates. Before the primaries five of the candidates withdrew to concentrate the vote against him, but in spite of this he obtained the nomination. At the general election he was defeated by a narrow margin by a Republican who was supported by both the Republican and Democratic organizations.

Daniels Lauds Naval Heroes.

The secretary of the navy has highly commended Oscar B. Peterson, oiler, on duty on board the U. S. S. Boston at Portland, Ore., for risking his life to save a man from drowning in the Columbia river. Charles Zebley, seaman, and Albert D. Russell, fireman, second class, have also been commended by the secretary. An enlisted man fell overboard at Portsmouth, N. H., and Zebley jumped overboard. The water was icy cold and the current so strong that both were nearly lost. Russell started to undress and jump after the men, but was restrained. The two men were rescued by a boat.

"THE THREE R'S."

In an interview published in the New York Times, Max Sillig, head of the celebrated school at Vevey, points out a fault of our American schools that is patent to most of us. It is that not enough emphasis is placed on the elements that are the basis of all study. The cause for this failure of thoroughness in teaching the elements he holds to be the custom of rushing the pupils ahead before they get an understanding of the fundamental things.

Dr. Sillig declares that American boys of fourteen come to his school in Switzerland who have not mastered the multiplication table. Some of them have studied trignometry, but really do not understand fractions. Is this not so? Are not pupils rushed into the higher grades who cannot spell correctly, cannot write as they should be able to and have not got the necessary arithmetic? And is it not a fact that when they finally finish their course of study they are sent out into the world handicapped because they have not learned the fundamentals.

Undoubtedly VanHerwerden and Martin did not express public sentiment on the question when they cast their votes in the Common Council against the resolution which provided that there should be no more retail licenses. But it is only fair to say that they were honest in their convictions.

Commission appointed by the U. S. courts to examine Harry K. Thaw has made a report that he is suffering from no mental disorder. It is not to be wondered at that the general public places little value in expert testimony.

LIFE'S PHILOSOPHY A PASTOR'S SUBJECT

Rev. Dr. C. E. Herring Gives Instructive Talk at First Presbyterian Church.

At the First Presbyterian church last night, Rev. Dr. C. E. Herring preached on "Some Modern Philosophies of Life and Jesus Christ." He centred his thought on the philosophy of Rudolph Eucken, and showed how the trend of modern thought was against materialism, and how that thinker pointed to the Christian religion as the real satisfaction for the world's need and unrest. "With all of his learning that thinker has not given us anything more than Christ has given us, but he does emphasize the unfathomable depth and immeasurable hope which are contained in the Christian faith."

Here are some of the great thoughts in his philosophy. "Man belongs to the visible world but inwardly he is alive to the presence of a deeper reality." He is not so much concerned with the material universe as the riddle of life is not to be solved that way. The real solution of the Riddle of Life will only be solved when we discover that which will make this a better world and man a better man. The greatest thing in the world is not something that is material but the "Universal Spiritual Life," and the purpose of man should be to come in touch with this life.

"Religion," he says, "is not a communication of overworld secrets, but the inauguration of an overworld life." In other words, it is the realization of the prayer "Thy kingdom come, Thy will be done on earth as in heaven." That which hinders man from realizing this overworld life is sin. "The root of evil," he says, "is not in the nature of the world, but in moral wrong,—in a desertion from God." Christianity demands that we should break with the world. This is what he calleds in his philosophy "the Negative Movement." This means a battle with everything that hinders his struggle for the ideal. Then comes the next step which he calls a "New Immediacy" of experience. He means by this that the "Universal Spiritual Life" takes first place in his thought and the world of sense and the world of society takes second place.

The question arises how can a man touch this spiritual life. Eucken answers, "By living into the experience of others who have lived long ago." They are the heroes of the past. As he studies their lives, he becomes aware of the depths in his own soul. He not only studies and contemplates their heroism, but he practices it. The philosophy of Eucken is called "Activism." A man knows not because he has centred his intellect upon some great ideal of life, but because he has put the ideal into action. "Doubt is not cured by meditation but by action." This is in accord with the Master's word, "If any man wills to do His will, he shall know of His teaching."

This is what Eucken says of Christianity, "It is a sure pathway to truth, an awakener of immediate and intimate life, a vivid representation and realization of an Eternal Order which all the changes of time cannot possess or destroy."

After a pleasing program refreshments were served.

CUPID GETS CREDIT FOR THIS MYSTERY

Rutgers Star, Who Played Basketball Against Y. M. C. A. Five is Missing.

No news has yet been received in regard to the whereabouts of Howard P. Tallman, the Rutgers football star and All-American guard, although vigorous attempts have been made to locate him. Several of his friends tried yesterday to locate Miss Dorothy Berton, the New York society belle, to whom Tallman is rumored to be engaged, but all attempts prove unsuccessful. The only further development in the case is the fact that a classmate, Harry Rockafeller, a member of the same fraternity as Tallman, found a note in his room yesterday from Tallman, relating to the disposition of some of his personal effects, which he did not have time to take away with him. The note directed that his trunk and other belongings be sent to his home in Spring Valley, N. Y.

Tallman's brother, who is a student in the Reformed Theological Seminary, still refuses to believe that his brother left college to marry, although he is completely mystified as to Howard's reasons for leaving. He declares that he is positive that Howard would have given him some idea of his purpose if he had really intended to be married.

It was impossible to find out yesterday whether any marriage license had been issued in New York to Tallman, but it is generally believed that he went there first, though whether he remained in that city, or went somewhere else is still an open question.

Miss Berton is an artist and the daughter of a Rouen, France, automobile manufacturer and importer.

Tallman is a strapping big fellow standing six feet, three inches and weighing 200 pounds, although only nineteen years old.

WESTON WILL WALK OLD MEN IN SIX DAY MATCH.

To Pit Team Against Younger Opponents to Settle Question of Prowess.

Edward Payson Weston, seventy-five-year-old world famous pedestrian, is arranging a walking contest which will have a scientific interest for those who insist that age brings with it a general inability to perform, even after a fashion, those feats of an athletic nature which a few years back were easy of accomplishment.

The general proposition is a test between youth and old age in a "go-as-you-please" contest on a measured track. It is stated that the veteran walker's experience has led him to believe that a man at forty years is to a man of sixty-five years as fifteen years is to nine years in walking capacity.

Weston is about to institute a contest where, on the same track, a team of men at or beyond the sixty-five-year age limit will be pitted against a similar number of men none of whom is over forty-five years of age, with a handicapping system based on the allowance of walking time on the track.

The test is to cover a period of six days, and the younger men will be given nine hours each day in which to gain their total mileage, while the older group will have an allowance of fifteen hours during each twenty-four in which to endeavor to equal or beat the efforts of their youthful opponents.

Five thousand dollars will be distributed among the several contestants according to the records made. While no date or place has been fixed for the proposed contest, it has tentatively been agreed upon that May of this year would be a fitting time.

BANISH SALOONS.

"I am opposed to every form of the saloon. You cannot make this vice respectable. Call it by whatever name you choose, it is the same, old evil, crushing the life blood out of men and women, destroying homes and ruining souls.

"Abraham Lincoln said, 'reasonable men of the world have long since agreed that drunkenness is one of the greatest, if not the greatest of all evils among mankind.'

"Robert Raiker, the founder of the modern Sunday-school, was in favor of a 'total prohibition of making malt spirits which is wasting corn to make poison.' This statement practically coincides with the bill in Congress to prohibit the manufacture of liquor.

"Reason, science and experience say the saloon must go. I cannot say one good word about the saloon. It is not a legitimate business. Its history is written in tears, blood and disgrace. It is the breeding place of falsehood, dishonesty and deceit. Its products are drunkards, imbeciles, paupers, criminals, prostitute men and women. There is no such institution as a respectable saloon.

"For every saloon licensed in a town, you must increase your police budget an equivalent amount or stand for a cesspoll of vice and iniquity and hell itself let loose. Railroads do not employ men who use intoxicants. I have yet to see a contractor, seeking intemperate men, who are one day at work and the next day unable to work. It is for the best interests of the city to have sober men and the less saloons the better the moral condition of any place. A man who is not right on this saloon question nowadays causes suspicion of his own life.

"No drunkard can inherit the Kingdom of God. The saloon destroys a man for time and eternity. How does a person become a drunkard? Usually by moderate drinking or by taking a social glass with his companions. Such a person boasts that he is strong enough to stand, but finds that his strength is only weakness.

"'Let him that thinketh he standeth, take heed lest he fall.' The only safe way is to stay away from the saloon as far as wou possibly can. Victory may be temporarily delayed, but the forces of righteousness will ultimately conquer."

PRAISE THEIR CHIEF

him toward one goal—efficiency. Our service is good, perhaps not so considered by every one, for that is something we do not expect. To please all would be impossible. It is true that we all make our mistakes, but no man is perfect. There has been many great changes since we have been together. The business has grown from what we may call a small country office to one of a first class city. The receipts and work has steadily increased and in looking over those here tonight, I see many who have been appointed to handle this extra amount of business since I have taken office. In 1898, we only had four clerks and eleven carriers, now we have fifteen clerks, twenty six city carriers and three rural carriers.

"I have thoroughly enjoyed my experience among you, and I hope that when I relinquish the reins of the office I now hold, that I will continue to retain your friendship and that we will meet on many occasions to exchange courtesies."

The next speaker was Inspector William D. Larabee, who has been in the service since a boy. He cautioned postal employes never to do a dishonest act in the performance of duty and he praised Postmaster Bird, saying he had always found him honest, courteous and truly gentlemanly. Alfred E. LaPorte, a mail clerk, who performed his first duties in the department eighteen years ago, spoke reminiscently, and William Demarest, when called upon for an address said, "Take a look at the oldest carrier in the city," and sat down.

Others who spoke were John McCormack, secretary of the local branch; D. T. Clawson, J. F. Monohan, Thomas Meaney, George Archibald Bailey, James L. Lambert, Roy Hann, J. B. Conkling, B. Frank Stodd, James Bailey and Howard Miller.

James Bailey was chairman of the reception committee and others who assisted in making the event a success include Alva Dunham, Charles Schlief and George Apgar.

Among those present were: Postmaster E. H. Bird, Inspector C. A. Larabee, J. W. A. Bauersachs, E. J. VanWinkle, J. B. Conkling, Charles W. Harrell, Howard Frederick Miller Arthur S. Joy, Herbert F. Glaentzer, Frank M. Legge, George "Ambitious" Bailey, LeRoy S. Hann, B. Frank Stodd, Oliver R. Pearson, F. M. Harold, D. J. Shea, William H. Thorn, R. H. Loughlin, A. E. LaPorte, C. V. SENDS ORE BY PARCEL POST.

Washington Prospector Finds Way to Avoid High Freight Charges.

A new use has been found for the parcel post that is liable to make it necessary for Uncle Sam to put on large drayage wagons with which to make deliveries if it is taken up by many persons. John B. Donahue, a prospector, who is working a gold claim in the Olympics, in Washington, is the discoverer. Donahue is working a claim about thirteen miles northwest of Lake Cushman. Reports on his ore had shown that it runs from $4 to $6 a ton, but he was not satisfied and wanted to send out enough for a mill test run. He took it up with the University of Washington and was told that he would have to send out 400 pounds.

After getting his ore to Lake Cushman he found that to freight it from there to Hoodsport would cost $3.50 At Hoodsport there would be a wharfage charge of 40 cents, while drayage from the water front to the University of Washington would take another $3.

The total cost of delivery from L Cushman, $10.80, made Donahue th twice. He had heard of the new parcel post, but had never used it. Thinking it might help him, he inquired. He was informed that he could send pounds from Lake Cushman to the university for $1.24. The parcel post got his 400 pounds of freight. The total government charges were $4.96 Donahue saved $4.84.

WHEN THE EARTH QUAKES.

Stresses and Strains to Which Our Globe Is Subjected.

When the stairs creak and the furniture gives out mysterious crackling sounds at night we sometimes sit up in bed and wonder if there is a burglar about, but it doesn't occur to us that what we hear is really an earthquake on a small scale. The night air has caused the wood to contract with a snap, thus accounting for the alarming sounds. This is just exactly what the earth is doing periodically. To a microbe, reposing on the polished surface of the table, this disturbance is probably as violent as an earthquake is to a human being.

An earthquake is a terrible thing. It comes without warning. It is over before one knows which way to fly, and its fury can be abated by no man.

Yet to the geologist earthquakes are only symptoms. They are not causes so much as results—results of great stresses and strains within the earth that cause slippings and slidings from time to time. If the rocks on the shelf of the earth slip and grate against each other so much as an inch along a fissure ten miles in length a shiver is felt. A slip of fifteen feet along a course of 200 miles sufficed to bring about the terrible San Francisco earthquake and fire.

These strains and stresses accumulate steadily within the earth. The point at which they have once found relief is weaker to resist the next strain. It slips again presently. By successive movements its sides become more and more displaced. Rock layers, mineral veins, coal seams that cross the line of displacement, are jogged out of their course. So are roads, fence lines and brooks that run across it on the surface. In the San Francisco quake one man's front yard was moved twenty feet to one side of his house, and in another place the slip line came so close to a man's barn that some piles of straw, thrown out from the windows, were carried away. In Japan a cliff twelve feet high interrupted a roadway, and thousands of similar cases might be cited. These were primary movements along the line of the disturbance that caused the earthquakes.—Brooklyn Eagle.

—Something unusual for the table is always a welcome treat to the home folks. The ad-reading women does not find the problem hard.

SPOT LIGHT IS ON HISTORIC FAIRFAX

Virginia In Fight to Regain Martha Washington Will.

INSISTS MORGAN GIVE IT UP

Testament Cut From the Records of Fairfax County During Civil War and Discovered In Father's Library Six Years Ago Is Prized Beyond Price In the Old Dominion.

The stage is being set for a bitter battle between the state of Virginia and J. Pierpont Morgan in Virginia's avowed intention of recovering "at all costs" the will of Martha Washington, which was stolen from the records of Fairfax county, Va., during the civil war. This historical document is in the possession of the New York financier, who has declined to accede to the request of the state that he surrender it.

Representative Charles C. Carlin, who represents the Fairfax district, has come forward to aid the state and county officials to recover the will.

"The people of Virginia are aroused over this matter," said the congressman recently. "The will is ours, and we are going to have it restored to where it belongs."

"Virginia will recover the will of Martha Washington at all costs," declared Crandall Mackey, commonwealth attorney for Alexandria county. "Until Mr. Morgan persisted in his refusal to return the will to the archives from which it was purloined the fight was one between him and the people of Fairfax county, to whom the document belongs, but now it has become a state wide question."

Will Lost For Fifty Years.

The will of Martha Washington, wife of the first president of the United States, was cut from the records of Fairfax county while the war between the states was raging in that part of Virginia. Virginians believe that one of General McDowell's soldiers carried off the Martha Washington will along with other records, but how it got into Mr. Morgan's possession no one seems to be able to guess.

For more than fifty years the people of Fairfax county have searched for the Martha Washington will, which they prized very highly as a relic. Not long ago some one who saw the will among Mr. Morgan's collection notified a friend in Fairfax, and an effort was made to have the document returned to where Virginians say it rightfully and legally belongs.

Mrs. John S. Barbour, regent of the Falls Church (Va.) chapter of the Daughters of the American Revolution, acting for her organization, wrote and asked Mr. Morgan to return the will, which, she said, had been "taken from the records of Fairfax county, Va."

An unfavorable reply was received from Mr. Morgan's librarian.

Futile Appeals to Elder Morgan.

The report that the Washington will was in the Morgan collection first was heard six years ago. Several letters were sent to the elder Morgan, but he never replied to any of them, so it is said.

After his death the Fairfax people became interested in the will again. The Daughters of the American Revolution and the Falls Church chapter joined forces in an effort to recover the testament. When gentler means failed it was decided to enlist the aid of the state.

The suit planned to recover the will is unique in that the state of Virginia sues an individual before the supreme court of the United States. It is one of the few instances where a state has sued a citizen in the supreme court.

Ferdinand D. Richardson, father of the present clerk of Fairfax county, was clerk of the county when the will was taken.

Mrs. Washington's estate at the time the will was made was one of the largest in the south.

REDFIELD ON PROSPERITY.

Secretary of Commerce Makes Bright Forecast For Year.

In an article in the Chicago Tribune Secretary of Commerce Redfield forecasts prosperity for 1914 and scoffs at pessimistic predictions. He says in part:

The facts are such as should fill us all with hope. There is little in them to justify either doubt for the present or fear for the future.

The crop of winter wheat already planted to mature next summer is not only in finer condition than a year ago, but is of much larger extent, promising well for the future if weather conditions prove favorable and certainly justifying no present anxiety.

Referring to American industries, he says, "One does not need to be worried by this cry of wolf, for the cry has been made before, and the wolf did not come."

Asks Divorce Because He's Bald.

Because he is bald and his wife sent him a comb and brush as a Christmas present, Jeremiah Schlestenberg of Midway, Pa., began an action for divorce on the grounds of cruel and barbarous treatment. "I can't grow hair on my head and I can't stand her jibes," says Schlestenberg.

LITTLE TALKS BY THE WANT-AD MAN

Copyright, 1913, The Int. Syndicate, Baltimore.

No. 49.

DO you say you can't write an ad.? Well, a great many are inclined to throw a lot of mysticism around the task of writing an ad. But they are the ones who are wrong. If a customer comes in for a pair of gloves, you talk gloves to him; you don't talk about the weather or your family history. So, when you write an ad., go straight to the point, and if you write a glove ad. don't say anything about your ability to make breeches."

—S. C. Dobbs.

A great many people shy at writing an advertisement—even a little three or four-line Want Ad. They can write a good letter or an interesting story or a well-expresed essay—oh, my, yes; that's easy—but when it comes to writing something in the nature of a business announcement, they are suddenly afflicted with mental chills.

And why? Simply because of the erroneous impression that there is some magic about advertising—some black art, some deep-hidden formula that, to the initiated, makes the problem of successful advertising an open book.

Rot! Writing a good ad. means simply putting on paper, in the clearest possible manner, what you have or what you want. Want to sell that old square piano? Then don't go to the dictionary on a hunt for words that will look nice in print. Just say that you have an old piano for sale; say a word or two as to its make; its condition; the price you want for it. Put these facts together briefly and you'll have a good add.

Or do you want a cook? Well, don't try to tell your family history when you go about advertising for one. Say you want a cook—that's the Alpha and Omega of your want, isn't it?—say you want an experienced one; say whether yours is a small or large family, so that the reader of your ad. may get some idea of your requirements; say what the wages will be. And you can say all this in three or four lines, which, inserted in the Classified columns of the newspaper you are reading, will carry your want straight to the attention of hundreds.

Magic? Mystery?? Science??? Bosh! Advertising—first, last and all the time—is COMMON SENSE.

Winter Washings.

The winter washings are much more troublesome than those of summer. For even if the winter wash days are clear they are usually frosty and clothes that freeze faster than they dry are troublesome to manage. It would be a pleasant thing if all households were so arranged that wash day could be delayed until fair and mild weather prevailed. But this is, of course, impossible.

Since such an arrangement is impossible, indoor drying is to some extent necessary in cold weather.

Fine lingerie must be dried out-of-doors on a windy day that is cold enough to freeze. The combination of freezing and beating prove too much for the clothes. They freeze stiff, are beaten against one another and the line, and literally break. Such things must be dried in the house, and if a clean attic or empty room can be used for a drying room, the task is much simplified. The windows should be opened and the heat should be turned on, so that the air will be fresh and dry.

Woolens, too, should be dried in the house on very cold days. The secret of drying woolen so that it does not shrink lies in drying quickly. If it freezes in the process of drying it does not dry quickly. It should be hung in a warm, dry room. It should never be dried so rapidly that you can see steam rising from it as this very rapid drying shrinks it.

It is a good idea to dry all woolen things before they are quite dry. Shrinking is caused by the intertwining of the wool fibres, which are jagged so that they catch on each other, and the ironing while the wool is still damp helps to keep the fibres from matting together.

There are boards that come to stretch stockings and various undergarments on while they are drying, and these are well worth buying for expensive woolens.

The best way to wash woolen goods of any kind is to use warm water and soap shavings dissolved in a little hot water. No board should be used, but the woolen should be moved constantly about in the water and rubbed and squeezed between the hands. Then it should be wrung out, rinsed thoroughly in clear, warm water, wrung dry again and hung up. Pure good soap should be used.

Stockings.

Woolen stockings, like any others, should be hung by the legs, not by the toes, as hanging by the toes increases the size of the holes. They should be ironed on the wrong side, so that they will be in the right position for mending.

There should always be on hand by the side of the laundry door a long-sleeved, thick sweater, that buttons snugly about the throat and a woolen cap to pull over the head. Good rubbers should also be there. There should be a pair of thick cotton wash gloves, loose enough to pull on easily and to prove of as little trouble as possible in using the hands. These things would make colds among laundresses far fewer than they are. The laundress, overheated from the steaming atmosphere of the laundry, too often steps unprotected out into the cold—and catches cold.

Practical Fashion Hints

By Alice Gibson

7895

The draped dress is undeniably the most graceful model for the afternoon or evening. The folds of material cling to the figure and bring out all its best lines.

Any of the soft materials are suitable: charmeuse, crepe de Chine, the new silk crepes; there are qualities of cashmere that are quite ideal for these dresses

No. 7895 is a design showing the drop-shoulder, a waist with the yoke cut in one with the upper part of the sleeve, a surplice vest and a three-piece skirt, draped slightly at the side front and side back.

An excellent suggestion for this dress is currant red silk crepe with the folded vest of chiffon in a soft wisteria color It would also be attractive in a dull blue wool crepe with the vest of white and would perhaps be a bit more practical as it could be worn oftener without one becoming tired of the shade.

This design may be made in size 36 with 5¼ yards of 36 inch material The pattern is cut in 5 sizes: 34 to 42.

This Is a Perfect Pattern.

Be sure to state right size measuring over the fullest part of the bust for dimensions.

USEFUL AND PRETTY.

Just What the Housewife Will Like.

CORK BAG OF BLUE LINEN.

Corks are one of the little things one can never find when there is use for them. This little cork bag is the clever idea of an ingenious housekeeper who believes in "a place for everything and everything in its place."

The bag is built of blue linen, with a band of cretonne as a decoration. To the end of the bag is attached a corkscrew.

Homemade Flowerpot.

Flowerpots of any size or design may be made of plaster of paris in the following way: First secure a mold of the desired size. It must be smooth upon the outside and the top a little larger than the bottom. Grease the mold and cover it with paper. Mix plaster of paris one part, water two and one-half parts, and into this solution dip inch wide strips of muslin.

Invert the mold and cover the bottom with a square of muslin that has been dipped in the plaster mixture.

Then, upon the same plan that a surgeon employs to adjust a plaster cast, begin to wind diagonally, around and around, working from bottom to top and then back again, smoothing out the creases and keeping the strips even. When the last layer is in place add a generous coating of the plaster, rubbing it level by the hand. Set in a strong current of air, and in a short time the mold can be removed.

The strips of muslin should be about ten inches long to manage easily, and the size of the pot will govern the number used, as a large one will require more in order to produce a heavier article.

The last coating can be stamped with any ornamental impression or beautifully marbled by dusting a little powdered lye upon it before finishing.

Have You a Sautoire?

They formerly were known as lorgnette ribbons, but now they are commonly called sautoires—the quarter inch wide bands in black grosgrain that comes in yard lengths and are joined under hook equipped slides matching other slides of slightly larger size. The smart sautoire is fitted with slides of bar, circle, diamond or crescent shape in solid silver or gold set with brilliants or pearls and is designed to match a tiny watch or a vanity pendant, if lorgnettes are not used.

For elderly women the smartest thing in sautoires is fitted with a slide in cut jet, some of them in butterfly shape, and to suspend from these are circles in jets concealing a base of silver containing a vanity mirror.

Even more novel is the silk cord of yard length and of a brilliant shade of green, blue or red, supposed by the initiated to match the wearer's hosiery. Perhaps it does, but in any event it gives a fetching dash of color to the costume, and it serves to exhibit one of the new pear shaped pendants which come in pearls, amber, jet or brilliants—whichever one can afford.

Value of Neatness In Business World.

The business girl who knows the value of little things in a presentable and attractive apeparance never appears at the office with shabby, unpolished boots or with carelessly manicured hands. The concentrated gaze of the man who is dictating is very likely to fix itself on his stenographer's hand, poised over her notebook, or his lowered, absorbed gaze to focus itself on her feet.

He may or may not notice that the hand is exquisitely white and dainty, and the little boot irreproachably neat with no button missing. But let the hand show rough and ragged nails, or the boot show shabby and buttonless features, in nine cases out of ten his gaze is arrested and a mental note against that employee is registered in his mind Neatness should be the fetish of the girl worker, then economy, then wisdom in buying and finally all the attractiveness she can compass.

—Some store may be placing on "special sale" just now the article you have not felt like paying "regular" prices for.

A Smart Collar and Cuff Set for the Winter Dress or Coat.

Often a dress or coat is more becoming if it has a bit of white near the face, and a dainty hand-embroidered collar is just the thing. They may be worn not only to lighten, but to give a fresh touch to the garment. If one has a variety of styles of neckwear, the appearance of the gown will be changed greatly, making it seem like a number of dresses. This smart collar and cuff set may be made of white linen and embroidered in heavily padded solid work and eyelets. The edge should be slightly padded and worked in button-hole stitch, and if a less elaborate design is desired, some of the dots may be omitted. White or colored mercerized cotton may be used for developing this set.

This collar comes in medium size only, but the neck-outline can easily be made larger by cutting inside of the dotted line or smaller by cutting outside of it.

This collar is particularly suitable for the school, college or business girl.

Pattern number 14409 will be supplied to readers for 15 cents.

Some Cookery Suggestions

STEAMED FRUIT PUDDINGS.

DINNER MENU.
Chicken Broth With Rice.
Baked Stuffed Fowl.
Mashed Potatoes.
Peas.
Creamed Onions.
Watercress.
Steamed Banana Pudding.

PUDDINGS in which cereals are used are better for being steamed. A homemade steamer may be improvised by placing a plate upside down inside of a saucepan, pouring water about the plate and then, after covering the top of the pudding with a round of oiled paper, placing the lid tightly on the saucepan.

Recipes for some nice steamed puddings are given here:

Dainty Desserts.

Banana Pudding.—Take five bananas, two tablespoonfuls of sugar, two eggs, well beaten, and three-quarters of a pint of boiling milk. Peel and mash the bananas in a dish, stir in the sugar, add the eggs and mix well. Stir in the milk, pour into a pudding dish, bake until the pudding is set and serve hot. This pudding is nice if left to get cold and then served, but it should be eaten the same day it is made.

Apple Pudding.—Sift together one pint of whole wheat flour or white flour, one-half teaspoonful of soda, one-half teaspoonful of salt, from one-quarter to one-half teaspoonful of mixed spice. Mix with one ounce of melted shortening and one-half cupful each of molasses and sour milk. If too stiff add a few teaspoonfuls of water. If fresh fruit, like chopped apples, is put in the puddings the additional liquid is unnecessary. A cupful of mixed raisins, currants and citron may be used in the pudding.

Individual Puddings.

Orange Pudding.—Grate finely a cupful of stale bread and soak in half a cupful of cream until soft. When the cream is absorbed beat lightly and add the grated yellow rind and the juice of one orange. Sweeten to taste and add a pinch of salt and half a cupful of milk. Blend the ingredients thoroughly, fold in the stiffly beaten white of one egg and pour into buttered cups. The cups should not be filled too full. Set them in a pan of hot water and bake for about twenty minutes in a moderate oven.

Fruit Pudding.—Take two and one-half cupfuls of flour and mix with them a teaspoonful of soda, half a teaspoonful of salt and a teaspoonful and a half of cinnamon and nutmeg mixed. Into this rub a cupful of finely chopped suet and a cupful of chopped raisins. Stir all well and pour in a cupful of milk mixed with a cupful of molasses. Butter a pudding dish and pour the batter in it. Steam three hours and serve with whipped cream. What is left of this pudding may be sliced, rolled in powdered sugar and fried for a second meal.

THE SERVANT'S ROOM.

Maid's Quarters Should Be Comfortable and Cheerful.

Before the new maid arrives see that her room is comfortable and cheerful. Bear in mind that you have a whole house to live in, but her room is the only place to which she can retire when she is exhausted from her day's work. See that the furnishings are bright and pretty and, above all, see that the mattress is soft and easy. The maid needs a soft mattress more than any member of the family, for her labor is harder and she cannot work well if her rest has been broken and disturbed.

Any conveniences for the work which you can afford buy for the girl. Rest assured it will be appreciated and the money will be well spent, for she will give cheerful and willing service if she knows that her comfort is just as important to her mistress as the comfort of the members of the family.

Some women are very neglectful of their servants' comfort. They keep up a constant stream of new maids and wonder why none of them remains, when no care is taken of the servants' quarters whatever. One woman told a friend an incident that happened in her own home—told it as a joke on herself. She has a palatial country home in a fashionable resort and she keeps a dozen servants She said that in July the waitress told her that her room would have to be done over She could not sleep in it any longer. The employer said, "Nonsense, Mary; you have slept in it since June, and it would inconvenience me greatly to have it done over now." So the maid let it go a few days and then came again with the same complaint and said she would have to leave if the room were not done over. The mistress became angry and told the maid to leave then. She sent to town immediately for another girl.

—It is wiser to know what a thing OUGHT TO COST before buying it; and ad-readers usually do know this.

Dr. Red Fox Was Reading a Book.

Daddy's Bedtime Story—

Spud Coon's New Year's Resolution.

"I MUST tell you," said daddy to Jack and Evelyn, "about Spud Coon's New Year's resolutions Spud Coon had been a very naughty raccoon during the Christmas holidays He had been stealing a great many of Farmer Wells' chickens He had given a number of chicken feasts and had also gone to many dances. He had always come home very much exhausted and stayed in bed late every morning.

"Of course too many dances, too many chicken feasts and such late hours began to make Spud Coon feel wretched. He got extremely worried about himself, and one evening—it was New Year's eve, by the way—Spud Coon decided he would go to see Dr. Red Fox.

"Now, Dr. Red Fox had been very naughty when he was a little fox, but age had given him a great deal of common sense, and he was as clever as a fox can be, which is pretty clever, you know.

"Spud Coon found him all alone in his office, which was about a mile through the woods from where Spud Coon lived. Dr. Red Fox was seated on a wooden stump reading an enormously big book, and he looked very wise with his spectacles on his nose.

"'How do you do, Spud Coon?' said Dr. Fox as he looked up from his book.

"'Oh, very poorly! I am afraid I am going to die,' replied Spud Coon

"'Why, what's the trouble?'

"'Oh, doctor, I've very bad pains in my head, and my legs ache, and I don't know what is the matter with me!'

"Dr. Fox took his spectacles off his nose and, leaning back on the stump, sighed heavily.

"'Well, I know what the trouble is, Spud Coon; you've been eating too many chickens, and too much of anything is bad for you Then you've stolen them, and your conscience is troubling you, for you really are a good coon at heart, and late hours—they are awful for you You should get up early, go hunting for your food in the right way, and then you'll feel well But if you keep on like this,' and Dr. Fox looked very grave, 'you'll be all doubled up with rheumatism so that your joints will get stiff and you will not be able to walk without limping and no one will care for you.'

"Spud Coon felt for a few moments that he could never give up dances and chicken feasts, so accustomed to them had he become, and he had greatly enjoyed his lazy and gay life. But he realized how dreadful it would be to grow old and infirm before his time, so he bravely decided that his New Year's resolutions would be to do as Dr. Red Fox had said so he could once more be a good and strong coon."

N. P. H. S. PLAYERS HAD CLOSE CALL

New Brunswick Five Threw a Big Scare into Boro Camp Saturday Afternoon.

PLAYING WAS LOOSE

Final Score Showed a Difference of Seven Points—Early Lead Kept the Home Five in the Running—Love High Man In the Scoring Work.

Lack of practice proved almost fatal to the North Plainfield High School basketball team last Satuday afternoon when the team from New Brunswick High School came within seven points of winning, the final score being 30 to 23. The visitors started the scoring and took the lead by four points in the first few minutes of play. After five minutes had elapsed, Dunning was replaced by Conroy, Love going to center. North Plainfield finished the half with the better end of a 24 to 12 score. New Brunswick was erratic in the initial period and missed many chances to score.

In the second half the local boys seemed dead and the visitors passed all around them and gradually drew closer to their opponent's score. The Canadians had shots galore directly under the basket but could not make them count. Their first score did not come until after the first half of the period when Conroy dropped one in from the side. New Brunswick came within six points of tying the score but then Love caged a basket and Burner dropped two fouls which increased the lead sufficiently. For the home team Love was high point man with twelve points with Conroy second with eight. Dienzer and Polinsky did the bulk of the visitor's scoring while Manley played well at guard.

Queries, Comment and Answers

Sporting Editor:

Query—What, in your opinion, is the best means of bettering one's "wind?"—H. K. C.

Answer—The best results will be obtained by taking early morning runs, beginning with a short trot around the block and lengthening the run until you can do five miles with ease. Lengthen by degrees, however, and don't try to run three or four miles the first morning. If you do not relish the idea of getting up early these cold mornings, although it is the best time for running try the following exercise regularly each morning before breakfast: Lie flat on the floor and raise the right foot until it is at right angles with the body, then lower it until it is within two inches of the floor and while holding your right leg this far from the floor raise your left leg to a right angle position. Repeat this as many times as you can and you will find that it will gradually make your wind better and strengthen other muscles of the body as well.

Sporting Editor:

Query—Is there any heat in ice?—C. M. G.

Answer—Yes, but it is latent and not perceptible to our senses.

Sporting Editor:

Query—How far apart are the telephone poles on our streets? I have been running a certain number of poles each day and want to find out how far I travel?—C. J. A.

Answer—They average 100 feet, but this distance varies. Why not pace the distance and you can tell approximately how far you run.

Sporting Editor:

Query—What is sleep?—K. A. Z.

Answer—Sleep is the rest of the nervous system and brain. Try to get along without it for a couple of nights and you will be able to appreciate its value.

Sporting Editor:

Query—To whom should I apply for the rental of the Knights of Columbus Hall for a dance and reception?—W. P. R.

Answer—You can make arrangements with Paul H. Greenwood at his store on East Front street.

R. A. We have both copies of your query on file and will answer it when we get to it. It is impossible to answer all of the queries on the same day they are received and we give out the information in the order received.—Sporting Editor.

Sporting Editor:

Query—What is the richest country in the world?—L. M. H.

Answer—The United States leads all others by a comfortable margin.

FITZ ASKS INJUNCTION AGAINST COMMISSION

Bob Fitzsimmons has applied for an injunction against the State Athletic Commission to restrain that body from enforcing its ruling that forbids his appearing in the ring again because of advanced age. The papers were served last night on Chairman Frank S. O'Neil of the commission and probably will be served on Commissioners Dixon and Price today. The solons are to appear before Justice Guy in the County Court House, New York, at 10:30 Wednesday morning.

Along with his application, Fitz filed affidavits of Mike Donovan, boxing instructor of the New York Athletic Club, and A. J. Drexel Biddle, of Philadelphia, declaring that in their opinion the veteran should be allowed to box again. Donovan says Fitz is "in excellent physical condition." Biddle opines that "it would be a hardship if he should not be allowed to box again."

PLAINS SECOND TEAM EVENS UP WITH RIVAL

Playing without their leader for the first time this season, the Scotch Plains Parish House second team triumphed over the Watchung A. C., on the Parish House court Saturday night. They also squared accounts for their defeat earlier in the season at the hands of the Watchungs. The "rubber" game will be played off some time in the near future.

The game marked the advent of another of the Saunders brothers, who did excellent work at guard. K. Saunders helped the home five to victory with thirteen points while Marston did some classy foul shooting as usual. Bodin chalked up eight field goals for Watchung.

LEAGUE RECORDS STILL SHIFTING

Elks' Organization Supplying Some Interesting Pinning in All Quarters.

WINNER IN DOUBT

Race For Championship Honors Being Hotly Contested Between Several Rival Factions and the Title Not Yet a Certainty.

Elks' League bowling records to date show that an interesting race is being run and that the winner of the championship for the season of 1913-1914 cannot be named at the present writing. The Jersey City team is first, with a record of twenty-two victories and eleven defeats, the Newarks being just one game behind their Hudson county rivals. The New Brunswick are one game behind the Newarks. The same conditions exist all the way down to sixth place, the New Yorks, who are in that position, being only five games behind the leaders. The Elizabeths, who are seventh, have the distinction of holding high average honors, their mark of 913-7 being one pin better than the mark to the credit of the Jersey City bowlers, who have an average of 913-6. Newark is third, with 908-28. The Elizabeths, with 1,057, have also high score honors to their credit.

Delehanty, of Jersey City is holding on to first individual average honors, with a mark of 192-1 for eighteen games. Of those who have rolled throughout the season Henry Clauss, of Elizabeth, is the leader, his average being 189-15 for thirty games. The team and individual records to date, compiled from the official scores, follow:

MARTIN GETS OFFICIAL NOTICE FROM PRESIDENT

Jack Martin, the local ball player, received official notification from David L. Fultz, president of the Baseball Players' Fraternity yesterday, that he may now sign contract with the Boston National League Club as soon as it is sent to him by the Hub mnager. This method is necessary for in a previous agreement the players agreed to pay no attention to orders published in the newspapers. Had President Fultz given out an announcement in the newspapers, Martin and the other players therefore would not have regarded it as official.

Following a statement made yesterday by the president, Eugene Lidgate, of Fanwood, who plays with the Raleigh team of the Carolina League, will submit his application at once for membership in the fraternity. Fultz announced today that only players employed in organized baseball could become members of the fraternity and said that there was nothing in the constitution that would deprive a player of his good standing if he played with an outlaw team. The fraternity's attitude toward the Federal League is one of absolute neutrality.

ELK PINNERS WILL COMPETE IN BIG TOURNEY

Elks' League bowlers will be well represented in the National Bowling Association Tournament which will open in Atlantic City March 9, continuing for a period of three weeks. Among the entries are included a number of antlered pinners who have made records for themselves during this and other years in the "Hello Bill" league and include Connie Leick, who now heads the league; Alex. P. Hinton, Wallace H. Clark, William F. Koch, Fred W. Erhlich, W. W. Taylor, Ed. Oppel, William Weingarth and Charles L. Koops.

WOODSPLITTERS WILL HAVE THEIR INNINGS

Thirty Columbus Club Pinners Form a League with Scrappy Titles.

"Players from way back" have been induced to take the alleys once again in vast numbers as the result of a league that has just been organized among the members of the Columbus Club, of this city, and some red hot battles are anticipated by those at the helm during the coming days of sleet and snow. Woodsplitters who got their first tryout in grandfather's woodshed and the polished pinners of the Knights of Columbus league will mingle their prowess on the Columbus Club alleys, fighting for one or another of the half dozen quintets with the historical handles.

The "vets" of Brandywine, Bunker Hill, Lexington, Yorktown, Gettysburg, and even Germantown will match their heaving ability on the club alleys and some are known to be better handlers of the wooden sphere than musket bearers.

Hostilities will open Friday night when the Bunker Hill and Lexington teams are scheduled to appear on the battle front and assail the wooden images at the end of the chute. All told, thirty pinners will get into the alley sport during the winter months and the league will supply recreation for the entire membership of the club, either as spectators or players.

The teams will be made up of the following:

Yorktown—H. Shannon, W. J. Forristel, J. Cullen, J. Kenney, J. Coffey.

Lexington—E. Taylor, B. Brady, J. Kyle, J. King, J. Greene.

Bunker Hill—C. Shannon, J. J. Carty, E. Fiering, D. McAfee, J. Wilson.

Gettysburg—G. Taylor, J. Cahill, H. J. Pasch, J. McCarty, F. Donnelly.

Germantown—G. Howe, F. Hillman, M. Wilson, D. Mack, Joe McCarty.

Brandywine—F. McInerney, J. Strapp, J. Kyle, W. Sullivan, T. F. Carty.

Y. M. C. A. TEAM WILL GO TO KEARNEY VIA AUTO BUS

Members of the Y. M. C. A. basketball team will go to Kearny to play the Alumni of Kearny High School in the Lincoln gymnasium of that place. The trip will be made via auto bus and a number of the team's friends will accompany the players on the trip.

A new lineup will do battle in the game tonight, Dunning and Hetfield being substituted for Gavett and McNamee who will be unable to participate in the contest.

TITLE SETTLED BEYOND A DOUBT

Hope Chapel Played Circles Around the Y. M. C. A. in Deciding Game.

VICTORY WAS DECISIVE

Hope Chapel Played the Greatest Game of Basketball Exhibited By a Local Quintet in Years and No Doubt Remains As to Champion.

Jack Martin's crew of Hope Chapel sharpshooters completely obliterated the Y. M. C. A. team from the basketball map Saturday night in the Hope gym, and by virtue of their overwhelming decision of 40 to 20 the Chapelites are now entitled to the City Championship and everything that goes with it. Outgeneraling and outscoring the Association players from the first crack of the whistle the Chapelites always held the upper hand and despite the best efforts of the visiting guards the forwards on the church boys aggregation scored from the field at regular intervals.

The game was filled with thrills supplied almost exclusively by the home players, their shooting being little short of phenomenal and divided up among the entire squad. The Y. M. C. A. quintet, on the other hand appeared to be lost on the Chapel court and resembled a crew of spectators in basketball regalia. So aggressive was the winners' attack and so versatile their shooting that the rival clan never had a chance to come out in the lead after the initial minutes of play.

Despite the fact that the score was overwhelmingly in favor of the other side the Y. M. C. A. boys could assign no excuse to their poor showing save the wonderful exhibition of all around basketball put up by the other side and that was excuse enough for taking a drubbing.

Foul shooting, Doig and Moulton playing the role of toss-ups took a prominent position in the outcome and Doig's ability to find the net early in the game put the Y.M.C.A. team's chances on the shelf, frequent spectacular target throws by the Heron brothers and Snyder supplying entertainment of the thrilling variety for a crowd that packed the Hope gallery to its utmost capacity.

Each member of the team will be given one of the sweaters.

Jack O'Brien Returns to Ring to Meet White Hopes.

MURPHY IS AFTER MARSANS

Chicago Team Willing to Give "Flock" of Players For Cuban Star—Tipton to Train Billings' Horses—Cubs and Philadelphia Americans to Play Spring Series.

Philadelphia Jack O'Brien, who was a great fighter several years ago, is going to try his hand at the game again. Jack has gone through all the money he made out of his ring battles, and as he thinks he is still able to beat some of the present day "white hopes," he has started training in Philadelphia for the purpose of getting back into good form again.

Jack says he will "show up" some of the new white hopes.

Baseball circles have passed the rumor that Charles W. Murphy, president of the Chicago Cubs, has offered a flock of his players for Marsans, the Cuban outfielder of the Cincinnati team. The rumor states that President Herrmann says there is no chance for the deal proposed by Murphy to go through.

The report further states that Murphy would like to trade Bresnahan, Lavender and Schulte to the Reds for Benton and Johnny Bates. The rumor also has it that Murphy has started a big shakeup in the Cub team and has placed Heine Zimmerman, Roger Bresnahan, Frank Schulte and Lavender on the market.

Edward A. Tipton of New York and president of the Kentucky Horse Breeders' association has been chosen to manage the trotting horse breeding farm of C. K. G. Billings at Cotman, Henrico county, Va., succeeding Dr. Charles Tanner, who for almost fifteen years has been in charge of the Billings horses. Dr. Tanner was forced to resign on the advice of his physician.

The tender and acceptance of the resignation was of mutual regret and under circumstances against which both were powerless.

The Chicago Nationals will play six games with the Philadelphia Americans during the spring training in Florida, it was announced by President Murphy of the Cubs.

The first three will be March 12, 13 and 14 at the Cubs' training grounds at Tampa. The others will be played March 16, 17 and 18 at Jacksonville, where the world's champions train.

The University of Georgia's football schedule for 1914 has been announced as follows: Oct. 3, Citadel; 10, Sewanee; 17, University of North Carolina; 24, University of Virginia; 31, open; Nov. 7, Clemsen; 14, Georgia Tech; 21, Auburn.

Pending the outcome of plans for a new stadium at Athens, Ga., the cities in which the various games will be played will not be decided upon. It is hoped if these plans materialize to have a number of the more important contests at Athens.

The University of Washington navy has ordered two sixty-two foot eight oared racing shells for the use of the 1914 varsity crew.

The shells, which will be ready in March, are to be built for a crew averaging 170 pounds, and the builders predict that one of the two will finish first in the intercollegiate regatta on the Hudson next June. The funds for the shells were provided by the Seattle Commercial club.

Indiana university athletic committee has ordered all men who intend to be candidates for the football eleven in 1914 to enroll in the wrestling classes which will start this term.

This is a new idea in the training of gridiron candidates.

All Around Title In September.

The New England Amateur Athletic union will, beginning the first Monday in next September, hold an annual all around athletic championship.

GEORGE PASKERT'S JINX.

George Paskert, Philadelphia National league outfielder, has an unenviable record for misfortune. Before reporting to the Quakers last spring his troubles began with an attack of scarlet fever.

During an exhibition game Paskert had scarcely got up speed before he was forced to quit the game again with torn ligaments in his ankle. This laid him up for two weeks.

The little finger of his right hand was broken soon after his return to the game, and when he had that repaired the little finger of his left hand was dislocated.

Just before the end of the season he suffered an injury to his groin.

After remaining over in Philadelphia to be attended, Paskert finally started for the middle west in his automobile, and while in Cleveland a boy was run over by his machine.

Paskert is something of a philosopher. He says: "Next season ought to be the best I ever had. There is no more hard luck in the world left for me."

M'LAUGHLIN WILL FORM COUNTY TEAM

Local Veteran Pitcher Associated with Elizabethean in New Movement.

Warry McLaughlin, the veteran baseball pitcher of Plainfield, has been mentioned as an associate to Frank Burke, of Elizabeth, in his plan to interest Union county baseball magnates in the organization of a County All-Star team for Sunday games during the coming season and it seems probable that this city will be well represented in the lineup when it is announced.

McLaughlin is without a doubt the best versed baseball magnate in this vicinity, having come in touch at one time or another with all of the Central New Jersey diamond performers and it would be an easy matter for him to single out a star set to assist in the plan to popularize and revive the Sunday pastime. It is proposed to obtain the old Union League grounds, in South Broad street, Elizabeth, which are situated on the Trenton fast line trolley road. In arranging the schedule Mr. Burke proposes to book a big league attraction for every third or fourth Sunday afternoon and out of town games will be played on Saturdays.

Those associated with McLaughlin and Burke in the movement are David McCartney, of Rahway, and Charles H. Deaman, of Westfield. Burke successfully managed the Elizabeth Stars several seasons ago and he will be a strong leader for the new combination if it materializes.

OUIMET WILL BE WELCOME.

Englishmen Want Chance to Avenge Defeat In Golf.

If Francis Ouimet, open champion of the golf links of the United States, carries out his announced intention of crossing the Atlantic next spring to compete for the amateur championship of the British isles he will be welcome for two reasons.

On the score of courtesy, admiration and curiosity to see the juvenile wonder that beat two of Britain's greatest exponents of the St. Andrews game the American boy will be welcomed. But he will be doubly welcomed because Britain's amateur talent is sanguine of having a sportsmanlike revenge for the humiliation young Ouimet put upon British golf last September at Brookline, Mass.

TO INSURE PURE FOODSTUFFS HERE

Housewives' League Aim for Cleanliness, Full Weight and Best Goods.

TO ORGANIZE SOON

Following a Talk by Miss Dozier Thirty Women Arrange for Meeting on Jan. 22 at Home of Mrs. J. Kirtland Myers.

It will behoove the local tradesman, especially the one who deals in foodstuffs, to keep a sharp eye on his business in the future if he desires to hold his trade, for the women of Plainfield are about to organize a branch of the National Housewives' League. Steps in that direction were taken at a meeting held at the Hartridge Auditorium, yesterday afternoon, under the auspices of the miscellaneous and science departments of the Monday Afternoon Club. The club has nothing whatever to do with the new organization, simply affording an opportunity for interested women to start such a movement. There was so much enthusiasm over the proposition that it was decided to hold a meeting at the home of Mrs. J. Kirtland Myers, 139 East Seventh street, Thursday afternoon, January 22, at 3 o'clock, when an organization will be effected. Mrs. Myers extends a cordial invitation to all women who may be interested to be present.

Yesterday's meeting, which was largely attended, was addressed by Miss Dozier, secretary of the National Housewives' League, who outlined the work of the league and told at length of the great amount of good accomplished through the organization. One of the principal objects is to see that in the matter of foodstuffs that the merchant maintain the highest possible standard, insuring cleanliness, the best goods, full weight and no exorbitant prices.

The merchants who meet the requirements of the league will receive a card from the organization, to be displayed in their shops, which will indicate to the public that such shops are desirable places in which to trade.

Miss Dozier said that the experience of the league in other places had been that merchants as a rule are anxious to secure these cards and generally make every effort to meet the requirements of the organization without any delay. In some respects the league is similar to what is so well-known as the Consumers' League, which has to do with articles of clothing. Members of that league always look for the organization label on the garment they purchase, which shows that it was made under proper sanitary conditions.

It is time that the women of this country "get back to their rightful job—that of housekeeping" and thus materially aid to solve the problem of the high cost of living, she declared. It was time, she said, that women know when they order articles from their grocer or butcher that they get what they order, that they are getting a pure food supply and full weight.

The speaker explained that so many cases had been reported where women order articles from her butcher or grocer, they go to the kitchen to be taken care of by servants and beyond the fact that she has ordered these things her knowledge ceases. She said that it is now impossible for women to keep house as their mothers did years ago, because of changed conditions, but that there are many ways in which she can help to solve the perplexing problems of the day, demanding clean and pure food, whether it be meat, milk, groceries or fruits.

Another important matter undertaken by the league is to as far as possible discourage the practice of "shopping over the telephone," which in so many instances proves unsatisfactory. In that case the woman has to trust to the honesty of the merchant with whom she deals, but at the best it is an expensive proposition, and oftentimes the cost of living is materially increased.

Miss Dozier urged women, so far as they are able to go to the stores to make their purchases. See the goods she wants to buy and see that she gets full weight. The speaker severely condemned the practice of some women in ordering a yeast cake over the telephone explaining that such foolishness must add in no small way to the cost of her living, and she urged women where they give orders to assist the merchant by having everything included in one delivery, so that he will not be obliged to make two or possibly three trips to the house during the day. There are many ways, Miss Dozier said, whereby women can help the merchant and [illegible] a spirit of co-operation.

The speaker [illegible] always striving for the [illegible] and sanitary-kept store, [illegible] extermination of the pesky fly and other disease-carrying insects. Miss Dozier related an amusing incident

WIDOWER SEEKING TO GET $200,000

Son By Former Marriage in Chancery Also Wants Estate of Mrs. Hannah H. Hardy.

HAD JOINT ACCOUNT

Husband Who Was Twenty-one Years Her Junior Claims Property as Surviving Joint Tenant—Senator Reed in Case.

Newark, Jan. 13.—Litigation over $250,000 worth of securities which have been kept in a safe deposit box at the Plainfield Trust Company, rented by Mrs. Hannah H. Hardy and her husband, J. M. Hardy, as "joint tenants," who was twenty years her junior, was aired before Vice Chancellor Howell here today.

The matter came up on a rule to show cause obtained by Ralph E. Lum, counsel for Henry V. A. Parsell, Mrs. Hardy's son by a former husband, and C. B. Vail, administrator with a "will annexed" of Mrs. Hardy's estate. Mr. Hardy, who married Mrs. Hardy in 1905, when she was 75 years old and he 54 years old, claims ownership of the securities by joint tenancy, under the provisions of which they were to go to the survivor.

Mr. Lum charged in his affidavit, duress and undue influence, that Mrs. Hardy could not have known the effect of such joint tenancy as existed with respect to the securities in dispute, as tending to prove this it was pointed out that she otherwise disposed of them by her will in 1911, when living with her husband and made disposition of other securities in a codicil only a month before her death.

Charles A. Reed, of Plainfield, of counsel for Mr. Hardy, urged that the affidavit filed by Mr. Lum set out nothing that would warrant interference with the property in dispute by the court. The Vice Chancellor promised an early decision in the case.

Mr. Reed presented an affidavit of DeWitt Hubbell, treasurer of The Plainfield Trust Company, showing the joint tenancy in securities in the safe deposit box, joint tenancy in a checking account and joint endorsement by each separately after Mrs Hardy left her husband in October 1912, of the last dividend checks of 492 shares of Pullman Company, $1-884, being the quarterly dividend, endorsed November 19, 1913, a month before her death.

It was declared that the son, Mr Parsell, opposed the marriage, while the latter asserted that Mr. Hardy drove his mother from his home by his treatment.

A letter written by Mr. Parsell to his mother, was put in evidence by Mr. Hardy, through his counsel, Mr. Reed, to show the animosity felt by Mr. Parsell for him.

Mr. Reed in addressing the court referred to Mr. Parsell as "a sanctimonious son, unwilling to carry out his mother's wish, burying her in Greenwood cemetery, when she wanted to be buried in Wilmington, Del., because it would result in undesirable notoriety."

Mrs. Hardy died in this city on December 7, last, and was buried in Greenwood cemetery.

J. S. HASKARD HURT.

John S. Haskard, of McDowell street, the junk dealer, was severely shaken up and bruised about the head and body, Sunday night, when he was precipitated from the rear of an automobile on which he was riding from Seabright to this city. Accompanied by a party of friends, Haskard went to Seabright to see the devastation wrought by the recent wind storms. The local man and a friend were seated on a pair of detachable seats fastened by four screws on the back part of the car. Suddenly the seat tore lose, falling to the ground, taking Haskard and his friend with it.

A FEROCIOUS DOG.

A dog owned by Benjamin Kline, of 922 West Front street, which has been a favorite with the children of the neighborhood, this morning, bit Patrolman Wicht, when the latter attempted to ascertain its condition. On Saturday the canine attacked Morton Kline, a son of the owner, biting him on the left arm. Other persons are also nursing bites made by the animal's teeth and the police have ordered the dog muzzled and tied up for ten days. At present it is confined in the garage of John Covas, of 1135 Myrtle avenue.

RUNAWAY CAUGHT.

For the third time within a period of several weeks, a horse belonging to Louis Kornfield, the baker, ran away this morning and was caught in Rock avenue, by a motorman a of the P. S. C., who refused to give his name. The delivery wagon was slightly damaged during the wild run of the unruly horse, but although several pedestrians narrowly missed injury as far as can be ascertained no one was struck.

REV. MR. WILSON RESIGNS CHARGE

Ill Health Causes Unitarian Church Pastor to Ask to Be Relieved.

COMES AS SURPRISE

His Decision Accepted With Much Regret—Trustees Elected and Reports Read—To Hear Candidates for Pastoral Vacancy.

Rev. Arthur E. Wilson, who has been pastor of All Souls' Unitarian church, during the past year, greatly to the surprise of the members, presented his resignation at the annual parish meeting, last night, and following his wishes as expressed in a communication, it was accepted with much regret. The resignation was first received by the trustees, who were also surprised, and then presented at the meeting.

Last summer Mr. Wilson went away to undergo an operation for appendicitis, and since his return to Plainfield, has not been feeling well, in fact, he informed his people that he did not feel strong enough to continue his postoral work at the church, and asked that his resignation be accepted. He plans to return to Massachusetts from which place he came to Plainfield, and take a rest in the hope that he may regain his strength. During his stay here, as the successor to Rev. A. C. Nickerson, Mr. Wilson has done a good work and had endeared himself to his people by his genial manner and earnest efforts. Steps will now be taken to secure a pastor for the church. Mr. Wilson's resignation becomes effective February 1.

Prior to the parish meeting the members gathered for the annual supper which was served at 6:30 o'clock under the direction of the Young People's Union, Miss Grace Parker being the chairman of the committee. At the meeting which followed, Joseph O. Osgood presided in the absence of Samuel Huntington, who recently underwent an operation in a New York hospital and who has just returned home. He was not strong enough to attend the meeting.

The reports from the trustees and various committees, as well as Relph I. Tolles, treasurer, were encouraging and showed the society to be in a good condition, financially and otherwise and the new year opens with much promise.

E. H. Mumford and L. B. Woolston were re-elected trustees for three years, their terms having expired at this time. In view of the resignation of Mr. Wilson as pastor, it will now be necessary to make arrangements for supplies until such time as a new pastor can be secured. This matter was left with the trustees who will act in co-operation with the members of the church. Different ministers will be invited from time to time to preach at the church as candidates.

SERGEANT-INSPECTOR PAYS VISIT TO CO. K

Sergeant James L. Bryant, of Company B, 11th U. S. Infantry, detailed by the War Department to the State of New Jersey as a Sergeant-inspector, attended the special meeting of the non-commissioned officers of Company K held in the company's administration rooms in the Babcock building last night. These visits of the sergeant-inspector are preliminary to the annual inspection of the company which will be held by the regular army officers during the month of February. On February 2 he will be present again when he will instruct the men in the ranks how to execute the various moves they are required to make.

Following a short talk by Sergeant Bryant on methods used in the regular army by the non-commissioned officers, Captain Charles A. Peterson stated that he had called the non-commissioned officers together to discuss the plans for the fair to be held the latter part of next month. Temporary committee heads for the various committees were chosen, and will be announced at the annual meeting and election of civic officers to be held on Monday night at the close of the regular drill session, when they will be acted upon by the members of the organization.

TROLLEY LINE MISHAP.

Patrolman Hendershot reported at police headquarters that a west bound Main Line car broke the trolley wire early this morning at the intersection of Plainfield avenue and West Front street. The P. S. R. was notified and sent mechanics to repair the damage. Traffic was not delayed.

"BE PROGRESSIVE;" TAYLOR'S MESSAGE

Acting Governor Addresses Legislature Very Briefly. Fielder's Way Clear.

Trenton, N. J., Jan. 13.—Acting Governor Taylor submitted his message to the legislature, which convened today. Owing to the fact that he will relinquish his executive position in a week he did not recommend any definite measures, but suggested carrying out the reform policies advocated by President Wilson and Governor Elect Fielder.

"By force of circumstances I have been acting governor of this great state for the past two months, and as my occupancy of this office is to some degree accidental, I do not think it proper that I should in this message to you outline or detail policies or legislation that I deem important or necessary for the welfare of the state.

"The people of the nation honored us by calling to the presidency of the United States Governor Woodrow Wilson. When he took his office as president he was succeeded by Governor Fielder, then president of the senate. Answering the call of his party, Governor Fielder became a candidate for governor and, while technically not necessary, he followed tradition and resigned his office as acting governor prior to the election. The duties of the office thus devolved upon me, then the speaker of the house of assembly. To have been the acting executive of our great state at a time when it had become one of the most progressive states of the Union was indeed an honor, and I welcome this opportunity to address you and express the hope that by your acts and the legislation you will consider and pass you will preserve the record made in the last few years.

"The eyes of the nation have been centered upon New Jersey since Woodrow Wilson became its governor. The progressive reforms instituted during his term, as well as under the guidance of Governor Fielder, are too well known to require repetition.

"These reforms are classed as progressive. They are generally accepted by the people of the state as being measures taken in the direction of progress and advancement. That they have met with popular approval is manifest to any one who has followed the temper of the people.

Continue Progressive Legislation.

"In the campaign just closed the platforms of all political parties pledged reforms in sympathy with those already instituted, as well as new policies in keeping with the progressive spirit and thought of the present day and all such promises were made in the interest of progress and good government.

"The members of the legislature are undoubtedly awake to the responsibility which the people have by their suffrage cast upon them. They demand that progress be continued; that progressive legislation be not retarded or forgotten. They look to you for the accomplishment of good government and expect a continuance of the new order of things that has been begun.

"I shall be your chief executive for but one week after you assemble. The duties of this great office will then devolve upon Governor Fielder; the administration of the state will be his, not mine, and in his inaugural address to you he will call your attention to the things that he believes will require your attention. It is a matter of particular pride with me, however, that I have this opportunity to express to you my conviction that you will join with him in carrying out the policies which he has in mind and which, I am sure, will inure to the great benefit of the state and the progress and betterment of its citizens."

SMALLEY'S AIM IS NEW COUNTY

As President of Chamber of Commerce He Defines His Single Purpose.

ENUMERATES BENEFITS

Plainfield and Surrounding Towns He Would Have in Separate District and He Gives Reasons for the Change.

That it is the purpose of the Chamber of Commerce to have some definite aim, some purpose for which it will work, is indicated by an outline of policy by Newton B. Smalley, who has just been elected president of that organization. That object for which the chamber will strive is the formation of a new county to be known as Washington county, which will comprise territory including North Plainfield and the township, Dunellen, South Plainfield and other adjacent towns and villages. In an interview with Mr. Smalley he set forth the following as a few of the advantages in connection with such a proposition: "It would make Plainfield, Washington county, N. J., famous, and the people would spend their money within the prescribed territory. It would lessen the number of county officers and would turn men toward Plainfield instead of away. It would end the friction in the interested counties, caused by an unequal distribution of money and offices. It would result in connecting the trolley system with the Pennsylvania Railroad at Metuchen, and with the Lehigh Valley Railroad at South Plainfield as well as with the Lackawanna Railroad at Stirling and would make annexation and consolidation past history.

"It would build a State road to Washington Rock and give Plainfield one health resort worthy of the name. It would create opposition from sources based on selfishness. It would give Plainfield cross-country connection and release her from bondage and high taxation. It would justify the building now underway toward the south and west of the city by giving the people schools in their own county. It would help sell and rent those houses that are now waiting for new owners numbered in the hundreds. It would insure us representation at home in State government.

"It would wipe out present county lines that are a menace to Plainfield's growth and health. It would be a Godsend to the Borough of North Plainfield. We could build our own county house with the money we now lose. It would attract attention from all New Jersey and perhaps Washington, D. C. The credit would come to the whole section involved as it could never be called a one-man subject and it would receive opposition the same as Washington did, but it would fade away."

HOPE NOW FOR RECOVERY OF MRS. RALPH I. TOLLES

Mrs. Tolles, wife of former Councilman Ralph I. Tolles, of Westervelt avenue, who has been quite ill at a hospital in Greenwich, Conn., the home of her daughter, Mrs. Chapin, has been removed from the hospital to the home of her daughter's mother-in-law, where she is slowly improving. Mrs. Tolles was walking along the street in Greenwich recently, when she fell unconscious. An examination later showed that there had been a rupture of a blood vessel in the head. For a time her life was despaired of, but now it is believed that she will recover.

FINED THOMPSON $5.

Edward Thompson, of Park avenue, knowing the law prohibiting a borough policeman from making an arrest in this city, and vice versa, without having the necessary papers, stood on the Plainfield side of the Somerset street bridge spanning Green brook, Saturday night, and poked fun at Marshal Pope, of the borough force. Before silenced by some friends he directed some very personal remarks at the borough "copper." Last night Chief Marshal Weiss, who had heard of the incident, saw Thompson within the borough limits and placed him under arrest. Recorder Fred Hand this morning gave him a severe lecture and fined him $5.

THEY WANT TO BE COPS.

Responding to news items appearing in yesterday's local papers stating that the police department force was to be increased in number, about ten husky young men today secured application blanks from Police Chief Kiely.
